Southern Norway Abandoned by British Forces to Germans

Minister Tells Of Transaction With Wheelchel

Called as Defense Witness, He Describes Agreement.

By W. M. HINES,
Constitution Staff Writer.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 2.

After having been called as a defense witness to establish that Congressman B. Frank Wheelchel agreed to recommend appointment of Truman Harris as postmaster at Ball Ground only because "friends of Harris wanted him recommended" and not because of any promise to pay for it, the Rev. W. H. Warren, of Cumming, told the federal jury here today that an agreement was reached at the Congressman's home between himself, Wheelchel and Haynie Brooks that Brooks would handle the $750 which it was agreed Harris should contribute.

The witness said "I never intended to make the offer until after I got the assurance that Wheelchel would give Harris the job."

Judge Queries Witness.

At this same meeting the witness said, "I told Congressman Wheelchel I didn't know anything about handling money and perhaps it would be better for Brooks to handle it."

He added, "I'm a preacher and didn't want to handle the money." Several times during the testimony Judge E. Marvin Underwood, before whom the trial is being held, stopped witnesses to seek elaboration of the testimony about the Harris money.

This testimony came as the defense opened its case and after two substantive counts in the indictment charging Wheelchel and Pickens County Commissioner H. Grady Jones had been quashed because conspiracy, the court held, had not been established. These counts involved the charge that Maynard Mashburn had paid the congressman $500 for the appointment as postmaster at Tate.

Motion Refused.

The court overruled a motion by Defense Attorney Paul Carpenter, of Atlanta, for a directed verdict of not guilty and the trial proceeded on the remaining indictments, for which maximum penalty in Congressman Wheelchel's cases being 12 years and fines amounting to $20,000, and in the case of Jones a maximum penalty of $10 years and fines totaling $12,000.

In argument for a directed verdict, the defense held the government had not legally established Wheelchel is a member of congress and without proof of that point no conspiracy could be established and the jury should be ordered to return a not guilty verdict.

Crowds continue to attend the trial and seats in the courtroom are difficult to obtain. The corridors of the federal building are filled.

The Rev. Mr. Warren on his direct examination related briefly the conversation at several meetings.

Norwegian King Flees From Nazis

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—(UP)—King Haakon VII of Norway, the royal family and the Nygaardsvold government have fled from the port of Molde, only 28 miles from German-occupied Andalsnes, and are en route to "an unknown destination" in the north, a Norwegian spokesman announced tonight.

The royal family and members of the government were believed to be somewhere in northern Norway, above Trondheim, after escaping from repeated German aerial bombardments of Molde, it was said.

Molde is just across Molde fjord on the Norwegian west coast from the abandoned Allied landing base of Andalsnes, which German troops occupied at 3 p. m. today.

Two Arrested In Druid Hills On 'Bug' Charge

Ralph Forrester, Hyrus Shurling Seized in Garage Apartment.

A raid on a garage apartment in the rear of a residence in the fashionable Druid Hills section yesterday led to the discovery of a suburban lottery headquarters and the arrest of Ralph Forrester, now under conviction on one "bug" charge and under indictment on another, police reported.

The raiders reported lottery tickets totalling more than $1,000 were seized, and that Forrester and another man, who identified himself as Hyrus Shurling, of a Forrest avenue address, were toting the tickets on an adding machine. They posted bonds of $1,000 each on charges of lottery.

The apartment was in the rear of the home of Mrs. H. D. Carter, of 1164 Springdale road, who told police the garage was leased last January and that she had been out of town most of the time since then.

The raiders were Detectives Henley Wilbur, Dick Rhodes and Clarence Allen, of city police, and Charlie Stewart, of the Fulton county solicitor general's office and Sheriff Jake Hall, of DeKalb county.

Norse Merchant Marine Escapes German Hands

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—(P)—(By Radio)—An official broadcast tonight said all but one-sixth of the Norwegian merchant marine escaped German hands and is still active.

The broadcast said the fleet consisted of 1,987 ships before the German invasion, and totaled 4,833,000 tons.

Big Music Festival To Include Awe-Inspiring Fireworks Show

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Chopped off by a cold-hearted city editor yesterday just as we were getting warmed to our subject we had no space to describe that awe-inspired, cataclysmic, stupendous, miraculous, and prodigious display of celestial pyrotechnics which will terminate the Greater Atlanta Music Festival that will burst in all its splendor upon 30,000 thunderstruck Atlantans at Grant Field tomorrow night, beginning at 7 o'clock.

We refer to the fireworks display.

Brother, if the music fails to stir you, the fireworks will.

It starts off like a sea battle in the Skagerrak. It continues like the Aurora Borealis set to the mu-

Italy Promises To Stay Out for 10 More Days

Count Ciano Gives American Ambassador Only Limited Assurances.

By The Associated Press.
ROME, May 2.—United States Ambassador William Phillips has received only limited assurances of Italy's peaceful intentions from Foreign Minister Count Ciano, reliable political circles reported tonight, as official Italians expressed indifference at Allied precautionary measures in the Mediterranean, including the dispatch of a battle fleet to Egypt.

Phillips was reassured today by Ciano only that Italy contemplates no warlike moves within the next 10 days, it was reported.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement that the British and French battle fleets are in the eastern Mediterranean were reinforced by extraordinary defense measures in Egypt and the calling of 10 classes of reserve officers to the colors by Greece.

Warning to Italy.

Diplomatic circles interpreted these developments as an emphatic warning that Britain and her Allies are prepared to combat any Italian attempt to profit from the Allied setback in Scandinavia.

Foreign circles already had been made anxious by Britain's diverting her shipping from the Mediterranean as a precautionary step. Ambassador Phillips, it was learned, called on Count Ciano at the request of the State Department in Washington, and not, as had previously been reported, at the request of Ciano.

It was assumed the ambassador's second call arose from his conference with Premier Mussolini yesterday.

Limited Assurances.

In yesterday's conference Mussolini indicated he had no war intentions for the present, and today Ciano is understood to have let it be understood Yugoslavia is safe from any Italian action in the near future.

These assurances were limited, however.

The slight easing of tension that followed first reports of these conversations was succeeded by the radio announcement of British and French fleet movements in the Mediterranean, and the uneasiness revived.

Tonight Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia indicated its opinion that Italy's attitude is none of the United States' business.

"Italy already is in the conflict, from the first day," said the paper, "as for quitting its position of waiting, this is an affair which concerns only him (Mussolini). He has the responsibility of guiding and safeguarding the fortunes of the Italian people."

Concerning the position of Allied battle fleets, one high Fascist commented: "If the British feel their ships are safer at Alexandria out of range of German bombs, it is Britain's affair, not ours."

Residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties must register at their respective courthouses. Women who register for the first time are not required to pay poll taxes until after October. Men must pay all back poll taxes before they become eligible to vote in this year's elections.

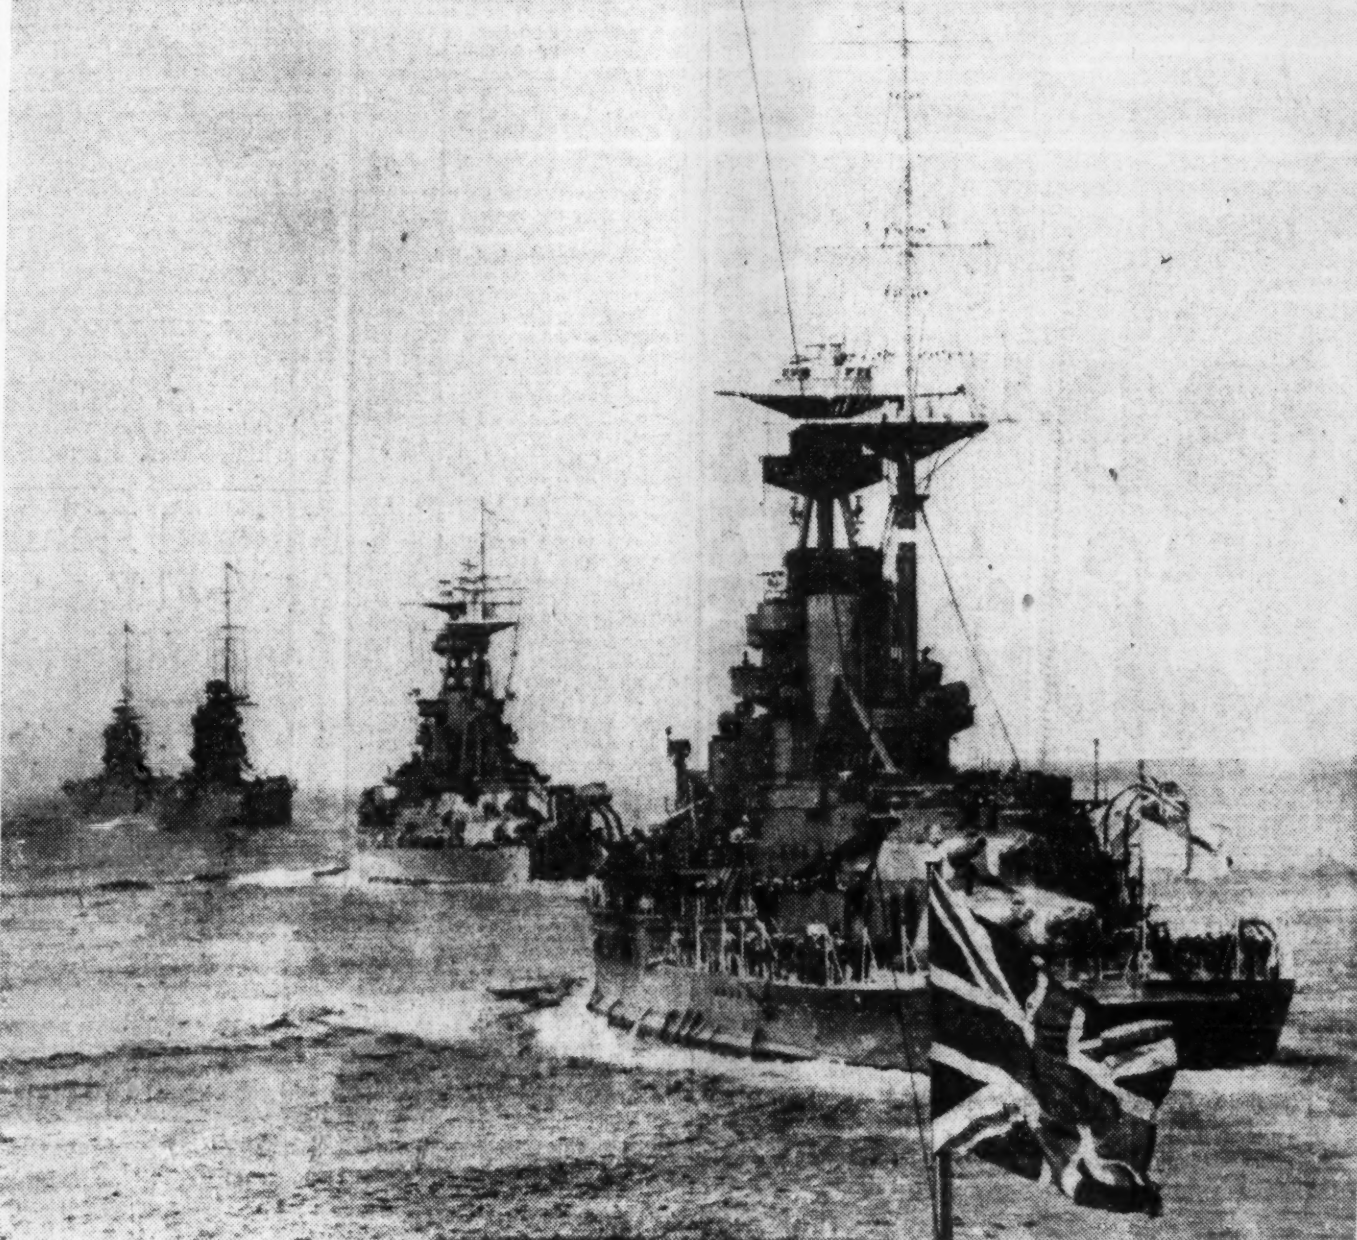

Just listen to this:

THE GRAND ASSEMBLY SALUTES: "Salvo of heavy aerial explosive bombs, fired from steel mortars and exploding from great heights with vivid flashes and thunderous reports. Visible and audible for a distance of four miles."

THE OPENING SALVO OF PRISMATIC BOMB SHELLS: "Nine and 12-inch shells exploding at great height and completely arching the sky with colors."

PANDORA'S BOX OF TROUBLES: "Myriads of hissing insects"

TO KEEP AN EYE ON ITALY—After England abandoned the area south of Trondheim, in Norway, a strong British and French fleet was ordered to the Mediterranean, in the eastern basin near Alexandria, to watch Italy, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons yesterday. ### Citizens Hurry To Register on Deadline's Eve

Tomorrow Is Final Day for Qualifying in Fulton, DeKalb.

Spurred by leaders in all walks of life—political, civic and social—residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties yesterday were flocking to register for coming primaries and general elections.

Saturday is the final day on which Georgians may register for this year's voting.

The DeKalb county registrar's office will be open until 4 o'clock, while in Fulton county Tax Collector T. Earle Suttles will accept registrations until 4:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Mary S. Russell, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., called upon every citizen to register. "May 4 marks a critical day in your life," she said. "It decides whether you are a citizen or a serf. Use your high privilege of citizenship. The ballot safeguards the freedom of yourself and of your children."

Residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties must register at their respective courthouses. Women who register for the first time are not required to pay poll taxes until after October. Men must pay all back poll taxes before they become eligible to vote in this year's elections.

German Planes Scatter Death Over Peaceful Namsos Valley

Many British Boys Killed the Moment They Put Foot on Norwegian Soil, Eyewitness Writes; Mired Lorries Are Perfect Targets.

(This description of the German bombing of the Namsos area in Norway was written by an Australian correspondent who has just returned to Stockholm after making his way to Namsos by car and foot across the mountain passes from Sweden.)

By JAMES ALDRIDGE.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—The biggest scale bombing of this war by German planes has laid low the whole of the Namsos valley in northern Norway.

For two days the Nazi buzzards, Heinkel and Junker species, have preyed upon the peaceful fjords of that region, bombing every road and railroad, every village nestling contentedly beneath the high, snow-capped mountains.

Every little hamlet at road junctions or railheads between Namsos and Steinkjer and between Namsos and Grong has been visited by the German bombers, flouting their air superiority in the face of a few undersized, ineffective British pursuit planes. And the picture I carried away of this once quiet valley is that it is wrapped deep in death and tied ruthlessly tight by war, dazed and helpless.

Though the Allied communications between Namsos and the Steinkjer front are still workable and not seriously impaired, this terrific German attempt to wreck the routes has brought quick death to numbers of the fresh British troops that arrived in the last few days. Many British boys were killed the moment they put a first foot on Norwegian soil.

But the British can continue to land troops because even now the Germans have failed to hit the docks at Namsos hard enough to prevent soldiers from debarking. The remainder of Namsos is a picture of such destruction as I have not seen in any war.

Namsos was a colorful little church village. Now it is a mud-holed scar on the earth's surface, with the skeletons of chimneys standing drunkenly over the charred ashes of the homes they once warmed.

Norway's Army Is Determined Not To Retreat

Activity Reported Along Namsos Front by Correspondent.

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—(P)—German occupation of south and central Norway as far to the north as Steinkjer became accomplished fact tonight with the British withdrawal from below Trondheim, and capitulation of Norwegian units still offering scattered resistance in the area was believed imminent.

Considerable activity along the Namsos front was reported tonight by a Swedish correspondent in a telephone call from Grong, 25 miles east of Namsos, but he said he was unable to determine whether the Allies were planning a retreat or an offensive there.

Subsequent efforts to contact Grong failed, the Stockholm exchange explaining that calls could not be put through "for unexplained reasons."

A Norwegian legion spokesman here declared Norwegian troops in southern and central Norway "are determined never to retreat," regardless of the Allied withdrawal.

Sweden heard the news of the Allied withdrawal with natural sympathy for the neighboring Nordic nation but with the feeling that the threat of the war spreading to this country has eased somewhat.

The confusing military situation of the past few days in Norway is clarified now.

German withdrawals from Roros, some 70 miles southeast of Trondheim, and from Tynset, 35 miles further south, were regarded as mere tactical maneuvers.

The Germans, with the British pulling out of the Gudbrand valley, further to the west, simply abandoned their effort to get through the more difficult easterly Glomma river valley road.

In short, the Germans finding success on the left flank of the cone-shaped battle area south of Trondheim, temporarily abandoned their efforts to drive through with the right flank operation.

Ships Sailing On Return Trip Via Suez Canal

Chamberlain Says Troops Will Fight Another Day for Norse.

By The Associated Press.
All English ships anchored in Genoa port received orders last night to sail immediately for England by way of the Suez canal.

The Dutch destroyer Van Galen received orders from Holland authorities to proceed immediately to Dutch territorial waters and sailed last night.

The ships, by sailing via the Suez canal, were taking the long way around, going by way of the Cape of Good Hope instead of via the more direct route past Gibraltar.

Passengers for Africa. English ships sailing included Llandovery Castle, with 150 passengers destined for Durban, South Africa.

The steamers Switzerland, Baltara and Alex are expected to leave shortly.

The route the English ships would have to take through the Suez canal and then around Africa past Cape Town to Southampton, England, is approximately 15,128 miles. The route via Gibraltar to Southampton in about 2,000 miles.

U. S. Steamer Leaves.

The United States steamer Excalibur departed from Genoa on her regularly scheduled sailing for New York with 24 American refugees from Norway and Denmark among her passengers.

A large group of other Americans fleeing the Scandinavian war zone are expected to embark for New York Sunday aboard the liner Manhattan.

British sources last night said in London all British ships in the Mediterranean "probably" have received orders, similar to those to ships at Genoa, to sail for England.

These sources said such an order could be expected to follow the announcement Wednesday of the temporary diversion of British ships from the Mediterranean.

There was no explanation here why the ships reported sailing from Genoa were taking the Suez route unless their destination was an African port as in the case of the Llandovery Castle.

Abandons Struggle.

Meanwhile, Great Britain abandoned her struggle in lower Norway, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons yesterday, snatching her battle-tired troops from Andalsnes under the very bomb sights of the German air force that they may live to fight another day for Norway and for England.

His face etched with the lines of anxiety and fatigue, Chamberlain gave commons a precise, if incomplete, accounting of the first phase of the Norwegian campaign, now 23 days old, and then faced suddenly south to brandish the whip of Allied naval power in the direction of Italy.

After proudly asserting that the royal navy's feats in the north had "altered the entire balance of power," he said:

Goldfinches Visit Atlanta in Doves

Flights of small birds, so numerous and brightly yellow as to suggest leaves falling in showers as they swept down from trees to pick busily at seed upon the ground, gave a new spring thrill of discovery to Atlanta nature-lovers yesterday.

Many visitors to Piedmont park or the green region about Georgia Tech saw the visitors and were inclined to believe them a flock or drove of tropical canaries somewhat off their course. This was pronounced an error by George Dorsey, naturalist-columnist for The Constitution.

"They're goldfinches," he said. "They're native birds, often called wild canaries, and as a rule they're pretty individualistic, traveling in small parties. But in the spring—and they're about the last to mate and build nests—they often go about in huge numbers."

The males have small black heads and tails, with very yellow coloring, while the females are of a much more subdued brownish yellow coloring. Usually the large flocks number no more than 100, but the Piedmont park contingent yesterday, as viewed by numerous reputable witnesses, was fully 300 strong.

Actor David Niven Believed in Norway

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—(P)—Film friends believe Actor David Niven may be among British soldiers in Norway.

A letter from him, written in England two days after Germany's Norwegian invasion, disclosed that his company had expected to be sent to Finland during hostilities there and remarked "By the time you receive this I may be in Norway."

Niven, member of an army family, left a film career last fall to take a lieutenant's commission with British forces.

Special Events Of Music Week Begin Sunday

City Will Join National Effort To Foster Country's Talent.

Atlanta will join other cities throughout the country in the 17th observance of National Music Week, opening Sunday and continuing through Saturday, May 11. The keynote of the 1940 movement for the advancement of music is to "support group activities and give emphasis to the promotion of American music."

Sponsored locally by the Women's Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, headed by Mrs. Carolyn Seivers and under the general chairmanship of Helen Knox Spain, programs of wide variety to meet the musical taste of everyone will be presented daily. Official programs have been published for the convenience of those interested, and may be had at the organization's headquarters, 523 Loew's Grand Theater building.

Catherine Carver, a native of California but now a member of the faculty of Furman University in Greenville, S. C., will be guest soloist in the opening concert of the week at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the roof of the Ansley hotel.

Achieved Artist. Miss Carver is the winner of the Walter W. Naumburg Musical Foundation prize, of the faculty scholarship of the New York Institute of Musical Art, and of the silver medal with highest honors when graduating from the artists' course of the Juilliard Foundation School.

For her program here she has selected the works of Howard Brockway, Aaron Copeland and Charles Griffes.

Others to be presented on the program are Herman Allison, pianist, accompanied by the Atlanta Civic orchestra under the direction of Walter Sheets, playing Pelt's "Rhapsody."

Bonita Crowe, Atlanta composer and pianist, will be presented in two of her compositions, "Gypsy Music" and "Journey's End," with Louisa Allensworth, soprano; Sara Horne, mezzo-soprano; and Frances Stokes, contralto, singing.

Ruth Dabney Smith, violinist, accompanied by Elizabeth Tillman, will give compositions by Georg Fr. Lindner, "Lullaby" and "Hungarian Dance."

Sunrise Service. A sunrise song service at 6 o'clock on the hill at the Cathedral of Saint Philip will usher in the presentations for the week. Dean Raimundo de Ories will be in charge. One hundred children from E. Rivers school will form a human cross on the hillside.

The first day will end with a song service at 6 o'clock in the evening at the Salvation Army Training school, led by Lieutenant Commissioner W. C. Arnold.

Mozart's "Requiem" will be presented by Mrs. Kurl Mueller at Eggleston Hall at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The annual program of the Hymn Festival, Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr., director, will be given at the First Presbyterian church Sunday at 5 o'clock.

Every program throughout the week is contributed without a fee and admission is free.

Ex-Bermuda Liner Becomes Warship

BOSTON, May 2.—(UP)—The luxury liner Monarch of Bermuda, which formerly was on the New York-Bermuda run, now is an armed cruiser patrolling the South American coast, officers of the Moore & McCormick Lines motorship Mormacdoe reported on arrival from Brazil. ## National Head Of Real Estate Boards Is Heard Tells of Movement To Conserve Values and Improve Use.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

National movements to conserve real estate values and improve real estate use in business and residential districts of American cities as well as to renew values in run-down sections were described last night by Newton C. Farr, of Chicago, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in an address before more than 100 members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board and a large number of civic, business, and financial leaders of the city.

Farr, accompanied by Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the national organization, arrived in the city yesterday, his visit here being the first of a national president of the real estate association for nearly 10 years. His address was delivered at the Piedmont Driving Club, after a banquet, presided over by Ward Wright, president of the Atlanta board, who also introduced Nelson for a brief address.

A committee of Jesse Draper, Henry Robinson, Frank Adair and other officials of the local board, met and entertained the visitors during the day. Several out-of-town real estate men came to Atlanta to hear the address of the national president.

Farr, in his address, emphasized a number of important lines of action, among them being a program for improvement of residential neighborhoods through group rehabilitation of dwellings; important action begun by the real estate association a year ago to study the needs of central and outlying business districts of American cities through which to overcome the adverse effects of over-rapid decentralization; proposals which are now being made by the association for joint action by government and private capital for radical replanning and rebuilding of areas which are too far decayed to be treated successfully any other way.

Speaking of the group rehabilitation of dwellings, Farr said: "There are some 8,000,000 dwellings in the United States that could be brought back into attractive usable condition under the plan. Apartment house reconversion also becomes economically feasible to a degree that has not before been the case under the new plan."

Rivers Indorses Farm Mortgage Adjustments

Governor Rivers yesterday added his indorsement to the farm mortgage adjustment legislation fostered in Congress by the National Farmers' Union. The chief executive said he hoped congress would see fit to pass this legislation. "This movement goes hand in hand with the rural housing movement initiated in the south, and together they will make a very comprehensive program for the advancement of the interest of agriculture throughout the entire nation," he said. "It is my desire not only to indorse both of these movements, but to lend my aid and assistance wherever possible."

Cowboys Can't Savvy South American Way

NEW YORK, May 2.—(P)—The adventures of a group of American cowboys in South America who "got to jugging" a little and disarmed one native policeman and took the pants off another were told today on the arrival of the Grace liner Santa Paula.

The westerners' verdict on their trip—the first American rodeo ever to visit South America—came in a chorus: "They just don't understand American cowboys. They didn't want us to have any fun."

Gas Shortage Forces Finn To Burn Charcoal

Converted Auto Gets Up to 55 on One Occasion.

DETROIT, May 2.—(UP)—An auto owner in Helsinki, Heikki H. Herlin, writes that a gasoline shortage during the Russo-Finnish war necessitated converting his car into a charcoal burner.

"The system," Herlin said, "consists of a generator, the upper part of which is used as a charcoal container, the gas cleaner and the cooler. Necessary piping, valves and fan are under the car hood. The charcoal is inserted in the big cylinder. The cover is closed airtight, then a small fan using a battery current is started and fire set to the generator. After six to 10 minutes the gas production is going so that the motor can be started and the fan stopped. The primary air is regulated so that the carbon monoxide is generated in the generator. This goes through the cleaner and cooler and is then burned in the motor."

The ingenious Finn said he had driven the charcoal-powered Packard 2,600 miles and once hit 55 miles an hour, although he did not know the top speed. He said it was only "slightly less powerful than with gasoline." The charcoal burner added an extra 500 pounds of weight.

World Radio Detective Keeps Stations on Straight and Narrow

International Agency Tests 1,300 Times Daily, War or No War.

By The Associated Press.
BRUSSELS, May 2.—(P)—War may rage, but there's one international policeman whose orders are obeyed by everyone he speaks to—the International Radio Broadcasting Union (Union Internationale de Radiodiffusion) at Brussels.

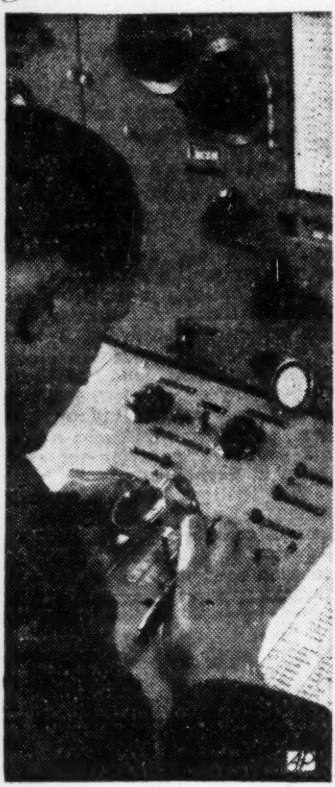

Language or frontiers make no difference to this watchman of the world's wave lengths. Although the union has no punitive powers, when it warns a station its wave length has strayed from its air path, the situation generally is remedied, sometimes within a few hours. "The spirit of emulation and technical pride" generally take care of that.

The union daily checks some 1,300 long and short wave broadcasts. It's supported by 85 per cent of the world's important stations. It administers agreements on wave lengths which are reached at international conferences. When they stray, it's usually due to some technical fault.

Wavy lines map little dramas on the monthly charts the union sends to broadcast stations. There one can see where the Moscow radio zipped from wave length to wave length daily for a month to escape interference set up from Rome. There, in measurements to ten-millionths of a kilocycle, stations that stuck to their wave lengths have their reward—the admiration of brother technicians and the knowledge that listeners have found them at the same dial number.

The union carries on research such as correcting the interference between Tunis and Finland, assigned to the same wave length. By constructing a radio "mirror" in the north of Tunis and another in the south of Finland, these stations not only eliminated interference, but provided stronger signals for audiences they wanted to reach.

Checks are based on a standard frequency pitch provided by a tuning fork and a quartz crystal which are proved daily with the Brussels Royal Observatory nearby. Transmitted frequencies are measured by comparing the standard on elaborate instruments in separate sound-proof laboratories—one for long and one for short waves.

In 12 years the commission has made 1,200,000 measurements and sent 10,000 notices to stations at fault.

Raymond Brailard, director of the control center, who started the union "because it seemed to be necessary," has found that radio stations, whatever their nationality, readily agreed to share available wave lengths and stick to them as faithfully as their equipment permits.

"Perhaps," says he, "that's because technicians are not politicians."

Nazis Train Men On Czech's Line

PARIS, May 2.—(P)—The news service of the Czech national committee reported today that Germany, after starting to destroy the "Czech Maginot line," now is restoring part of the fortifications to train her troops for action on the western front.

The news service said the Czechs' former bastions in the Sudeten mountains and France's own Maginot line are of the same type and asserted that in the region of Kralupy, on the former German-Bohemian border, German soldiers are being trained night and day.

By the Munich accord of September 29, 1938, most of the Czech defense system fell into Germany's hands.

Wife Kept Quiet a While; Then Came Last Straw

CAMDEN, N. J., May 2.—(P)—Mrs. Dorothy C. Kipp, of Burlington, N. J., told a divorce master she kept her troubles to herself when her husband, Samuel, of Altoona, Pa.,

Knocked her down and kicked her, hit her with a bed lamp, pulled a gun on her while they were out for an automobile ride and threatened to throw her down a well.

But when he threw her out a kitchen window, she testified, she decided to do something about it. She sued for divorce—and got it.

10:45 Curfew Is Fixed For Nocturnal Baseball

LEWISTON, Idaho, May 2.—(P)—Base hits are illegal after 10:45 at night in Lewiston. District Judge A. H. Featherstone fixed the curfew hour in deciding a suit of five home owners who charged that night baseball was a nuisance.

Marriage License Lost During Rush to Minister

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—(P)—Richard Jones, 22-year-old caddy, and Miss Annabelle Hogue, 18, hope someone will hurry up and return their marriage license. They lost it rushing to a minister's home and they don't want to buy another.

Willkie Looms As GOP Choice In a Deadlock

Utility Magnate Finds Presidential Boom on His Hands.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Wendell L. Willkie, utility executive who arose from a "Main Street" background to the position of No. 1 spokesman for the nation's businessmen, today finds himself with a growing presidential boom on his hands that has him puzzled.

He doesn't know what to do about it and consequently doesn't propose to do anything.

The middle western boy who once worked as a migratory farm hand, drove a bakery wagon between two villages in his home state of Indiana, and is now head of the billion-dollar Commonwealth & Southern Company, of New York, is being boomed as a dark-horse possibility for the Republican presidential nomination.

Formerly a Democrat, Mr. Willkie changed his affiliation to the Republicans after a series of disagreements with the Roosevelt administration over TVA and related policy. Talk of his availability as a G. O. P. possibility has been greatly accelerated lately following developments in the pre-convention campaign which suggest the likelihood of a deadlock among the three leading avowed candidates—Dewey, Taft and Vandenberg.

Many trained observers regard him as an ideal candidate for the Republicans, measured in the striking contrast he offers to the New Deal in many matters of major policy. Certainly he more closely epitomizes the business men's conception of a Republican candidate in opposition to President Roosevelt than any of the others mentioned for the honors. And yet there is in his background a sufficient tinge of liberalism to avoid a stamp of too staid a conservatism.

Addresses Editors. Aside from the latest prospects for a Republican convention deadlock two recent speeches Mr. Willkie made before an imposing assemblage of editors and publishers in New York and Washington have served to project him further into the political limelight. Those who heard him were frankly impressed, not only with his oratorical ability, but his straightforward way of dealing with current issues. He is no gloved knight of the hustings.

His friends in Indiana are reported already to be laying the groundwork for having the state delegation present his name to the Republican national conclave. No advance movement will be initiated in his behalf that would cast him in the role of an active contender, but sensing the possibilities of the Philadelphia scene they want to be prepared if the necessity arises for considering someone of the dark horse contingent.

While frankly puzzled over it all, Mr. Willkie has no illusions about his chances. Thus far he has not even admitted that he is available for such an eventuality.

Italian Envoy, F. D. R., Welles Hold Meeting

Impression Prevails Duce Will Not Leap Into War at Present.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—A strong impression appeared to prevail in government circles tonight that Italy will refrain from taking any immediate plunge into the European war.

Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, gave some indications to that effect after a conference at the White House attended by President Roosevelt, Prince Ascanio Colonna, the Italian ambassador, and Welles. Yesterday the United States ambassador to Rome, William Phillips, conferred with Mussolini, and the latter was reported to have given assurances that Italy was not about to go to war.

Welles said the State Department was not considering warning Americans to leave Italy. There are some 19,000 Americans in that country—more than there are in Great Britain, Germany and France combined—and it is believed that if the State Department thought war was imminent they would be warned to leave.

ROOSEVELT EFFORTS RAISE FRENCH HOPES

PARIS, May 2.—(AP)—Diplomatic circles expressed a slight feeling of optimism tonight as a result of what they believed to be determined efforts by President Roosevelt to keep the European war from spreading to the Mediterranean.

Political observers said the White House visit today by Prince Colonna, Italian envoy to Washington, created a "profound impression" in Paris and raised hopes that Italy would respond favorably.

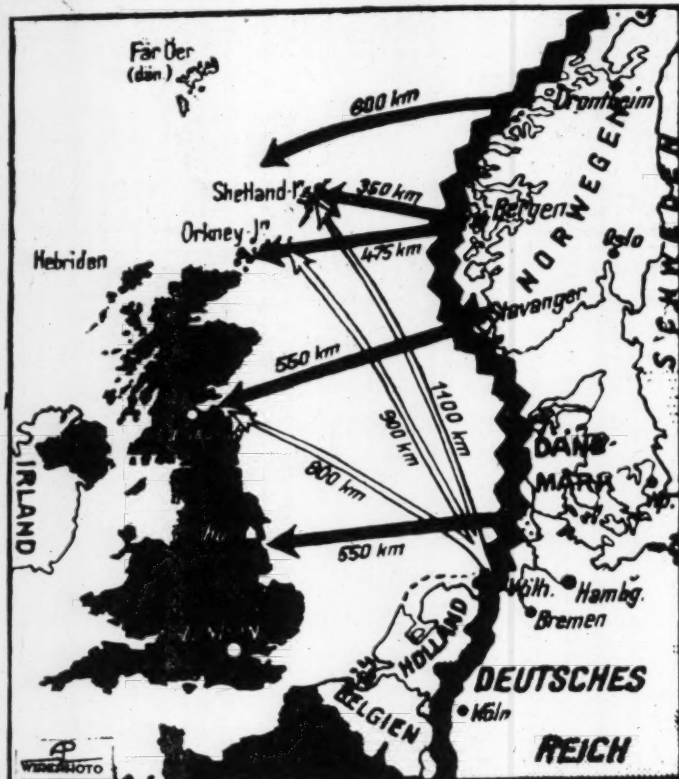

The general tendency among French observers, however, was to take at strictly face value Premier Mussolini's reported assurance to United States Ambassador William Phillips that Italy does not intend to change her position right away.

Heart Attack Fatal To Marietta Man

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., May 2.—A coronor's jury today found that Berry McCord, 69, a former storekeeper from the Marietta-Austell road, came to his death this morning from "some organic heart attack." Mr. Berry was found dead by a neighbor on Summit street, barely more than 200 yards from where he went to sleep earlier in the evening Wednesday.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from Sardis Baptist church, with the Rev. A. E. Caldwell, of Smyrna, officiating. Interment will be in the Sardis cemetery.

Survivors are a sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Dean, of Harrisonburg, La., and two brothers, W. R. and A. N. McCord, of Marietta.

"GOOD POSITION"—This German map, according to censor-approved caption from Berlin, shows the new strategic situation of Germany on the North Sea. The black arrows show distances between some German-held Scandinavian cities and British ports and cities. Light arrows show the distances from the German North sea coast to the same points in England and Scotland.

Allies Massing Their Navies At Alexandria

navy power," he disclosed that a strong British and French battle fleet is steaming through the eastern basin of the Mediterranean toward Alexandria, where it can keep its eyes on Italy.

Chamberlain told the listeners who packed the benches and steep balconies of the house that the Allies intend to fight on in Norway, to "seize every chance to inflict damage on the enemy" from their land concentrations above Trondheim and in the arctic region and by air and sea.

Although Chamberlain refused to disclose the course of future operations in Norway, now that the campaign from south of Trondheim has been scrapped, it was learned the Allies almost certainly will fling a line across the country above Trondheim from the coast to the Swedish frontier.

Moving on Narvik. This would provide favorable bases for counter-attacks on the Germans and protect "hopping up" operations at arctic Narvik, where the Allies are moving slowly but steadily in on the Germans who occupy the port.

An Allied blow from above Trondheim, aimed at that port, cannot be entirely discounted.

Although Chamberlain said Norway is not to become "a side-show," he warned his homeland as well as the neutrals in the west of Europe and in the southeast that they must be ready for new fully elaborated treachery against an unsuspecting and almost unarmed people.

He recalled evidence, months ago, of Nazi troop practice in getting on and off ships in Baltic ports (stories which reached Europe's neutrals as early as November), but said it was impossible to tell beforehand which country was intended for invasion and that, at any rate, Britain could not move without the co-operation of Norway and Sweden, which it did not get.

Tells Brief Story. Without going into details of the fighting since the British landed in Norway, Chamberlain sketched a brief picture of the impossibility of landing artillery and tanks south of Trondheim because of the "local air superiority" of the Germans.

"It must be remembered," he went on, "that it has always been possible for the Germans, with their usual disregard of life, even of their own people, to send reinforcements to Norway at a much greater rate than would be open to us with the inadequate landing places we have to rely on."

Taking this into consideration, he said, "we decided last week that we must abandon any idea of taking Trondheim from the south and that we must therefore withdraw our troops from that area and transfer them elsewhere."

He compared the British withdrawal at Andalsnes to the historic Napoleon's superior army at Corunna, Spain, in 1809.

He praised the work of the navy in this action and lauded British-French flotillas for their hampering of German communications and storming of Narvik.

Balkans Jittery Despite Italian, Nazi Pledges

Upset by Approach of Fleets; Egypt, Greece Prepare.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 2.—(AP)—Reassured by Germany and Italy that Balkan fears of aggression were unfounded, but nevertheless aware that the situation may change at any moment, the capitals of southeastern Europe tonight weighed the import of several disturbing developments.

German diplomats officially assured Balkan officials that there was no "real peril" to themselves except some attempted intervention by the Allies which would provoke "German action" as in Norway.

Peace Favored. The Germans argued that it was to their interest to keep southeastern Europe peaceful and productive.

Italian diplomats said there was no reason to believe that Italy intended in the immediate future to change from her status of a non-belligerent ally of Germany.

While these quieting words bolstered the assurance reported given United States Ambassador William Phillips in Rome, the news that the British and French war fleets were steaming through the eastern Mediterranean was an unsettling influence.

Greece, aware that an Italian thrust might be aimed from Italian-occupied Albania toward Salonika on the Aegean, suddenly called up 10 classes of reserve army officers for active service. Greece, like Turkey, has received pledges of British and French assistance.

Egypt On Guard. Egypt, another British ally, on guard at the Suez canal, took emergency measures, cancelling army and police leaves and placing every vantage point under strict guard. Steps were taken to introduce the death penalty for spying.

Along the Danube other countries continued their defense preparations. Among these was Yugoslavia, who a few days ago heard reports of German troop concentrations near her northern frontier, and of Italian precautions near the Yugoslav border.

NAZI SPY CENTER RAIDED IN BUCHAREST. BUCHAREST, May 3.—(Friday) (AP)—A German "espionage center" was raided today in the basement of a building in the heart of the Rumanian capital near the royal palace. A wireless sending and receiving outfit was confiscated and many Germans and Polish refugees were arrested.

Meanwhile, it was reported from Sibiu, in Transylvania, that the Rumanian bureau of espionage had arrested and expelled a large number of German army officers.

War Uncovers Planes' Flaws, Says Air Chief

Major Arnold Testifies U. S. Ships Inferior to Nazi Craft.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Major General H. H. Arnold, Air Corps chief, was reported today to have told a senate appropriations subcommittee in a closed session that the army was making drastic changes in its armament of fighting planes because of lessons learned from the European war.

These changes, it was said, involved largely the installation of self-sealing gasoline tanks, additional armor to protect gunners in bombing planes, bullet-proof windshields and larger caliber guns.

Arnold's testimony on the defi-

HALF OF NORWAY YIELDED—Yesterday Britain withdrew her troops from southern Norway, giving about half of the country to the Germans. In the map the shaded areas show the territory under German control since the abandonment of Britain's struggle for the southern portion of the country. Arrows indicate the four-pronged "lightning" drive that pushed back the Allied troops which once held Elverum and controlled the Andalsnes-Dombas area. Yesterday the Germans hoisted their flag over Andalsnes.

iciencies of existing American military planes, as contrasted with German craft, caused Senator Lodge (Republican, Massachusetts), a committee member, to assert later that "every military plane in the service of the United States is obsolete, according to the European war standards."

A self-sealing gasoline tank developed by the Nazis and now reported to have been duplicated for the latest model of American fighting ships is made of a fibrous material, crude rubber and treated rubber, encased in leather. As bullets penetrate the tank, the rubber does into the holes thus made and closes them.

Lodge said he was convinced by Arnold's testimony that larger caliber guns also were needed on the American ships. Present equipment, he said, includes some .50-caliber guns, but chief reliance was placed on .30-caliber guns. Another member of the committee said Arnold disclosed that the army had built a plane carrying a cannon equivalent in effectiveness to the French "75," light artillery field piece.

Against the virtual admission that all central and southern Norway had been abandoned to the Nazi foe, Chamberlain set down a record of German naval losses and troop casualties, and a vague hint that important Allied moves in other war theaters were under way although they could not be revealed.

It was on that note that he averted immediate outbreak of a political storm and muzzled his critics. Yet it cannot long save his war leadership from a reckoning for the Trondheim fiasco.

Chamberlain's admission that the first significant clash of the eight-month war between Franco-British and German troops resulted in a stinging Allied defeat cannot be obscured by his boast that Allied landing forces about the Andalsnes base were withdrawn to sea without loss "under the nose" of the German air force.

Sooner or later the full fall of Franco-British lives lost in the futile gesture to pinch off Trondheim from the south must be told. Sooner or later, and probably sooner, the effect of the Allied retreat on Norwegian morale and upon Sweden must become a new and unfavorable factor for the Allies in Scandinavia.

The British leader attributed Allied defeat in the Trondheim venture primarily to German air superiority in Norway. That admission confronts the Allies with a grave fact. It presumably means that in the first real test between the weapons upon which the two sides rely chiefly for victory, Allied sea power and German air power, air power won.

What does not yet appear, however, is whether that victory was due primarily to a policy decision by Chamberlain's war cabinet which shackled the British navy against any risky action.

By and large there can be read into the Chamberlain statement new evidence that the conservatism and caution that have been the hall-mark of his administration still dominate Allied strategy. The Chamberlain regime still looks to British-French economic power to win the war without great loss of life.

14 Beer Outlets Lose Licenses; Drive Goes On

Brewers' Committee Warns All Illegal Operations Must Stop.

The "clean up or close up" program of the Brewers and Beer Distributors' Committee of Georgia was extended yesterday as State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head revoked the licenses of 14 retail beer outlets in Baldwin, Brooks, Bryan, Chatham, Emanuel and Glynn counties. The three cancellations in Brooks county were made on the commissioner's own initiative.

The licenses were revoked at the request of Judge John S. Wood, state director of the Brewers and Beer Distributors' Committee of Georgia.

Judge Wood said that charges against all of the places were that the operators sold whisky illegally and that they permitted drunkenness, immoral conditions and general disorder. The revocations are announced following an investigation by the commissioner's own staff.

Head's action brings to 19 the total number of beer permits which have been cancelled at the request of the committee since its formation February 14. Investigators of the committee have inspected the operations of 322 retail beer outlets in all sections of the state, and 74 retailers in 25 counties have been warned by the state director to cease various illegal practices.

"This committee is determined that the interests of the public and of the law abiding beer retailers, who are vastly in the majority in this state, shall not be jeopardized by a small group which persists in violating the law," said Judge Wood.

"I believe we have made substantial progress, and we have had splendid co-operation from Revenue Commissioner Head. We plan no let-up in our campaign until all of the 'honky-tonks' in Georgia are either 'cleaned up' or 'closed up.'"

Fuel Oil Taxes Top 18 Million In Collections

$22,000,000 Revenue Predicted for Entire Fiscal Year.

State fuel oil tax collections passed the $18,000,000 mark with April receipts, State Auditor Zach Arnold announced yesterday.

With two more months remaining of the present fiscal year, officials estimate fuel revenues will approximate $22,000,000 by July 1. Gasoline tax collections through April amounted to $17,818,547, and kerosene oil taxes were $216,869, compared to $18,607,070 for gasoline and $198,600 for kerosene for the same period last year.

Two-thirds of the gasoline taxes go to the State Highway Department, one-sixth goes to the various counties on the basis of their state highway mileage, and one-sixth goes to the equalization fund of the common schools. Schools get the entire kerosene oil taxes.

Davis Will Testify In Trial of Costello

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—(P)—J. Richard (Dickie) Davis, "kid mouthpiece" of the notorious Dutch Schultz gang in New York, arrived here today to testify in the trial of Frank Costello and five others charged with evasion of $500,000 income tax in operation of a $3,000,000 slot machine racket here.

Davis, who has remained in seclusion through fear of gangland vengeance for his testimony in the James J. Hines trial, conferred at length this afternoon with District Attorney Rene A. Viosca in the federal building.

The income tax trial opens here Monday.

'Il Trovatore' Opens Brenau Spring Festival

Presentations To Continue Today, Tomorrow and Sunday.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 2.—A colorful performance of Verdi's opera, "Il Trovatore," played before a capacity audience tonight, opened the third annual Brenau College spring festival.

Stars of the evening included Arnold Lindi, of the San Carlo Opera Company; Mme. Marguerite Ringo, Jeannette Johnson, George Britton, Eugenio Prosperoni and Camillus Disimone. Smaller roles were adequately filled by Madge Robertson, of the Brenau School of the Opera; Livingston Lee, of Gainesville, and David Grover, of Dahlonega. Supporting the cast were choruses composed of members of the Choral Clubs of North Georgia College, Riverside Military Academy and Brenau. The entire musical scores were played by a full orchestra, Enrico Leide conducted.

"Secret of Suzanne."

The festival program will continue tomorrow with a matinee presentation of the comic opera, "The Secret of Suzanne," by Wolf-Ferrari, with Eida Bettori, Prosperoni and Mary Jane Johnson in the cast. A song recital by Vettori and Lindi also will feature the program. Eliza Holmes Feldmann, pianist, will accompany, assisted by the orchestra.

The night performance, the 40th annual Shakespearean play, will be presented at 8:30 o'clock, with Maude Fiske LaFleur directing. Authentic stage sets, unusual lighting effects and elaborate costumes have been specially made for the occasion. The cast will include students of the Brenau School of Speech and Dramatic Art.

Saturday's program will begin at 2:30 o'clock with a matinee recital by Franciszek Zachara, Polish pianist.

"Tales of Hoffman." The Tales of Hoffman, "The Tales of Hoffman" will be the concluding night event of the festival, and will be presented at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night. Roles will be taken by Donald Dame, of New York; Mme. Regina Vicarino, Jeannette Johnson, Camillus Disimone, Emily Pearce Dunlap, Vera Edwards, Robert Finch and George Britton, who will be heard again in a triple baritone role. Also included in the cast are Ben Parks, Jack Graves, Robert Entzinger, of Dahlonega; Conrad Romberg and Homer Edwards, of Gainesville; Horace Whitner, of Riverside Concert.

Honoring the festival visitors, Riverside Military Academy will give a band concert, directed by Reno Zaxa, in Elkin Memorial hall at 4 o'clock, followed by a dress parade, which will be the concluding event.

Following each night performance President and Mrs. H. J. Pearce are entertaining the visitors at receptions in Yonah hall. The festival is attracting many from through this section. A motorcade of approximately 25 members of the Brenau Alumnae Club of Atlanta is expected tomorrow, headed by Mrs. George Slapay, president, and Mrs. Forrest Osgood, also an officer of the organization.

Women's Unit In Center Drive To Meet Today

Donors May Designate Schools To Receive Contributions.

Today, marking the second report meeting of workers in Atlanta's university center campaign, is "Ladies' Day," featured by a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Dinkler room of the Ansley Mrs. J. N. McEachern Sr., chairman of the women's division of the campaign, will preside.

The workers gather for their second report with a little more than one-third of the $1,300,000 goal set for the metropolitan area campaign already pledged. There is $861,579 remaining to be obtained by them to assure completion of the $5,000,000 fund which must be raised by Emory University and Agnes Scott College in order to qualify for a gift of $2,500,000 from the General Education Board of New York toward the development of a university center in the Atlanta-Athens area, for service to the southeast.

May Designate School.

In a statement concerning campaign progress, Preston S. Arkwright, general chairman, last night emphasized the fact that donors are at perfect liberty to designate their contributions to either Emory or Agnes Scott, or for a definite project connected with the program of either. It is only in the event that such a designation is not made by the donor, he explained, that division of the gift is made on the basis of 80 per cent to Emory and 20 per cent to Agnes Scott—this being in line with the allocation of the Education Board's grant, $2,000,000 to Emory and $500,000 to Agnes Scott.

Plan Medical Center. "Many of the contributions already made," said Mr. Arkwright, "are being so designated. Especial interest is being shown, for example, in the medical program, which contemplates the establishment of a great medical center in Atlanta, with improved hospital facilities and with provision for the training of public health personnel."

Music at today's luncheon will be furnished by Richard Felder, organist of the Emory Glee Club. The Hammond organ is being loaned to the campaign by Alvin E. Foster of the Cable Piano Company.

Senate Overrides Veto, Votes To Pay Veterans

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(P)—The senate overrode President Roosevelt on a veto today by a vote of 76 to 3 and wrote into law legislation to grant travel pay and food allowances for officers and men held in service in the Philippines after the war with Spain. The house previously had overridden the President, 274 to 82.

ADLER SUCCESSOR NAMED. NEW YORK, May 2.—(P)—Directors of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America have elected Professor Louis Finkelstein acting president succeeding the late Dr. Cyrus Adler, of Philadelphia. Rabbi Finkelstein, a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, has lectured at the seminary for the last eight years.

of flame darting in every direction. Very amusing."

KING TUT'S DREAM: "The Pharaoh of old, breaking into brilliant sunshine, after 3,000 years of darkness, in the midst of golden sheaves of fiery wheat."

SINBAD'S JEWEL CASE: "Bursting shells, discharging clouds of silver and gold in which a master-shell, bursting, erupts in a shower of flaming rubies, emeralds, turquoises and diamonds."

THE HEAVENLY CHAMELEON: "Brought forth in purple, cradled in vermillion, baptized in molten gold, blending every color into one."

THE STARRY CANOPY: "Bombs bursting in air release at great height an earth-shrouding canopy of golden spray and constellations of stars which wheel and reel and dive like comets gone mad."

CELESTIAL GARDENS OF DAISIES AND VIOLETS: Star-shells of gold and blue burst simultaneously, blending their fiery fragments into a veritable garden of heavenly flowers."

That's just half of it, but we'll have to desist. The place holds only 30,000. To go on would be too much. The concrete seams of the Grant Field Stadium would burst with the pressure of the people.

That part of the program described above is only the lagniappe, the gilding of the lily, the extra thrown in for good measure for the benefit of those who are tone-deaf and can't hear the music, who have to get their thrills visually.

The big thing, of course, is the music—the 15 bands with their 1,000 instruments—the 3,000 voices of the choir—the 30,000 voices of the singing crowd, the folk dances in brilliant costume, the great match-lighting scene in which the stadium bursts into a glow of flame—the miraculous music of the Novachord—

Opera was grand. But the festival has the splendor and the color and the drama of opera, with music that the man in the street can understand.

And it's all free. It's the Constitution's way of giving a party for the town.

And, since there's no admission charge, there are no reserved seats. Get there early and grab your place. Once you're in it you won't want to leave until the last trumpet note has faded and the last spark of the fireworks has faded from the sky.

Manufacturers, Farmers Come to Chains' Defense

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(P)—The house subcommittee considering the Patman chain store tax bill heard testimony from a group of manufacturers and farmers today that the chains aided them by taking merchandise off their hands quickly and in large quantities and increased consumption by keeping retail prices low.

Two witnesses, a beekeeper and a creamery operator, said the chains often paid prices higher than the market price.

KISS FOR THE BRIDE—And doesn't she look sweet? This bit of action was caught by the camera last night as students of the S. R. Young public school, College Park, presented the operetta, "The Wedding of the Flowers." The bride is Carol Wallis and the bridegroom is David Richardson. Miss Dorothy Aiken, Miss Nell Qualtney and Mrs. Young Evans, primary teachers, directed the presentation.

Festival of May Meat Featured Opens Tonight At Sally Saver At Agnes Scott Lecture Today

Agnes Scott College's annual May Day festival will begin at 8 o'clock tonight in the Bucher Scott gymnasium, where the senior class will present its comic opera, this year a satire on "Gone With the Wind."

At 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the actual May Day pageant, depicting the advance of women in education, will be held in a natural amphitheater on the campus. An original musical score has been arranged by Professor C. W. Diekmann, of the college's music faculty.

The comic opera tonight, entitled "Gone With the Draft or Giving Him the Arie," was written by a student committee headed by Miss Sophie Montgomery and including Misses Eleanor Hutchens, Anne Enloe, Betty Jean O'Brien and Ruth Kaplan.

Miss Henrietta Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thompson, of 424 Callan circle, has directed the performance, which is given each year by the graduating class in conjunction with the May Day events.

The cast of the opera includes in the leading roles Miss Hutchens, Miss Jane Moses, Miss Georgia Hunt and Miss Jeanette Carroll. The cast of the May Day pageant, open to the public, will include over 100 students of the college.

Memorial Service Held For Sparta School Head

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. SPARTA, Ga., May 2.—A memorial service was held in the school auditorium here Tuesday for the late Superintendent Benjamin M. Harrison, who died unexpectedly last Saturday. Principal Clarence C. Crooms presided over the meeting and introduced the speakers, who included Chairman Charles W. Moran, of the County Board of Education; Charles Clark, Jr., who represented the student body; Professor Eldred F. MacLeod, for the faculty; the Rev. R. J. Kerr and the Rev. C. C. Kiser Jr.

Baldwin Seeks Return As Ocmulgee Solicitor

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 2.—C. S. Baldwin Jr., solicitor general of the Ocmulgee judicial circuit, yesterday officially announced his candidacy for re-election in the forthcoming Democratic primary. The solicitor, who has held the post 10 years, will be opposed by at least one opponent this year. R. C. Whitman, Eatonton attorney, announced his candidacy for the office two weeks ago.

Curtiss-Wright Profit Reaches All-Time High

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Guy Vaughan, president of Curtiss-Wright Corporation, announced yesterday the first three months of 1940 resulted in the largest net profit of any quarter in the aircraft company's history—$2,414,196, equal after charges to 25 cents a common share.

This compares with net profit in the March quarter, 1939, of $1,698,157, or 15 cents a common share.

Dworecki Girl's Slayer Is Given Life Sentence

CAMDEN, N. J., May 2.—(AP)—Lanky Peter Shewchuk, thumb-twiddling former roustabout, was sent to prison for life today only a few minutes after a jury of men convicted him of murdering 18-year-old Wanda Dworecki at her father's behest. The Rev. Walter Dworecki, a Polish Baptist minister, was electrocuted in March for his part in the crime. Testimony at the trial of Wanda's father and Shewchuk developed that the parent paid the younger man—a boarder in the Dworecki home—50 cents to strangle the daughter for her $2,500 insurance. Dworecki promised $100 but never paid, Shewchuk testified.

DELICATE SITUATION.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 2.—(UP)—The taxicab drivers and garage employees union postponed a strike because the state federation of labor is holding its convention at the William Penn hotel—one of the points which would be affected by a strike. To strike would embarrass its delegates to the convention, the union decided.

"Just what the doctor ordered" to keep you in good shape all Summer

DONT be a "wrinkley". Sure, it's warm. But why walk around in something that looks like baggy pajamas? You can be just as cool in Bond's new Sudan Weave. And that smooth well-pressed look you saw in your mirror this morning will still be there at 6 P.M. Bond's Sudan is a new blend of mohair and zephyr wool. Mohair chases the wrinkles. Zephyr wool lets in the slightest breeze. Tailored by Bond's Rochester, needleworkers, these brisk "coolers" fit as perfectly as your best heavyweight. SEAWARD GAZING from a point of vantage by heavy, Norwegian coastal cannon is this German gunner, one of the crew manning weapons captured by the invaders at Trondheim harbor.

NEMESIS of Allied dreadfuls of the air will be this German anti-aircraft gun being swung down from a ship at Christiansand, Norway. Or so, at least, the Germans hope. The heavy weapon is intended to fend off the Allied warhawks that will swoop over southern Norway. For, despite the fact that Great Britain yesterday abandoned the struggle on land in lower Norway, her aerial forces can still strike at the Germans who at the moment grip the southern sector. This graphic photograph arrived in New York by Clipper mail yesterday.

WINGED TROOPS Even the sky rains invading Germans on hapless Norway. Here a band of Nazi warriors appears beside a huge transport plane that whisked them across to a landing at Oslo.

PLOW? NOT NOW! Farmer Muro McKenzie looked at the calendar hanging on the wall of his kitchen up in Illinois and saw it was high time to begin spring plowing. But next morning he looked at the ground—or where the ground should have been—and decided he'd better wait. Too much snow.

RAZZLE DAZZLE That's what aerial experts call the formation of these Grumman pursuit fighters of the U. S. navy. Such overlapping of wing tips requires a master at the controls.

GIRDING for immediate and decisive action, in case need for such should ever arise, is canny Uncle Sam's army air corps. TORPEDO TUBES with wings. Nor are the naval hornets of our old uncle with the white beard lagging behind in preparedness. Here a flight of nine Douglas torpedo bombers wings off on a practice jaunt over southern California from the fleet aircraft base at North Island, San Diego. Pretty snappy, what?

PEACEFUL is the California countryside below these naval Douglas torpedo bombers, but one day the shadow of war may darken the land, and the planes must be ready. So they're keeping in war trim.

Direct Evidence On Wheelchel Is Ended by U. S.

Postal Inspector, Income Tax Investigator Are Last Witnesses.

B. W. M. HINES, Constitution Staff Writer.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 2.—The government ended presentation of direct evidence at 12:39 o'clock today in the conspiracy charges against B. Frank Wheelchel, congressman from Georgia's ninth district, and H. Grady Jones, commissioner of Pickens county.

The final witnesses were Rudolph Greer, postal inspector from Atlanta; and W. Herbert Hodges, federal income tax investigator.

Hodges went into the business transactions of both Wheelchel and Jones for the years 1936, 1937, and 1938. At the close of his testimony, and after much accounting both by the prosecution on direct examination and the defense on cross-examination, Hodges said Congressman Wheelchel still has not given satisfactory explanation to the government for $5,048 of his income.

Explanation Accepted. Hodges previously had said $10,700 was unexplained but later the government accepted Wheelchel's explanation for $5,652.

In the same three-year period, the government said, there is still unexplained $5,627 of H. Grady Jones' income.

The "little black box" again played a part in the testimony when it was brought out by Hodges that loans in cash to King Murphy, a Hall county farmer, had come from that receptacle, in which Congressman Wheelchel kept currency which he received.

Hodges, a slender little man wearing glasses, had a bundle of papers containing figures of the congressman's financial transactions which he scattered about the floor in front of the witness stand and from which he extracted even the most infinitesimal entry in Wheelchel's account. Every deposit that went into either the Gainesville National Bank or the Motor Finance Company he had listed as to date, amount and as far as possible the source from which it came.

Variety of Answers. The defense attorneys endeavored to elicit statements that he would be willing to accept their explanations of deposits but through the maze of intricate questions, Hodges had a variety of stock answers that avoided any commitment on the part of the income tax authorities as to when future action might be taken on the unexplained items in the congressman's income.

Here is a sample: The government asked if Hodges could trace $272.66 which he had listed as an unexplained item in Wheelchel's income.

"You have here on this date an entry in one bank of $872. Here you admit receipt of $800. The difference is $72.66, is it not, Mr. Hodges?" the defense asked.

"Yes, that is the difference between the two amounts," the witness replied.

"Well, here we have an entry of $216.25 from L. N. Jay, and $34.41 which is interest from the Motor Finance Company, and $25 as interest from H. V. Johnson. Now take your pencil, Mr. Hodges, and add those last amounts together. What is the total?" asked the defense counsel.

Witness Replies. "The total is $272.66," replied the witness.

"Now are you willing to admit that the total of $272.66 for these items you have just added is the same $272.66 which you have listed as an unaccounted income of Congressman Wheelchel?" asked the attorneys.

"I am not satisfied," was the reply. And so it went throughout the testimony. The answers of Hodges were, "I am not willing to admit it without further investigation," "That might be strong indication," "That might be so, but I can't accept it without further study," "That was his statement, or so he said."

Mr. Hodges left the stand with the statement that decision on the investigation into the congressman's income tax return is still pending.

When court opened, the government introduced certified copies of Congressman Wheelchel's report of his campaign expenses, which were listed as $4,870 in 1936 and only $250 in 1938, and the affidavit made by Wheelchel stating that all the money he spent was his own.

Greer Testifies. Postal Inspector Greer testified he asked Congressman Wheelchel about the checks Wheelchel was reported to have received from H. Grady Jones and that Wheelchel replied, "You won't find my name on the checks." When asked to explain further, Greer testified that Wheelchel told him, "I didn't want my name on them. I knew there was something irregular about the checks."

On cross-examination of the inspector, the defense endeavored to make it appear that the inspection had attempted to tamper with witnesses by forcing them to make statements that were untrue and which the witnesses did not wish to make. Greer denied these charges and said the postal inspectors only sought the truth and the facts and were not interested in the guilt or innocence of Congressman Wheelchel. He said the investigation into reported sales of other post offices in the district is still going on.

It was significant that the prosecution closed its case without calling as witnesses either J. H. Holcomb Sr., Paul Grogan, or Maynard Mashburn, all of whose names have been involved in the earlier testimony relating to the alleged payment of money to Congressman Wheelchel for postal appointments for Hulon Holcomb, Grogan and Mashburn. All three have stood under subpoena for days in the corridors.

Final Evidence. The final evidence submitted was a photograph of the spot on the "country highway" where Wheelchel is alleged to have met Grady Jones to arrange about postal appointment sales.

An effort to introduce a certified copy of a letter from the clerk of the house of representatives to show Wheelchel to be a member of congress was challenged by the defense because it was not in proper form and the government withdrew the paper.

It was the lack of legal proof that Wheelchel was a member of congress at the time the crimes were alleged to have been committed that formed the basis of a defense motion to dismiss the indictments on a ground that proof that Wheelchel is a congressman had not been established and that if he is not proved to be a congressman, then no conspiracy could exist.

Minister Tells Of Transaction With Wheelchel

ings he had alone with Congressman Wheelchel, but only went at length into the meeting he had when Haynie Brooks was present. Under questioning of Wheelchel's counsel, Judge Alonzo Wheeler, he was positive that on the Harris recommendation Wheelchel agreed to go along only because Wheelchel's friends wanted him to do so. After an investigation had been started by the government and while he was before the grand jury as a witness, Rev. Mr. Warren said Haynie Brooks told him the charges made against Wheelchel were "solely due to politics."

He added that Brooks said: "I know nothing that will hurt Congressman Wheelchel."

In the statement to the jury of what the defense intends to establish, Judge Wheeler said:

"The defense freely admits that Congressman Wheelchel did have a conference with Roy Redd and Haynie Brooks in his office here in Gainesville in 1936, and we will show that Redd and Brooks were the seekers after the conference and sought to have Wheelchel agree to get Harris a job as postmaster at Ball Ground. We will show that Brooks was the spokesman and that when these parties came Wheelchel told them, 'Harris has never been my friend,' but these men replied, 'He's been our friend and a friend of your friends.'"

"Pay My Own Way." "To this Congressman Wheelchel replied, 'If you want me to do so, I'll recommend him,' and when Brooks asked, 'Can we depend on that?' Congressman Wheelchel said, 'I'll put it in writing.'"

"Then we will show that as Brooks went out, he said Harris wants to contribute $1,500, and Mr. Wheelchel replied, 'I don't do it that way; I pay my own way.' And Mr. Redd saw the reply and offered Congressman Wheelchel $1,500. "We will prove further that when the contribution was suggested that Congressman Wheelchel agreed 'If he (Harris) wants to pay something to my friends that will be okay, but I don't want it.'"

"We will establish later that Mr. Brooks and the Rev. Warren came back and told him substantially the same thing."

"We will show that at a later date, when Congressman Wheelchel was in Cumming, and Brooks offered Mr. Wheelchel $500, on behalf of Harris that Mr. Wheelchel said, 'Haynie, that's no way to do. Harris is a poor man and I don't want it. You take it and use it.'"

"Then Brooks told Mr. Wheelchel, 'You haven't a chance to carry Forsyth county in this coming election. You never have carried the county. So don't fool with it, but we have had some little expense here.' Congressman Wheelchel then gave Brooks $80 to cover this expense and took the balance and turned it over to another party to be used in the campaign."

"We will establish that later at Ball Ground, Mr. J. H. Holcomb Sr. came to Mr. Wheelchel and asked if he would agree to support Holcomb's son for a rural letter carrier appointment."

"Mr. Holcomb said 'I have fought you in the past. I have contributed to the campaign of your opponent, Judge Wood, but let's let by-gones be by-gones.'"

Check for $1,100. "We will show that Mr. Hudson, a friend of Mr. Holcomb, told Congressman Wheelchel to 'go ahead and support the Holcomb boy; your friends would like it.'"

"We will show that later on Christmas Day, Mr. Holcomb came to see Mr. Wheelchel and said, 'The boy I talked to you about got a job but I have another boy and would like you to appoint him in the place of my first boy.' To this Congressman Wheelchel replied, 'I won't draw any distinction between your two boys. I'll go ahead with the recommendation if you want it.'"

"We will show that the first time Mr. Wheelchel ever heard any money was when Grady Jones presented him with a check for $1,100.

"Frank said, 'Grady, that's a lot of money.' 'Yes,' said Grady, 'it's a lot but he wants you to take it.'"

"We will show that Holcomb originated the idea about the contribution and once thought of making it as much as $1,500."

"Next, about the Grogan matter, we will establish that friends of Congressman Wheelchel—his political friends—wanted him to appoint Grogan. True, Grogan met Wheelchel over at Cumming, but nothing was said about money, but the congressman agreed to recommend his appointments as soon as he returned to Washington."

"It was after this that Grogan wanted himself to make a contribution and he asked Jones how much Holcomb had contributed, and Grady Jones said $1,100."

"And Grogan told Jones: 'I can do as much as Holcomb.'"

"Grogan asked Jones to send $1,100 to Congressman Wheelchel for his campaign and Jones told him, 'Don't you see, I can't do it. I don't have the money.' And Grogan replied that he didn't know the congressman well enough but Grady Jones said, 'No, I don't get anything out of this, I even have to put the postage stamp on the letter myself.'"

"So Grogan sent the $1,100 himself, and when Congressman Wheelchel received it he was as much surprised as you would be."

"Now gentlemen of the jury, when we prove these facts, we will ask you to give us a verdict of not guilty."

Mention of Grogan recalled that in Wednesday's session District Attorney Camp read to the jury the complete testimony of Jones before the grand jury in Atlanta which returned the indictments, testimony which went into alleged payment of checks by Hulon Holcomb, a witness Wednesday, to Jones and to the many alleged meeting places on country highways between Jones, Wheelchel, Paul Grogan and others involved in testimony.

Roy Redd, who lives near Cumming, was the first witness then called. He told of meeting with Wheelchel in company with Brooks and that there was no financial consideration for the recommendation for the appointment of Harris as the Ball Ground postmaster.

When the suggestion of a campaign contribution was made to Congressman Wheelchel, the witness said, the congressman replied, "Well, no, I don't accept contributions."

10 Per Cent Rise In Beauty Costs If Bill Passes

Measure Calls for Fixing of Working Hours and Prices.

Patrons of Atlanta beauty shops will pay approximately 10 per cent more to keep pretty if city council Monday approves recommendations made yesterday by council's ordinance committee.

The committee agreed to submit a measure to establish a three-member board of beauticians to establish working hours and minimum prices in the city.

Emeric H. Chenel, national representative of the Associated Master Barbers and Beauticians of America, Chicago and Boston, read the proposed new ordinance to the committee, and explained that projected price increases would aggregate about 10 per cent.

The board will be similar to the barbers' ordinance, passed more than a year ago, and which has been in operation.

Representatives from the Association of Master Beauticians of Atlanta and the Atlanta Hair Dressers' Association urged approval of the measure.

A caption explains that the ordinance is to be enacted to establish "fair competition," and is "enacted in the interest of public health, public safety and general welfare."

"Unfair demoralizing and uneconomic competition results in price cutting limiting and preventing safe and healthful service," another sentence points out.

The board would fix prices and hours with the approval of council after the board is named by Mayor Hartsfield, under provisions of the measure. Board members are authorized to force compliance, and violation is punishable with fines ranging from $25 to $100, and/or 30 days in jail. Each 24-hour violation will constitute a separate offense.

There are from 225 to 350 beauty shops in Atlanta, according to an estimate by Chenel.

On motion of Alderman L. O. Moseley, author, the committee withheld action on an ordinance which would have barred distribution of free samples of merchandise and advertising circulars in downtown Atlanta. He said he will redraft the measure to eliminate objections which had been called to his attention.

Ordinance committee members recommended repeal of an old ordinance prohibiting erection of advertising signs other than those made of metal in the inner limits of the city. Councilman Howard Haire urged the action.

Theater Stages 700 Shows for China's Benefit

San Francisco Orientals Are Charmed by Quan Ying Lin.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—(AP)—For more than 700 nights straight, they have kept the footlights burning in Chinatown here for Chiang Kai-Shek's cause over there.

It is probably an American record for theater benefit performances, and the end seems as far away as when it began.

The prize attraction at these performances at the Mandarin theater is Quan Ying Lin, a China girl with a hip-swaying walk, who thinks sex is something subtle.

Foils Villains.

Seven nights a week, she slips into and out of the clutches of various villains, proving to the satisfaction of her Chinese admirers that the ancient virtues are valid and that good deeds are rewarded.

The Mandarin theater, where she draws capacity crowds, is the largest Chinese playhouse outside of China, and the principal entertainment center for San Francisco's 19,000 Chinese. Its operators, since a short time after the Chinese war started, have been giving a part of each night's receipts to the Chinese war relief fund.

Miss Quan's daily routine is such that by comparison the hard-working leading lady of Broadway or Hollywood leads the life of a sluggard.

She not only works seven nights a week, 52 weeks a year, but she appears in a different play each night. That means 366 separate roles this year. The show starts nightly at 7 o'clock and lasts until midnight—five hours without an intermission.

The management doesn't make up the program very far ahead. This requires her to memorize 30 to 50 plays in advance.

Disdain for Broadway.

It might seem like anyone who could do this and thrive on it—she has just been signed to her third one-year contract at the Mandarin—would have Hollywood hopes or Broadway desires. But that isn't the case.

In fact, she said, if she ever were coaxed to New York, she likely would play it for a one-night stand.

"There aren't enough people there—Chinese people, I mean," Miss Quan explained.

"My Broadway is in Canton, and when I say I want to play in the provinces, I mean Kwangtung and the rest of South China. It helps my reputation there for me to play in San Francisco, but it wouldn't do anything for me to say in Canton that I had played in New York."

Ellis Arnall Commended By Lawyers in Hartwell

Attorney General Ellis Arnall, the first candidate to qualify for the September 11 primary, has been commended in a resolution adopted by the Hartwell Bar Association.

In praising the "efficient and successful administration" of Arnall, who is seeking re-election, the Hartwell association commended him "to the citizenship of Georgia a faithful public servant in whom we have the utmost confidence."

The resolution was signed by A. S. Skelton, Gray Skelton, John B. Morris, C. D. Skelton, W. L. Bailey, T. S. Mason, G. C. Hayes, Hugh Skelton and James T. Cochran.

Achilles' Commander Appointed Commodore

WELLINGTON, N. Z., May 2.—(AP)—Captain William Parry, commanding the cruiser Achilles, the first warship to engage the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee in the battle last December off the coast of Uruguay, today was appointed commodore of the New Zealand naval division and the first member of the naval board.

A Novelty in International Law

An interesting test of the aerial blockade theory is imminent if the British and French governments persist in their announced determination to impose blockade conditions on neutral air routes not under their control, such as Pan-American's trans-Atlantic service.

Pan-American has been able to balk British contraband inspection by flying direct to the Azores islands and thence to Lisbon, in Portugal. As long as the Clippers had to stop at Bermuda, they came under the guns and the censorship of the British.

Since the change in the route, the British have been fretting about the supposed amount of contraband slipping through the loophole, although it must be small in comparison to the amounts being sent through other means and from other countries. They have pondered ways and means of accomplishing an aerial blockade, a novelty in international law heretofore only enforced by the Japanese method of shooting down any suspicious sky voyager, then asking questions, and apologizing later.

Theoretically and legally, under Hague convention XI, article 1, an airplane carrying mail is not immune from visit and search in the same manner as a surface vessel. Actually, however, and in the absence of details of the Allied plan, it must be assumed there would be involved grave dangers which this nation would have to protest and oppose with something more than the gentle remonstrances that have been Britain's lot thus far in this war.

It is unthinkable that the Portuguese government would permit contraband search which would violate its sovereignty; that is, permitting search in Lisbon harbor. It, therefore, would be necessary for British planes to force down the Clippers at sea for inspection, or by threat and force to divert them to Gibraltar or to Bermuda. This could not be accepted by the United States.

It appears the Allies are planning to take risks that would be too costly for the results to be accomplished. In a situation such as that which existed at Bermuda the United States could not in good faith make strong protest, since the principle of inviolability of mails was modified by this nation and the Allies during the World War on the premise that blockade permitted examination of private mails to determine whether or not they actually were inviolable. But if the Allies by other means attempt to violate the neutral rights of this country and subject American vessels or aircraft to danger, then the protest should be sharp and unmistakable and some form of immediate retaliation adopted, which legally would be permissible.

For a change of pace, how about wheeling Babe Goering into some neutral country, and having the Trojan horse come out?

Nothing Impossible

Anything can happen here when the daffy Dodgers crank off the baseball season with nine straight wins and an erstwhile has-been, up on trial, rises to the bait with a no-hit, no-run victory to put the icing on the cake of victory. It isn't that the Dodgers are a great team. Individually there isn't a genius in the crew. Collectively, however, they seem to have absorbed some of the rabid sportsmanship of the Bushwick fans, of which there is no whither, and to have set out full sail to play the Yanks in the World Series this fall, willy-nilly. They may be disappointed in meeting the Yanks, for at this writing the Ruppert Rifles are sand-clogged. Of course, Brooklyn might not even win the National League pennant, but the team that does will know there has been a ball club around, a club playing "full out" and with all the enthusiasm of old college try.

And wasn't it Bill Terry who several years ago asked if Brooklyn was still in the league, as though surprised? Wonder if he'll be quoted on that subject now? Or has his mama told him speech is silver but silence is golden?

Unlike the famed tower of Pisa, it is believed the Duce could lean either way.

The boys who try to beat the fast freight to the crossing must keep trying. Think of the scrap iron we must sell Japan if she is to build these super-warships to worry us.

Hal M. Stanley

There was a story in the news columns of Wednesday, announcing the retirement of Hal M. Stanley, for 28 years head of the industrial compensation department of the state.

Retired from official office Hal Stanley may be, but there can be no retirement in influence for social betterment, for kindness and for human understanding for the man who is known and loved by so many thousands of his fellow Georgians. For the life of a man such as he knows no retirement in service to his fellows so long as it shall last and, even after life is done, the memory of his personality continues its beneficent influence.

It was in 1911 that Hal Stanley ran for the then newly created state post of commissioner of commerce and labor. He won, and he has continued to win in every succeeding election—in most of them he wasn't opposed, for all would-be candidates knew that to run against Hal Stanley and expect victory was to dream of the impossible.

When he took office there was but slight understanding of the basic principles of workmen's compensation or other of the social reforms that have come with later years. There were, of course, important duties of the office to be fulfilled, but it was not until 1919 that the Georgia legislature, chiefly inspired by Mr. Stanley himself, enacted a compensation act for injured workmen.

Since that day the state has gone steadily forward in this branch of service to victims of misfortune. Forever the record of this state in this activity will be impressed with the personality of the father of the idea, Hal Stanley.

Hal Stanley began life as a newspaper worker. As owner of the Dublin Courier he installed, in 1898, the first linotype to be used by a southern weekly. He has been, for almost a score of years, the executive director of the Georgia Press Association. It is, perhaps, but natural that the warmest friends he has won through the years have been newspaper people and that, now that his time for retirement has come, he should think first of them. He said, leaving office at the capitol, he hoped he'd be able to get around more in the newspaper offices.

If he does, the newspapermen folks of Georgia will see, in his retirement from office, a direct benefit to themselves.

Boston Is Alarmed!

It is difficult not to regard with open-eyed wonder the mental astigmatism that affects human beings so they oppose expenditure of $10,000,000 for government-constructed and locally-operated hospitals in sections of the country where such facilities are not available and are seriously needed. The federal taxation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce is lobbying the senate against an appropriation under the bill sponsored by Senator George and Senator Wagner for the building of these institutions.

In the eyes of the Boston Chamber this would constitute "the opening wedge for a major infringement of states' rights by the government in the matter of national health." The members rise in wild-eyed alarm at a plan whereby the hospitals, to be built in rural sections, would be constructed by the government and turned over to local groups for operation, as though it would be a violation of states' rights to save human lives!

The fact is few of the hospitals, if any, would be necessary in the rich vicinity of Boston. So, with no conception of the need elsewhere, the Bostonians constitute themselves a committee to block the appropriation under the feeble guise of defending states' rights, a pure subterfuge.

Editorial of the Day

PROTEST FROM THE HOUSE

(From the New York Times.)

Even most of those who feel that the Logan-Walter bill may not represent the ideal solution for the problem that it attacks must welcome the overwhelming vote of the house in its favor. For the vote demonstrates that congress has finally lost patience with a group of administrative boards and agencies that have taken the bit in their teeth, assumed functions and powers not contemplated in the acts creating them, made autocratic, arbitrary and unfair rulings, harassed citizens without effective check, and sometimes shown an implied contempt for congress itself. It may be true as some critics have declared, that the Logan-Walter bill proposes to do with an ax what ought to be done with a surgeon's knife; but as most of these critics have hitherto supplied no help in fashioning such a knife, or even shown any active recognition of the need for one, the threat of an ax may be just what the situation calls for.

The Logan-Walter bill is said to affect some 130 federal agencies and bureaus. Detailed study would probably show that most of these, in the greatest part of their work, conscientiously strive to keep within their authority and to make reasonable rulings and fair decisions. It may be true that the Logan-Walter bill, in its present form, would unduly hamper the work of some of these well-behaved bureaus and agencies. It is certainly true, on the other hand, that the bill would not prove sufficient in itself to cure some of the major evils of administrative government in recent years, which spring from vague, excessive or unwieldy delegations of power by congress. These can be cured only by a re-examination of some of the major laws passed in recent years and a careful redefinition of administrative authority, and discretion in each case.

When all this is said, there remains a strong general case, in the words of the house committee majority, for "a uniform procedure for administrative determinations and for judicial review thereof to see that the administrative agencies remain within the terms of the law." This is what the Logan-Walter bill attempts to supply. For the sake of simplicity, and because private citizens should know their rights and how to protect them, administrative procedure should be made as reasonably uniform as special conditions and tasks permit. If there are to be exceptions to this uniformity, the burden of proof ought to be on those seeking the uniformity but on those demanding the exceptions.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE THIRD TERM AND TEXAS WASHINGTON, May 2.—In mid-March your correspondents reported a prediction of the New Dealers managing the third-term movement that by "May there would not be an independent Democratic candidate left in the field." May is now at hand, and the prediction has not come quite true.

But of the two remaining independents, Postmaster General James A. Farley is almost openly aiming at second spot on a ticket headed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. And Vice President John N. Garner has just been forced to make large concessions to the third-termers in his own home state of Texas. Thus, considering that they are supposed to rank political amateurs, the New Dealers can claim a pretty high percentage of prophetic accuracy.

The truth is that the Texas deal between the third-termers and Garnerites, which was personally superintended by the President, knocks the remaining stuffing out of the stop-Roosevelt Democrats. The deal is that the Texas delegation will be split three ways, one-third 100-proof Garnerites, one-third 100-proof Rooseveltites, and one-third moderates. The delegation will give the Roosevelt policies a thumping public endorsement. And by a secret clause it is reliably reported that, if the President decides to run, the delegation will cast their votes for him after a courtesy vote for Garner. As the Texas Garnerites were expected to lead the anti-third-term demonstration at the convention, the significance of the deal is easy to grasp.

ANGRY AT GARNER At the same time, too much attention should not be paid to the New Dealers' pardonable shouts of glee over the President's intervention in Texas and Garner's setback. The New Dealers' interpretation of the new development is that, barring Jim Farley's possible self-association, all arrangements for an irresistible draft are now complete. They say that the President's part in the matter inevitably means that he is going to accede to the draft.

Leaving out the effectiveness of Jim Farley's opposition, which may be considerable if it materializes, there seems to be no reason why the New Dealers' insistence on the President's readiness to run should yet be accepted. Contrary to common report, he has very recently stated that he did not wish to do so, and his confidants in this instance were members of the New Deal group. Furthermore, his intervention in Texas appears to have been motivated as much by anger with Garner as by a desire to further his own cause.

WIRTZ GOES TO TEXAS The rather complex story really begins with the Wisconsin and Illinois primaries, in which Garner was entered against the President. Before the Wisconsin and Illinois voting the well-financed Garner organization appeared to have an unshakable hold on the Texas delegation, which is chosen by a machine-dominated caucus and convention system. When the returns of the two primaries were in, however, the third-term movement assumed, among politicians at least, a bandwagon speed which tended to shake the Texas delegation loose from Garnerite control.

Observing these symptoms, Mayor Maury Maverick, of San Antonio; Mayor Tom Miller, of Austin; Representative Lyndon Johnson, Undersecretary of the Interior Alvin Wirtz and other Texan New Dealers began to think of making a fight for a third-term endorsement in Texas. But when they urged a fight on the President, he told them he wanted no part of it.

Then he was shown documents and other evidence of the character of the Garner campaign in Wisconsin and Illinois, which was extremely bitter and highly personal in its attacks on the President. This angered him; his warm feelings were by no means cooled by the Wisconsin sudden assault on the Hull trade agreements program in the senate. House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones, who had had a part in his previous decision to leave Texas alone, again pleaded with him not to carry the fight into Garner's home state. But the Texan New Dealers voiced the opposing view, and the President agreed. Two weeks ago he authorized Wirtz to take a leave of absence to go down to Texas and see how things stood.

Wirtz actually opened a campaign headquarters, and was getting some response from the local politicians when Rayburn intervened, wiring both him and the Garner manager, Myron Blake, that they ought to get together. They did so, arranging the deal for the delegation in a long talk, the results of which were reported to and approved by the President before being announced. Thus the third-termers march onward, with but one problem bothering them—whether the President will go along.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

Really, It's Confusion!

A most charming young lady came to call on me. One of those stunning brunettes, with eyes as sparkly, lips well stuck and toes of her hose peeping not-so-demurely out of the hole in the prow of her shoes. Though the thing she wore stuck at some precarious angle, her head was an absurd misnomer for a hat, there was a sense of aggressive intelligence in her manner, her conversation. The sort of girl who divides her time between seeing that her decorative values are maintained and in championing some thoroughly worthy, though maybe overwhelming, cause.

This young lady wanted to interest me in "Youth Week," which, unless the natural bedazzlement of her presence overly confused me, is the current week. And I thought of all the young folks who have grown discouraged because they couldn't find employment. Of all the disillusionment which later years has brought to too many of the eager graduate crops. And I was interested in "Youth Week." A great believer in youth and one who sees in the fresh enthusiasm that youth brings each year, to inject into the stiffening arteries of a stumbling world, the sole hope of ultimate regeneration for man, that's your silhouette.

Then, I Went Home.

However, after the interview with the entrancing brunette, I went home and, in the course of an evening, listened to several radio programs. And I learned, from the words of a most erudite and appealing commercial announcer, that his particular sponsor-product of the moment, a milk, was extremely interested in this week because it is, he said, "National Baby Week."

Now, I thought I, that is carrying Youth Week a trifle too far, know young men and young women who could properly be classed as "youth," who might resent that description "babies."

How Many Weeks to the Year?

We were taught, when I was eligible for Youth Week participation, that there are 52 weeks to each year. But that theory seems, nowadays, to be outmoded and forgotten by every one save installment collectors and the guy who signs the weekly pay checks. Nowadays there must be several hundred weeks to each year, at least.

It is impossible to enumerate the special weeks we are called upon to observe. But I'll bet something substantial that, if you could only compute all the special weeks proclaimed, observed and celebrated in all the towns, cities, counties, states—as well as the nationally observed weeks—would run into four figures for a year's total.

It is impossible to avoid overlapping in such a condition. You can't help having "Less Noise" week coming smack in the middle of "Start the Whistles Blowing" week, while "Abate the Smoke Nuisance" can't keep off the heels of "Keep the Home Fires Burning" week.

But it does seem to me a shame that "Youth Week" and "Baby Week" should run concurrently. For it isn't fair to the celebrators of either one.

Imagine the confusion possible! Here's a crowd of earnest and intent young people, determined to solve all the problems of the age, overnight, taking a wrong turning and arriving at a "Baby Week" rally. As a result they have to imbibe gallons and gallons of patented milks and other infant foods and listen to inspired spinster lectures on the upbringing of better babies.

Not that there might not be a worthwhile suggestion for some of the youth enthusiasts in that, at that.

Pity the Real Babies. On the other hand, suppose some genuine infants are taken, by mistake, to some Youth Week rally. Judging by some of the reports they're apt to come home wearing red diapers and begin lisping "Statin" even before they learn the trick of "Da da."

And imagine a life made familar with problems of all sorts and types, before they have reached the age of 12 months, just because the baby, seeking "Baby Week" headquarters, wandered into a "Youth Week" rally. There are untold tragic possibilities.

Now, for one, I've a weakness for babies. Both those whose age is numbered by months and those of 18 or 19 or 20 years or so. I like my babies, specially the delinquents, at either age and whether they be blonde, brunette or red-head.

But I do think it a shame to mess up National Baby Week with such a problem-filled stirring around as Youth Week. Don't you?

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today

From the news columns of Monday, May 3, 1915:

"London, May 2.—The American oil tank steamer Gulfight, which sailed from Port Arthur, Texas, April 10, for Rouen, France, was torpedoed at noon Saturday off the Scilly Islands, according to a Central News dispatch today."

And Fifty Years Ago

From the news columns of Saturday, May 3, 1890:

"The monthly report of the whipping boss at Rising Fawn camp was received yesterday. There are fifty-eight convicts at work there. It might interest northern philanthropists to know that not a single whipping was done during the month."

A Hoax Of Long Ago

NEW YORK, May 2.—The name of Sanford Jarrell over a small fiction story in the New York Daily News recalls a mischievous exploit of long ago, and prompts me to suggest that the author of the hoax has suffered too much for a feat the general like of which committed by Edgar Allan Poe has been honored with a place in American literature.

On August 16, 1924, the New York Herald Tribune published in the lead position an exclusive story about a mysterious joy-boat of 15,000 tons which was lying about 15 miles off Fire Island, aboard which Long Island millionaires and pretty playthings of the idle rich were drinking intoxicating beverages and discomfiting themselves with the utmost abandon by night. It was an eyewitness story by Sanford Jarrell, who had been assigned to the job on an office tip, and who after two days' search along the coast had confirmed the report.

Describing the ship as a "playground of the rich and fast," Mr. Jarrell went on to say that, although the vessel's name on bow and stern had been painted out, her silverware and linen were marked with the name of the Friedrich der Grosse, a former North German Lloydier.

"A Negro jazz orchestra," said he, "furnishes the music to which millionaires, flappers and chorus girls out of work whirl on a waxed floor with the tang of salt air in their lungs."

"Shifty" Vessel

The bar "was heavily manned," the "cuisine was excellent," drinks "of every conceivable character" were on sale, and yachtsmen from the Hamptons were in the habit of going out there to anchor by and climb aboard for revels which were de luxe.

"This boat," Mr. Jarrell wrote, "is neither rumor nor fiction. The writer passed Thursday night aboard it. He admitted, however, that it was 'quite a feat to reach the particular spot in the Atlantic' where the 'joy-giving' steamship lay, for she was as 'shifty as an Arab guide,' and very often she took a cruise, 'generally at the expense of some millionaire.'"

Mr. Jarrell provided a follow-up story which was rather pallid by comparison, for he had given his all to the original smash, and the day after that the United States coast guard, which at that time was as corrupt as the Kansas City police department ever was under Tom Pendergast, was assigned to hunt the vessel down.

A Rival's Satire

Meantime Mr. Jimmy Simms, on the Morning Telegraph, had been writing a hilarious satire on the hoax, and after one week the Herald Tribune, with great piety and a tone of outrage, suggesting a D. A. R. who has been called "toots" by a member of the Workers' Alliance, washed its hands of Mr. Jarrell and his exclusive story.

Mr. Julian Mason was managing editor and Mr. Dwight Perrin, city editor, and both had been basely imposed on by a trusted reporter; nobody in the Herald Tribune had ascertained from Lloyd's whether there was any ship of 15,000 tons whose whereabouts could not be precisely accounted for. Ships that large do not travel about like tramps.

Mr. Jarrell was dismissed and went his way. He has been wearing an abstruse suspended from his neck ever since. He is heard of now here, now there, and the Sanford Jarrell whose little fiction story appeared in the Daily News is living in San Francisco.

Bigger Than Fake

May I say that Mr. Jarrell's invention was no fake, mere fake, but something bigger and grander, and call attention to the fact that when a prank of this kind becomes a hoax it acquires a dignity and merit of its own. Mr. Poe's fraud about the balloon which crossed the Atlantic was perpetuated under much less difficult conditions, for there was no instantaneous communication over long distance then, but it is kept in the jewel case of literary journalism as a sort of gem, and the world has thought no less of Poe.

Other hoaxes of journalism are preserved and respected, including one about a trip to the moon and another about the escape of all the wild animals from the New York zoo, but this one, because it occurred in time when hoaxing was out of fashion, has never been respected, although, as an achievement, considering the difficulties, it was much more worthy. It was historic in New York.

As a fictioneer Mr. Jarrell, if this be the same who hoaxed the Herald Tribune, should do well, and this is by way of proposing that if he be the same the San Francisco Press Club look him up and as is their wont, honor him with one of those dinners by which they generously recognize extraordinary feats by members of the craft.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

MR. BRADLEY'S HOSS Mr. E. R. Bradley's hosses must have names which begin with "B." This is just an idiosyncrasy of Mr. Bradley's. He wants it that way. Otherwise, his favorite hoss, Bimelech, which is to run tomorrow in the Kentucky Derby, would have been named Abimelech, an old Biblical name. They just dropped the "A."

There are four Abimelechs mentioned in the Bible. It is thought the name probably was the official title for the Philistine kings, just as the kings of Egypt were known as Pharaoh.

If I were in Louisville and out at the Downs, I would ask Mr. Bill Hurley, the trainer of the hoss, just why they named him after one of the Abimelechs. They were rather tough customers, taking them by and large. Maybe that's the reason.

One of them got reported because he took Sarah, Abraham's wife, and put her in his harem. A dream warned him and he returned the young lady. This was at Gerar.

Another Abimelech, son of the former, also at Gerar, was a kind sort of gentleman. In a time of famine, Isaac came to his court and, fearing his wife might be taken from him, announced her as his sister. He was discovered but escaped with a mild rebuke.

A third Abimelech was the son of Gibeon, the judge. His mother was a concubine. Assisted by her relatives, this Abimelech killed 70 sons of Gibeon at Orphrah in order to be made king. He lasted three years and was driven out. A thousand men and women were burned to death in defending the tower.

The city was sowed with salt. Abimelech moved on. Fighting at another town, he was injured when a woman dropped a millstone on his head. Not wishing to die because of a wound inflicted by a woman, he asked his armor bearer to slay him. This the gentleman did. Gladly, no doubt.

There doesn't seem to be any hint as to how all this will assist the Colonel in winning the Kentucky Derby. But Bimelech will start the favorite.

COLONEL E. R. BRADLEY Colonel Bradley, owner of Florida's swankiest and straightest gambling house, as well as owner of the famous Blue Grass horse farm, properly is a respected person. He is honest.

Some years ago he was called before a senate investigating committee. They had spent some months assembling evidence to prove that Colonel Bradley was a gambler. Not without reason they expected him to state his occupation as a breeder of horses. He has won more Kentucky Derbies than any other owner.

"What is your occupation, Colonel Bradley?" asked the investigator.

"I am a gambler, sir," said the Colonel.

"What do you bet on, Colonel?"

"Anything. Even as to how many crows will light on a post."

So, that was that. The Colonel is the last of a type. He went prospecting in the last of the wild west, saw some Indian fighting, was a part of the last western frontier camps.

He is, while living, a legend in Kentucky. Each year he holds a race meet and donates the proceeds to charity. No one has ever had reason to doubt or question his word.

At any Kentucky Derby the Bradley entry gets a heavy play. He is never the sentimentalist. The hoss reporters was sentimental and weaves all sorts of pretty sentiments about the Colonel and his Blue Grass farm.

The Colonel smiles. He is a gambler. He backs his horses.

ASSET OR LIABILITY?

A week back the city editor and the sports editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal indulged in a debate. The subject was the Derby. The question was, "Resolved, that the Kentucky Derby is a liability to Louisville." The sports editor took the negative and the city editor the affirmative.

Both made out good cases and they each went a half column to no decision.

The city editor contended that Louisville was overcrowded for the day that no legitimate business benefited except hotels, restaurants and bars, while all other business suffered. The city was left with a tremendous street-cleaning bill. The city also was put to tremendous expense for extra policing. Also that most of the money spent left Louisville.

The sports editor argued that the visitors spent much money in Louisville. He pointed out the extra help hired for the week, the money for feed and supplies at the track, the money spent and put into circulation in Louisville, and the advertising given the city.

It was a no-decision bout. Both were right.

The Kentucky Derby, backed by more than 60 years of running, has caught the fancy of The Fancy. Persons go there who never go to any other horse race. The lice of the race horse world gather there more than at any other big race. And, of course, some of the lice remain and give a little trouble.

The race horse business is a gambling game. Nothing else at all. But a big race such as the Derby does provide a two-minute thrill that is worth the experience. At least once.

Nothing Encourages a Common

Plug Like Seeing Another

Plug Win

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

This is the story of the Jones brothers of Texas.

They lived on a farm and walked three miles to a school in town. And snobbish town kids made fun of them, for they were as hicky as hicks could be. Nature had done little for them, and the, did nothing to improve her work. They were awkward and splay-footed and slouchy. They always needed a haircut; their shapeless clothes always seemed a few sizes too small; and they were usually dirty. They earned about tooth brushes and the cleaning of finger nails. Home environment made their speech vulgar and their grammar bad. In short, they were hopelessly common and trashy.

Like other farm boys of their time, they thought all merchants were rich, and the height of their ambition was to own a store in town.

Their education ended before they finished high school, and in their early twenties they moved to town and became merchants. Though the field was crowded, they made a little money by reason of their two outstanding virtues.

BISHOP HAYGOOD WAS NO ABOLITIONIST

Editor Constitution: I wish to correct the statement in a news story in the paper last Monday that my grandfather, Bishop Atticus Greene Haygood, was an abolitionist.

While Rev. Atticus Greene Haygood was in Sparta, Hancock county, Georgia, as pastor, he was nominated by Colonel Thomas W. Thomas to Governor Joseph E. Brown as chaplain in the 15th Georgia regulars. The Governor promptly appointed him, in 1861. He carried an affidavit from the clerk of the superior court in Sparta, dated July 24, 1861, stating "that Rev. Atticus G. Haygood, the bearer of this, is a loyal citizen of this county, and attached to the government of the Confederate States of America." Ref. pp. 76, 77, "Atticus Greene Haygood," by Dempsey.

On page 96 of the above book is a letter to his wife, written September 25, 1861, in Vice President Stephens' room in Richmond, Virginia.

On pages 187-188 is some poetry sent to his wife, written by A. G. H., near Fairfax county, Virginia, October 26, 1861, on pocket. His baby boy, Paul, died while he was in Virginia. He was 22 years old at this time.

On page 191, abstract from history of the class of 1885, Emory College: "The people of Georgia have learned with regret that Dr. Haygood has resigned the presidency of Emory College. The best years of his life have been spent in rebuilding this institution, which, like every similar one in the south, at the close of the war was financially wrecked. For years Dr. Haygood taught and wrote and spoke in the interest of Emory. His labors were Herculean. Few men could have endured the work he performed in the promotion of the interest of the college. There were fewer still who would not have abandoned in despair the purpose he pursued with such hope and courage, in the face of difficulties and disappointments that were often disheartening."

Dr. Haygood resigned the presidency in 1884 to become the first agent for the Slater Fund, for the education of the Negro. It will be noted that his first efforts were for the education of the young white men.

He refused to become a bishop when first elected, because he had not finished that task. He was elected bishop the second time in 1890.

Since he only became a bishop at that date, "Bishop Haygood" could not have been an abolitionist.

He could not have been one for a very simple reason: Abolition was an accomplished fact before he began his work for the Negro. His books on that subject were written in 1881.

I am proud of his work for that race, and for the young white women and men of the south, but I deeply resent his being called an abolitionist.

Also I am proud of his speeches and sermons immediately after the war, doing what he could to heal the breach.

LOUISE HAYGOOD TROTT, Decatur, Ga.

S. Lewis, president of the southeastern congress.

Resistance Gives Allies Edge in Blockading Iron, He Declares.

By WILLIAM L. WHITE.

PARIS, May 2.—(By Wireless) Largely because the Norwegian government had the courage to resist, the German occupation of Norway has turned out to be a costly blunder. Because of the nature of the country, it may be impossible to dislodge them from Oslo for many months.

But so long as England controls the seas, it is even less possible for the Germans to dislodge the Allies from those parts of the long Norwegian coast on which they have already landed.

And so long as the Allies hold even 50 miles of this coast, the Germans have lost the major objective of their whole Scandinavian campaign—namely, the safeguarding of the iron ore supplies, which formerly came by train from Swedish Lulea to Norwegian Narvik, and then to Germany down through neutral Norwegian waters.

Iron Mines Nearby.

And if the Allies are able to dislodge the Germans from the Narvik region and station a sizable force on the Swedish frontier at this point, within easy striking distance to the Swedish iron mines which they could occupy within a few hours if Germany attempted to invade Sweden from the south, they then have Germany's vital ore supplies completely at their mercy.

This is why control of Narvik is so much more important to both sides than the small question of which flag flies over the gray granite royal palace at Oslo. From the military and economic viewpoint, the other Norwegian cities are merely stepping stones to Narvik.

Unless she controls it, Germany's efforts to hold the other towns are a pointless waste of men and war materials. This is why Germany is being driven to the desperate expedient of attempting to reinforce and provision her force in the Narvik area by transport planes.

Striking a temporary balance in the Scandinavian struggle, we find that Germany, instead of having to contend with a few mine fields off the Norwegian coast, must now reckon with a sizable Allied army which is assembling within a few miles of those precious iron mines.

And Germany must not fight a war, or at least an extended campaign, on a sprawling front in which the normal means of communication between her various forces are controlled not by herself but by the British navy. And this entire situation was brought about by the courage of the Norwegian government and people in deciding to resist.

New Officers Installed By Phenix City Jaycees

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. COLUMBUS, Ga., May 2.—The Phenix City Junior Chamber of Commerce installed its officers last night, as follows: E. K. Garrett, president; Dr. O. L. Edwards and Charles Coulter, vice presidents; W. R. Fuller, executive secretary, and Leo Dennis, treasurer.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Just after I had written yesterday's column, relating the conversation about the Indian's reaction to the white man's noisy ways as compared with the Indian's love of solitude, my eyes fell upon this exquisite bit of verse, written by Jane Sayre:

In silence comes all loveliness—
The dawn is ever still;
No noise accompanies the dew
That glistens on the hill.

The sunrise slips up quietly,
The moon is never heard;
And love that animates the eyes
Surpasses any word.

And prayer is best in solitude,
It seems so very odd,
That, long before, I did not know
In silence I'd find God.

Ever and anon the words of Psalm 46:10 come to mind as we practice the presence of God: "Be still and know that I am God." One has only to test out this basic

Mid-West, Great Lakes Region Arena of Gains by Republicans

Largest Defection in Democratic Party Sentiment Since 1936 Shown by National Survey, But Slight Lead Is Still Held.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion. PRINCETON, N. J., May 2.—The largest defection in Democratic party sentiment since 1936, with corresponding Republican gains, has taken place in states of the midwest and Great Lakes region, judging by the results of national soundings of public sentiment by the American Institute.

While the Democratic party has a slight edge over the GOP throughout the nation in these studies, the gain in Republican sentiment ranges as high as 20 to 25 percentage points in some states.

The study is based on the answers of a cross-section of voters in all states to the question: "Which party would you like to see win the presidential election this year?"

When the results are compared state by state with the party vote in 1936, the following shifts are seen:

Garner Gives South 'Tip' on Presidency

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—Vice-President Garner, in a rare public address, told a dinner of Texas businessmen tonight that the people of the south never would elect one of their number President "until you have a candidate."

His listeners gave him a long round of applause.

Mr. Garner also was present and acknowledged an introduction with the smiling statement that "I am nothing but an abject little slave."

F. D. R. Names South Carolina Man for I. C. C.

George, Russell Hail Nomination of J. Monroe Johnson.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(P)—J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce since 1935, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Johnson, a native of Marion, S. C., who will be 62 next Sunday, was named to fill out the unexpired term of M. M. Caskey, of Alabama, who resigned. The term expires December 31, 1941.

Stephen T. Early, White House press secretary, said that more than 15 senators had urged the President to name to the commission a southerner who was familiar with the south's transportation problems. He said the Chief Executive felt he had obtained in Johnson a man with "a very good working knowledge of railroad problems" and one who is familiar with the south's problems.

Johnson telephoned his acceptance from Indianapolis.

Southern senators hailed Johnson's appointment as another victory in the south's campaign for lower freight rates. They said his South Carolina background would make him sympathetic to their cause.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat, South Carolina) termed it a "splendid appointment," and Senator Smith (Democrat, South Carolina) said Johnson would make "with his experience and ability, an active member of the commission."

Other comment included: Senator George (Democrat, Georgia): "He is a good, straight, honest man. I approve of the appointment."

Senator Bankhead (Democrat, Alabama): "It is a good appointment."

Senator McKellar (Democrat, Tennessee): "I am well pleased."

Senator Russell (Democrat, Georgia): "Colonel Johnson is a capable man, and I am sure he will be sympathetic to the south's problems."

Senator Hill (Democrat, Alabama): "It is a very excellent appointment. Colonel Johnson is of the highest character, fine ability and splendid background."

Senator Pepper (Democrat, Florida): "Of course, I am disappointed that a Florida man was not appointed. But Colonel Johnson's background will make him understand our transportation problems in the south."

WHAT'S THE HURRY?

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 2.—(UP)—The third district court of appeal reprimanded a lawyer because his briefs in an appeal action were six months overdue. "What's your hurry?" he asked. "This case has been in litigation for 20 years." A short extension time was granted.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 2.—(P)—A mother and two children burned to death today because the front door of their home had been nailed shut for the winter.

Mrs. Jack C. Harris, 48; Patricia Ann, 4, and Billy Dean, 12, were trapped in their home at an Adventist church colony south of here.

'20-Mule Team' Opens Run at Loew's Grand Theater Today

Actors Worked With Handicaps Making Movie

Troupe Hastened To Finish Film Before Heat Became Unbearable.

Baths at the lowest point below sea level in North America; weather changes one usually would not experience in the months scrambled into hours; roads that disappeared whenever it rained; Indians who took part of their wages in lollypops—such were the experiences of a motion picture company camped at Furnace Creek in the heart of Death Valley.

The troupe was working against time to finish its shooting before the weather became so hot in the valley as to be unendurable. It was working at the weather's most uncertain point, 279 feet below sea level, above which, paradoxically, towers snow-capped Telescope Peak, more than 11,000 feet high.

Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Noah Beery Jr. and other players were at work in "20-Mule Team," drama of the pioneer days when borax was hauled in high-wheeled wagons across the desert to Mojave. The new picture opens today at Loew's Grand theater. Original wagons, out of use a salt road over which the company had planned to work, CCC boys built them a new road. Weather was a continual problem.

TWENTY-MULE TEAM—An epic of the old days when mule-drawn wagons hauled borax across the desert is "20-Mule Team," which stars Wallace Beery as the old western muleskinner. The film opens today at the Grand.

In one day the company encountered frigid blasts, followed by heat waves and a dust storm, a cloudburst, then clear pleasant weather, all in a space of two hours. Beery boasted the lowest bathtub a human being ever used. It was five-foot hole in the ground at the valley's lowest point, which by seepage filled with a natural Epsom salts solution.

Two crates of lollypops were among the odd articles shipped to the company on location. They were used to pay the Indians in the valley when their houses were photographed. But when the Indians themselves were photographed, it was a cash transaction at 25 cents a picture. Leader among the Indians was Shoshone Johnny, 100 years old. He was for years the tribe's medicine man until he lost too many cases, whereupon the tribe decided his medicine wasn't strong enough and he was deposed. He remained with the picture company all day to listen to radios in studio cars.

One of the highlights of the trip was the filming of the longest continuous action sequence in film history. The camera trucks followed a mule team four miles, changing film every mile from an improvised darkroom on a truck. Clyde De Vinna, who has filmed pictures in Africa, the South Seas, the Arctic, and other far-flung localities, was the cameraman. He also operated a small radio set by which he contacted the studio at Culver City at night. In addition full telephone service, planes and cars kept the troupe in touch with Hollywood.

A portion of the old Tonopah and Tidewater railroad which once ran to Death Valley Junction, but recently went out of commission, was repaired and refitted, and one of the original trains, stored away in a Tonopah roundhouse, was brought out for scenes in the picture.

A trainload of camera equipment, lights, trucks and sound recording apparatus, horses, mules, wardrobe and other supplies transformed Furnace Creek inn, company headquarters, into a veritable studio. The development of American walking horses, currently most popular of all show horses, is shown in a technicolor short subject opening today at the Fox theater, brought at the special request of Atlanta horse lovers to coincide with the annual horse show today at North Fulton park.

Beginning with the wild horses and the Western mustang, the film shows how through crossbreeding the Southern plantation horse was developed to meet the demands of plantation owners needing a mount which could carry them around the large fields.

The plantation horse is the forerunner of the walking horses of today, for it is the "walking" gait which was developed for riding about the old plantations.

"PRIMROSE PATH"

It's a sizzler—it's a scorcher—it's a whiz! It makes her leave her slap-happy home, give her pigtails a "permanent," and jump off the dock—all in twelve delicious hours! It had to be great to start all the romantic ructions, comic complications, and family feuds of Ginger's most dramatic hit since "Stage Door." Better not miss it!

After Killing Jesse, Mosely Runs For the House. Jim Shoots Him

By William MacLeod Raine.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

"All right. Saddle the other horses. Let's get going. Be with you in a minute." Mosely wheeled back into the house.

"We got damned little time," Judson called in after him. They'll be here in three shakes of a cow's tail, likely a whole passle of them."

"Where do we go from here, boss?" Yeager asked.

"We get out, and take Silcott with us if we have time. Gag him, so he can't shout. They may crowd us." The voice of Mosely rasped like a file of iron. "If we have to stand 'em off before we get saddled, settle this bird's hash and come a-running to us."

"Nothing doing," Yeager flung back. "If you want him bumped off do it yourself."

"You fool, we've got to get rid of him to protect ourselves."

"That's your lookout. He don't mean a thing to me dead or alive."

The two men glowered at each other in the darkness. Mosely had no time to subdue rebellion now. He gave way.

"All right, you lunkhead, I'll take care of him myself. Watch him until I get back."

Those in the cabin could hear the sound of his running feet as he followed Judson to the hallow where the horses were picketed.

Yeager laughed heartily, with out mirth. "You've got the czar of the Powder Horn scared stiff, Red," he said. "My guess is he's near the end of his crooked trail."

"Yes," agreed Silcott. "Maybe I won't beat him across the divide long."

"You son-of-a-gun!" The Hat T man could not keep the admiration out of his voice. "Don't anything face you? He'll get you if it is the last thing he ever does."

"Unless he's too crowded for time," Jim said coolly. "You never can tell."

"Red, I give it to you." The cold eyes of the fat little man gleamed. "He's fixing to throw me down by putting the blame of this fool business on me. If he can."

By jumping Jupiter, I'll give you a break."

He crossed the room, fumbled with his fingers on the floor, and came back to the prisoner. "Here's a friend maybe you can use, Red."

Into Silcott's hand he thrust the revolver that had been taken from him a few hours earlier.

Yeager walked to the door and stood listening, his back to the man he had just armed. The night breeze carried a faint sound of riders traveling up the gulch.

"Yore friends, I reckon," the outlaw went on coolly. "Well, tell 'em I was in a hurry and for them to make themselves at home."

He vanished from the doorway. Jim heard the sound of his hasty departure.

Through Silcott's torn and aching body there beat the warm excitement of hope. The miracle had come to pass. He had a chance for his life. With a weapon in his hand he was no longer defenseless. Stiffly he pushed himself to his knees, got a foot on the floor, and raised himself painfully to a standing position. The walls at the corner braced his shoulders. He waited, ready for whatever might come.

In the hallow where the horses were picketed Judson was busy saddling a sorrel when Mosely joined him. "Better shake a leg," he said. "We ain't got no time to lose."

"You don't know that." The voice of the Hat T boss was harsh and strident, belying the assurance of his words. He knew the margin of safety was close. "Lamprey may stand 'em off. They can't know anything. All he has to do is put up a good bluff."

"Hmp! you know damn well they'll get it all outa him. He hasn't got the nerve of a louse."

Mosely slapped a saddle on a chestnut gelding and adjusted it to the blanket underneath. He reached under the belly of the horse for the cinch. Beneath his surface thinking ran the thought that all he had builded was crashing down. His scheming had come to nothing. The man lying in the cabin was the one who had frustrated all his hopes. From the first this reckless fool had bested him. The fellow had had the devil's own luck all the way through. A wild and bitter rage swept through Mosely. His enemies might drag him down, but this one would not live to laugh at him.

A man's feet pounded over the ground toward them. Yeager panted out a warning. "They're coming up the arroyo. Be here in four-five minutes. Maybe less."

Mosely gave orders, slapping out the words curtly. "Saddle bronc, Pete, and wait here. I've time at all. We'll cut across the hills and hit the road for home."

He finished cinching the chestnut, swung to the saddle and rode to the house. Before he reached it he heard riders.

Some one said up so close. "Boys! Don't hunch up so close. One of the men rode through the bush toward Mosely, who drew up his horse, wrist resting on the horn of the saddle with revolver ready for action.

The unknown rider jerked to a halt at sight of the Hat T man with an exclamation of alarm. He was in the moonlight, and on his face was stamped the panic that was sweeping him. Mosely knew him now. The man was Jesse Lamprey.

"So you threw us down," Mosely said, his voice cold and cruel. "After I warned you."

Lamprey had Caldwell's .45 in his hand, but it never occurred to him to use it. "Don't, Russ, don't!" he cried out. "I'll explain."

The gun of Mosely, held steady in its place above the horn of the saddle, roared an answer. Jesse caught at his belly with both hands and leaned forward over the neck of the horse. Slowly he slid to the ground, head-first.

Mosely wheeled the chestnut and dashed for the house. He swung from the saddle and strode into the house.

"Where are you, Silcott?" he cried hoarsely, glaring around in the darkness. "No use hiding. You're bucked out and headed for hell!"

Jim gave him one chance, though he knew he was a fool for doing it. The man, outlined in the moonlight, filled the doorway, a perfect target for his enemy waiting in the darkness.

"I'm here, Mosely, with a gun in my hand," Jim answered. "If you're wise—"

Mosely fired, blindly, in the direction of the voice. Before the echo of the shot had died Silcott flung his answer across the dark room. Mosely staggered, sent another bullet crashing into the wall, and a third through the roof. For Jim's second message had plowed into his heart. A moment he clung to the door post, his fingernails biting into the wood, then plunged forward to the floor.

Jim did not stir. He watched the prone figure to protect himself against any sudden movement. But the body lay there, slack and still. It would never move again.

Outside, a shout lifted. "Are you all right, Red?"

Silcott recognized the voice of Rufe Jelks. "All right," he called, and knew that somebody was dismounting. Leaving the supporting wall, he moved forward to the door. In the moonlight he saw Rufe running forward, a .45 in his hand.

The face of his friend was one wide grin of delight. "Boy—boy, thought they had got you this time. When I heard those shots inside—" Jelks caught him by the shoulder and started to pound him on the back.

"Don't!" yelled Silcott, and twisted away.

Rufe stared at him, looking into the darkness.

Jury To Close Study of County Affairs Today

Reports on All Government Phases Expected in Presentments.

A two-month probe of Fulton county government will come to a close today, when the grand jury makes its final presentments and is discharged by Judge Paul S. Etheridge.

Besides its investigation of all county government, the jury has conducted inquiries into floggings, revival of the lottery racket here, and charges of police brutality.

The presentments are expected to include reports on every phase of the operation of county government, and recommendations for improvements in those departments where the jurors feel changes are needed.

The grand jury spent yesterday completing work on the presentments and discussing county affairs with county commissioners. All five of the commissioners attended the session.

At noon, the grand jury was entertained at a barbecue at the county's dairy farm by Sid Truitt, county agricultural agent.

Short talks made by County Commissioners Troy Chastain and Dr. Charles R. Adams; Jere Wells, county school superintendent, and George Longino, former county commissioner. Other guests included Solicitor General John A. Boykin, Judge Robert Carpenter and Judge T. O. Hathcock.

Lewis F. Gordon, grand jury secretary, spoke for the grand jury and praised Truitt's operation of the farm.

U. S. Civilians To Give Alarm Of 'Air Raids'

Veterans To Aid Maneuvers; 9,000 To Scan Skies for 'Enemy.'

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., May 2.—(AP)—Middle-aged veterans of the World War, now mostly too old to fight, today scanned the skies to help Uncle Sam perfect a plan in which they would join to prevent an aerial blitzkrieg such as Poland suffered. Throughout five Southern states members of the American Legion, who volunteered for the task, today helped the United States army test its aircraft warning service which will be put into effect May 7-11 during the third army maneuvers west of here, bringing into "conflict" 70,000 regular army troops, largest ever assembled in peacetime.

Today's test, in which observers in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Florida took their posts, was designed to work out any defects in the plan to be used next week in which 9,000 volunteer civilian observers will man 1,600 observer stations in attempting to detect and turn back "enemy" aircraft trying to spot and halt the advance of defense troops moving to Louisiana from Fort Benning, Ga.

The plan will be the most extensive aircraft warning service ever organized in the history of the nation.

The plan calls for at least one trained observer in every 16 square miles of the vast territory over which enemy aircraft will operate. They will be mounted on hilltops, on fire patrol towers, in boats, on high buildings and other places affording good view, ready instantly to report to a control board in Montgomery, Ala., the number, speed, direction, type and altitude of any aircraft heard or seen.

Mrs. Ingram Dies Of Heart Attack

Stricken with a heart attack while taking a bath, Mrs. James J. Ingram was found dead in her residence at 888 Williams Mill road shortly before 9 o'clock last night.

A fire department rescue squad said the body apparently had lain submerged in the tub for nearly an hour before it was discovered by her son, James J. Ingram Jr., an honor student at Boys' High school, who found his mother when he returned from work at his father's filling station on Jonesboro road. No one else was in the house.

Mrs. Ingram also is survived by a brother, Allen Asher, and two sisters.

Former Macon Student Will Sail for War

Anniston Youth Joins American Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Eight Americans will sail tomorrow for France to form the Benjamin Franklin section of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, the organization's headquarters announced today.

The group will be the first contingent for the section of 22 ambulances, said James Wood Johnson, president of the corps. The main body of drivers and attendants will sail later this month.

It is the third section now operating in France and will go into active service on the western front June 10.

Among those sailing are Lee Price, 33, of Anniston, Ala., son of the Rev. William Franklin Price of Macon, Ala., and a former student of Mercer University at Macon, Ga., and S. Safford Young, 30, of Hampton Manor, Bowling Green, Va.

Students Meet In Contests on Athens Campus

High School Pupils Arrive for State Athletic, Literary Events.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., May 2.—Five hundred Georgia high school students arrived on the University of Georgia campus today for annual state literary and athletic meets. They will remain on the campus through Saturday.

Representatives from each of the 10 congressional districts who survived earlier competition, will participate in contests which include piano, reading, essays, declamation, debates, home economics, one-act plays and spelling.

Athletic events include the 100-yard dash, shot put, the 220, high jump, high hurdles, the 440, broad jump, pole vault, relay, discus, tennis and golf.

Competition will be in two groups: "B" schools with more than 125 enrollment and not more than 800, and "C" schools with less than 125 enrollment.

Five hundred additional high school students will arrive tomorrow for the annual meeting of the Georgia Scholastic Press Association at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism.

Rev. G. C. Stewart, 60, Noted Clergyman, Dies. CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP)—The Rev. George Craig Stewart, 60, Episcopal bishop of Chicago and one of the outstanding clergymen of America, died tonight after collapsing in his automobile.

He was taken to Burnside hospital, where a fire department rescue squad worked over him in a vain effort to revive him.

TO ADDRESS CLUB. Dr. Sam Guy, professor of chemistry at Emory University, will address the Piedmont Working Club at the Ellen Rice tea-room at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

CRUDUP IS SPEAKER. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 2. Dr. Josiah Crudup, of Mercer University, addressed the Milledgeville Kiwanis Club this week. He discussed "Time," explaining the connection with astronomy and astrology.

Mercury Drop To 38 Degrees Forecast Here

Warm Weather Expected To Follow Record-Equaling Cold.

Fair and warmer weather will return today after a record-equaling low early this morning, the Weather Bureau predicted last night.

Driven down yesterday by unexpectedly chill winds, the thermometer is expected to reach 38 before clear skies and a bright sun send it back to normal May readings this afternoon. The day's high is expected to be around 64 degrees.

Yesterday was one of the coldest May days ever recorded at the Weather Bureau office. The thermometer stood at 50 Wednesday midnight, and fell to 47 by 6 o'clock in the morning. It rose to 53 at 10 o'clock in the morning and then began to drop again. At 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon it stood at 48.

The lowest temperature ever recorded by the local office is 38, on May 7, 1898. The lowest maximum reading is 49, registered in 1883.

The unpleasant weather came suddenly, and Weather Bureau officials were as surprised by it as the general public. It was part, they said, of an unexpected change felt in a broad belt from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Thermometers dropped as much as 22 degrees in a few hours in northern cities, and from six to eight degrees in the south.

STATION ROBBER.

Two bandits, one armed with a shotgun, early yesterday entered the filling station of W. L. Farr at Marietta street and Howell Mill road, forced Farr into a back room and fled after taking $34.67 from the till.

Businessmen Hear Isolation Policy Attacked

Lewis W. Douglas Tells Chamber Peace Impossible If Allies Lose.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Business leaders from cities throughout the country heard Lewis W. Douglas decry a policy of "isolation" for the United States tonight, a short time after they had called upon the government to expedite further armament on a "pay-as-we-go" basis.

Douglas, the Roosevelt administration's first budget director, at a dinner ending the 28th annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared America's national interests were deeply involved in the outcome of the European war, and that it would be impossible to reconstruct a peaceful world if England and France were defeated.

The address of the former congressman and government official followed a business session at which the chamber, without debate, adopted a 24-point program proposed by its resolutions committee and elected James S. Kemper, of Chicago, president of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company, as its president for the coming year.

Fulton Building Activity Decreases During April

Building activity in Fulton county during April showed a decrease over the same month last year and the preceding month, according to Frank Eaves, county building inspector.

During April, 148 permits for $418,760 worth of construction were issued, while April last year 139 permits were issued for work totaling $444,988. In March, 1940, 140 permits were issued for $497,263 worth of construction.

Youths' Council Will Meet Today

A three-day session of the young people's council of the southeastern division of the Salvation Army will open here today. More than 400 delegates are expected.

The meeting, designed to "inspire and enthuse young people in work of the Salvation Army," will bring together boys and girls from 15 to 24 years of age.

The program will include finals in a southeastern speakers' contest; sectional council groups, a parade and reception at the state capitol, and an address by Lieutenant Commissioner William C. Arnold.

Follow the 4 to 1 Way for FINER HIGHBALLS

This is the 4-to-1 Way

The recommended mixture for an ideal highball is 1 part Seagram's "V.O." to 4 parts soda and ice (or use plain water and ice, if you prefer, in the same proportions).

To satisfy the growing demand for finer highballs, Seagram's "V.O." the finest of Canadian whiskeys, is now specially blended for use with soda. More delicate than ever, it has a unique compatibility with sparkling water.

If the occasion calls for a cocktail, Seagram's "V.O." is delicious in a Manhattan, Old Fashioned or Whisky Sour.

The Finest of Canadian Whiskeys

Seagram's "V.O." Canadian. Rare old blended Canadian whisky. Distilled, aged and blended under the supervision of the Canadian Government. This whisky is 6 years old, 86.8 Proof. Seagram-Distillers Corporation, Offices: New York.

Local Junior Leaguers Take Leading Roles at Conference

WHEN THE Association of Junior Leagues of America opens its 20th annual conference in Seattle, Wash., a week from Monday, Atlanta will not only be well represented, but an Atlanta member, Irene Williams (Mrs. Green) Warren, will be one of the conference leaders. As a member of the national board of directors, with complete jurisdiction over Region V, Irene will preside at the regional luncheon on May 16 and conduct a meeting of the 17 southern leagues comprising Region V. She will also lead two important ways and means meetings.

Delegates of the Atlanta League are Vaughn Nixon (Mrs. Malon) Courak, who was recently elected president, and Louise Moore (Mrs. Dan) Conklin, the new vice president.

Representatives from 150 Leagues of the United States, Canada, Hawaii and Mexico will meet for the conference, which has as its theme "The Junior League Today." This happens to be election year for the organization, and the nominating committee has returned the name of Mrs. George V. Ferguson, of Winnipeg, Canada, for president. The election is scheduled for the closing day of the conference, May 17.

One of the most interesting subjects coming up for discussion and one, incidentally, which indicates an important trend of the times, propounds the question, "Is the Woman of Leisure a Vanishing American?" Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck, executive secretary, will act as moderator, and delegates from all leagues will participate in true town-hall fashion.

Joining the Atlanta trio here for the trip across the continent will be Mrs. H. W. Holland, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who as the former Mailande Weems is well known here from frequent visits to Atlanta. Mrs. Holland is vice president of the committee on conferences in charge of planning the program.

WHEN Little Margaret Meriwether gave her first party yesterday, her youthful guests assembled in Mother Goose Land. The occasion was Margaret's third birthday and for the auspicious event her mother, Mrs. Charles Meriwether, arranged her rear garden at her Rumson road home to simulate the familiar haunts of story-book land.

In fact, the beloved characters of that magic make-believe world greeted the young guests when they arrived. There was Mother Goose astride her big goose, Polly-Put-the-Kettle-On; Humpty-Dumpty, the little boy who rode a cock horse to Banbury Cross, and the little girl with her big umbrella who sang "Rain, Rain, Go Away." Cardboard figures of the characters, three feet high, stood at the garden entrance, posed against the trees, and fairly entranced Margaret's guests.

Instead of hunting Easter eggs or peanuts among the flowers, the children searched for their favorite Mother Goose characters, which were depicted on small red cards. A gaily decorated basket was given each guest to hold the cards. And you should have seen the prize awarded for finding the greatest number of characters—a cunning woolly donkey attached to a string who bounced when you let him hit the floor.

Margaret's birthday cake held the proper number of candles, of course, and the ice cream was molded to resemble fluffy yellow chickens. Assisting Mrs. Meriwether in entertaining were the little honor guest's grandmother, Mrs. James L. Little; Mesdames Robert C. Hunt, William Benedict, Croom Partridge and Joe Hamilton.

WHEN Margie Nell Holcomb, of Gainesville, becomes the bride of Harry Byron Stevens III, of Atlanta, on Saturday, she will receive as a wedding gift from Harry a pin enveloped in sentiment and unique history. It is a Rosalind stone in the shape of a heart, surrounded by two rows of real pearls and interspersed with diamonds.

When Harry's aunt, the late Miss Nina Stevens, of New Orleans, was selected queen of the Comos hall of the Boston Club, she declined the honor and accepted, instead, from her father, the late Captain Harry Byron Stevens, and Mrs. Stevens (the former Nina Prudhomme, of Paris, France) this exquisite jewel. At Miss Stevens' death, she willed this pin to Harry's father, Harry Byron Stevens II, who presented it to Harry's mother (the former Alice Clark, of New Orleans) as a wedding gift.

On the maternal side, Harry is descended from Scotch and English nobility—the Whymys family (Americanized to Weems), of Scotland, and the Batchelors, of England. The original immigrant, Dr. William Cunningham Batchelor, was an English doctor and missionary to the Indians of Indian territory. He and his brother were two of the first thirty-third-degree Masons in this country. His great-grandfather was L. H. Weems, of St. Louis, who was one of the organizers of the Veiled Prophets, a prominent social organization of St. Louis. Harry is the grandson of Mrs. Clara Weems Clark and a nephew of H. H. Clark, of Atlanta.

Benefit Party.

The Auxiliary of Camp Tige Anderson, No. 1455, of United Confederate Veterans, will sponsor its annual benefit entertainment on May 10 at the Atlanta Woman's Club. An interesting program has been arranged by the chairman, Mrs. Mary G. Dobbs. Proceeds are used for the comfort and pleasure of the veterans of the camp and veterans in Fulton county. Members of John B. Gordon Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, will be ushers. The public is invited and tickets may be obtained at the door.

N. Y. University Alumni Organize

The local alumni of New York University met to establish an alumni club in Atlanta at a dinner meeting held Tuesday evening.

Officers elected were: President, Dr. Troy Bivins; vice president, Miss Dorothy Foster; secretary and treasurer, Clarence Westman. George Willingham was made chairman of meetings and other chairmen are: Publicity, Mrs. Oscar Strauss Jr.; scholarship, G. H. Mew; Miss Roberta Winter, Fred B. Wenn.

New York University was established in 1832, and is the largest university in the United States with a registration of 47,711 students, which is a larger student body than Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell and Dartmouth combined.

One of the most helpful angles in the establishment of the alumni club is the opportunity of receiving applications from worth students for a chancellor's scholarship, which is given to applicants, recommended by the alumni clubs, in any of the undergraduate schools. Interest is maintained in the club if and when these scholarships are awarded by watching the career of such a recipient of a scholarship. Notice of future meetings of the New York University alumni will be announced.

Sunev Chapter To Give Dance.

The Delta Sigma chapter of the Sunev sorority will give its annual formal dinner-dance this evening at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club. The banquet hall will be decorated in the sorority colors with red and white roses. Newly elected officers for next year will be announced, and dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. After the dance there will be a breakfast at the Colonnade.

Officers and their dates are: Paralee Akin, president, with Dick Forrest; Suzanne Stewart, vice president, with Bob Newbanks; Eunice Hazel, secretary, with Townsend Sugitt; Betty Jo Newbanks, treasurer, with Joe Mangum; Rose Mary Bates, sergeant at arms, with Bebe Savage.

Habersham Club Visits Gardens.

The Habersham Garden Club held a garden tour recently. The gardens visited were those belonging to Mesdames Charles Winship, John B. Horne, H. Warner Martin, E. Clem Powers and Marcus Emmert.

A picnic lunch was served at the home of Mrs. Carl M. Ramspeck, Mrs. Ramspeck and Mrs. Charles B. Wilson being hostesses for this delightful occasion.

Plans were discussed for the flower show to be given by the Atlanta Flower Show Association, May 8 and 9.

The Habersham Club will visit three more gardens this afternoon, these to be those of Mrs. T. W. Tift, 235 The Prado, N. E.; Mrs. James L. Wells, 2 Barksdale drive, and Mrs. Anita Stewart Armstrong, 866 West Peachtree, northwest.

U. S. Club Picnic.

Members of the U. S. Club enjoyed a picnic, planned by the social committee, recently. Members present were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Dacus, Miss Josephine Castleberry, Harry McCord, Miss Margaret Tarlton, J. R. Glass Jr., Misses Ava Lou Kennedy and May Gunter.

Members of the U. S. Club enjoyed a picnic, planned by the social committee, recently. Members present were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Dacus, Miss Josephine Castleberry, Harry McCord, Miss Margaret Tarlton, J. R. Glass Jr., Misses Ava Lou Kennedy and May Gunter.

Miss Stallings Weds Mr. Herron

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Alba Stallings announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lila Alba Stallings, to S. Andrew Herron, both of Charlotte, N. C., the ceremony having taken place recently at the home of the bride's parents on Kendrick avenue. Rev. Franklin C. Talmage, pastor of the Kirkwood Presbyterian church, officiated. Mrs. W. T. Stallings, organist, an aunt of the bride, presented a musical program.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a costume of navy sheer crepe and white accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Stallings, mother of the bride, wore a navy chiffon dress and a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. A reception was held after the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will reside in Charlotte.

The bride was graduated from Central High school and holds a position with F. H. Ross and Company in Charlotte.

The groom is the son of Mrs. L. A. Herron and the late Mr. Herron, of Charlotte. He holds a position with the Charlotte News.

Colquitt U. D. C. To Meet Today.

The Alfred H. Colquitt Chapter, U. D. C., meets at Rich's today at 2:30 o'clock, with Mrs. John T. Moon presiding.

The historical program will feature Atlanta, the most historic city of the south. Virlyn B. Moore Jr. will speak, and Mrs. K. I. Gordy will have charge of music.

A membership certificate will be presented to Miss Matilda Hanson. Plans will be made for the bestowal of military crosses to veterans of the World War and the celebration of Jefferson Davis' birthday.

Pi Pis To Give Milkmaid Ball

An annual event of interest among the college set is the Pi Pi milkmaid dance which takes place tomorrow evening at the Biltmore hotel.

Piano Recital.

Mrs. J. G. Addy will present the following pupils in piano recital at her home studio, 222 W. College street, Decatur, this evening: Dorothy Medlock, Louise Walden, Jane Walden, Peggy Smith, Jane Ansley, Winnifred Estes, Jean Edwards, Emily Moss, Charna de-Moran, Patsy Gastley, Lou Floyd, Dorothy Doucher, Virginia Lee, Mary Hamilton, Newton Tichenor, Sarah Smith and Sue Floyd.

Mrs. Ottley Makes Donation To Golden Jubilee Foundation

Mrs. John K. Ottley presented the gift of $50 to be added to the $5, contribution of the Fifth District of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs to be sent to national headquarters in celebration of the golden jubilee year of federation's foundation. The personal gift of Mrs. Ottley was made yesterday at the Fifth District's jubilee party held at the College Park Woman's Club.

A note accompanying the gift was read by the retiring president, Mrs. John D. Evans, in which Mrs. Ottley expressed: "Georgia Federation has honored me as its choice for its living pioneer club woman, and it seems suitable that one expression of my appreciation of this distinction shall pass through the Fifth District in which all the years of my federated activity have been happily spent. My club life really began in 1895 and later I presided over the meeting in Atlanta in the autumn of 1896 at which Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs was organized. I presume, therefore, that I qualify nicely as a pioneer club woman and as such I make this gift."

Mrs. Morris To Lecture.

Mrs. Emma Garrett Morris will speak on May 7 at Eggleston Hall under the auspices of the Business Women's Guild of All Saints' Episcopal church.

Rev. Theodore S. Will, rector of the church, will introduce Mrs. Morris, whose subject will be "Finland and Her Gallant Fight for Freedom." Highlights of the lecture will be the historical and religious trend, including the view of the former Russian rule.

Spaghetti has "oomph" in This Enticing New Dish!

To raise the social standing of vegetables, try merging them, as in this subtly flavored dish, with tender tempting Mueller's Spaghetti.

SPAGHETTI MACEDOINE
1 pkg. Mueller's Spaghetti
1 eggplant
1 cup mushrooms, cut small
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 clove garlic (if desired)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut eggplant in thin slices and let stand awhile. Then dry thoroughly and sauté with mushrooms in butter. Add parsley, salt, pepper and garlic, and simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cook Mueller's Spaghetti as directed. Mueller's cooks to tender perfection in just 9 minutes, due to an exclusive drying process. Remove garlic and combine eggplant mixture with hot spaghetti. Serve at once on hot platter. Serves 6.

Mueller's Spaghetti may be served piping hot. Mueller's never has that sticky coating of excess starch that requires a cold-water rinse. Its dependability and high quality have made Mueller's favorite with home-makers for over 75 years. For delicious, satisfying and economical main dishes, remember Mueller's Spaghetti!

Euzelian Class.

Silent Tom Smith Believes Mioland Ready To Beat Bimelech

BimRan Poorly In Derby Trial Thinks Trainer

Mioland Ran Derby Distance in Fastest 'Prep' Time.

By SID FEDER.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(P) Silent Tom Smith, whose ordinary wordage output wouldn't provide enough gas to fill a baby's balloon, is a changed man this Kentucky Derby week.

In fact, he's as different, but nowhere near as unpleasant, as the weather, which is going to supply some light frost tonight, should turn fair for Friday, and may come up with a good rousing rainstorm for the 80,000 expected to come out Saturday, the weatherman said.

Now, this change in Silent Tom came about all because Mioland, a big, galloping Lochinvar from out of the west, looks like a "right nice hoss" for the run for the roses, while Bimelech, "the people's choice," wasn't any too hot in his Derby trial victory, Tuesday, from what Tom saw.

NOT SO HOT.
"I saw Bimie flatten his ears so tight against his head at the barrier Tuesday," Silent Tom said, "that he looked like he might be going to savage (bite) something. Then, Jockey Freddie Smith even hit him with the bat once in the stretch. What's more important to me, he only beat Gallahadion a couple of lengths, and unless Gallahadion has improved a powerful lot from what he was on the coast last winter, Bimie's race wasn't too hot. Mioland beat him by five lengths in their last race at Santa Anita."

Gallahadion is Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Derby hope, and most folks, except Silent Tom, figured he ran a fair enough race to Bimie on Tuesday.

Mioland is definitely one of the three horses in the probable field of eight or nine with just the faintest kind of an outside chance against Bimie in the 66th running of the big heat. The other two are Dit and Pictor, from the east.

Mioland's sire, Mio D'Arezzo, was bred in Italy, foaled and raced in Germany, and bought for stud in Oregon by R. W. Ray. His dam is Ioland, an English mare. Mioland, an Oregonian, has done all his racing in California.

BEAT SWEEPIDA.
Ray sold him to Charles S. Howard for $15,000 after clockers judged Trainer Silent Tom off last fall to the fact that a certain 2-year-old at Bay Meadows was working the mile in 1:37. He finished fourth in the Santa Anita Derby, then came back to knock off the winner of that race, Sweepida, at a mile and sixteenth.

Someone mentioned that Mioland not only hasn't had a race since arriving at Churchill Downs, but hasn't been to the races since March 9. It was pointed out that Seabiscuit, another Silent Tom-trained horse of whom you may have heard, was in three races in the three weeks before he took the Santa Anita handicap, which Mioland won't be ready.

"He's a different kind of hoss from the Biscuit," he explained. "The Biscuit always needed work. This baby not only doesn't need it. He don't like it. But he's fit."

NOT FOOLING.
Silent Tom wasn't fooling, either. He pulled a fast one on the clockers last Saturday by waiting till noon, when no one was around, to work his big fellow the full mile and a quarter.

MUDDY HOPEFUL—Here is Dit, Arnold Hanger's Kentucky Derby hopeful, as he splashed through Churchill Downs mud Wednesday in a workout for the big race Saturday. Over the sloppy track he ran the mile and a quarter in 2:13. Hanger, like all the other rivals of Bimelech, is hoping for a muddy track Saturday. The weatherman yesterday said the prospects for a clear day are "not so good." However, Dit is expected to start, wet or dry.

Typists Battle Smithies, Seek Fourth Straight

Richardson Defeats Campbell, 8-5; Marist Beats Gasco, 7-2.

Commercial High's giant killer nine of the "Big Five" prep baseball league will be out today to make it four in a row. Tech High is the only club in the league they have not upset, and the Typists are letting it be known they are out to get those Smithies when they tie up at Grant Park at 3 o'clock.

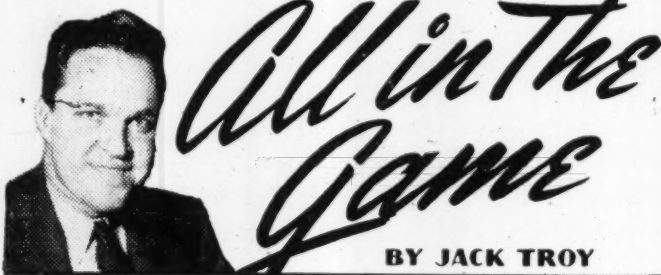

On the mound for Henry Waggoner's crew will be Howard Leathers, winner of consecutive eight-hit victories over Boys' High, Monroe and Jordan. Last time they met the Smithies routed the Typists, but Jordan had also beaten them badly earlier in the year, so today's game should be pretty much of a toss-up affair.

Sidney Scarborough will pitch either Forrest Smith or Floyd Mitchell against the flying Typists, who, should they win today, will wrest first place from the Smithies.

Shorty Doyal's Boys' High nine, who won the state tourney at Athens last week and blistered Monroe Wednesday, 14 to 4, will travel to Columbus to engage Jordan in the only other league game of the day.

Dickerson, Davol Star for Marist.
Louie Van Houten's Marist nine jumped on Bob Hasty's Gas Housers yesterday on the Marist diamond and with opportune hitting

Name Is 'Deet' LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—It was gratifying today to learn that Arnold Hanger's Derby entry, Dit, really has a fancier pronunciation than the name sounds.

Dit, by Transmute, has a French name. It is correctly pronounced "Deet," and, furthermore, "Deet" was foaled and bred in Kentucky, near Lexington. Owner Hanger has a home in Kentucky.

It seems that the east's chief claim on Dit is the fact that he is trained by canny Max Hirsch, who produced a Derby winner in Bold Venture. Plus the fact Dit has raced in the east.

Hunch players are inclined to like "Deet's" chances to finish somewhere in the money. And they do not feel this way simply because Dit, in French, means "all's well."

Dit has trained well and is a good, stout horse that seems to have a liking for distance. However, horse followers always are clutching for a straw, so to speak.

And this is especially true in a race that has an entry named Bimelech.

If the unexpected should happen—as it has many times in past Derbies—the resultant play on words about "Deet's" victory would be something else.

The Place Hoss Everybody and his brother, sister, aunt and uncle, it seems, would like to know what horse is going to finish second in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

And apparently as unpredictable as the Crackers is the name of the horse that will run second to Colonel E. R. Bradley's Bimelech.

A better wager is that Colonel Bradley, approaching 80, will defy doctor's orders and see the race.

Freddie Smith, Bimelech Jock, Is Ex-Cowhand

Rode Kayak II to Victory in 4 of 5 Starts as 3-Year-Old.

By JUSTIN ANDERSON.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(P) An ex-cowhand from Wyoming who first learned to ride in rodeo relay races has the momentous job of piloting favored Bimelech in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

Jockey F. A. (Freddie) Smith, born in Cuba 26 years ago of an American father and a Cuban mother, has handled Colonel E. R. Bradley's unbeaten ace in all of his eight triumphs. Naturally he thinks Bimelech is the greatest race horse in the world.

But he has more to do than just sit in the saddle and let Bimelech run.

"Bimelech is a very intelligent, free-running colt," Freddie confessed, "and almost anybody could ride him. He has one bad habit, if you would call it that. He is inclined to be playful and now and then I have to give him a good whack to keep him at his task."

Once, he recalled, Bimelech paused during a race to nip back at a horse that nipped at him.

Coming to the United States from Cuba in the early thirties, Freddie landed work on a cattle ranch near Pine Bluff, Wyoming.

Another fellow whose name now is familiar to turf followers also worked on the ranch. He's Tom Smith, the veteran trainer of C. S. Howard's stars, Seabiscuit and Kayak II. Tom has a colt ready to go in this year's derby—Mioland, the western hopeful.

Freddie caught on with Howard's stable after Tom became trainer for the California sportsman. He broke in Kayak II, the South American sensation, on North American tracks, riding him to victory in four of his five starts as a three-year-old.

The young, dark-skinned jockey's success attracted Colonel Bradley's attention, and a short time later Freddie was riding under the Bradley colors.

In 505 starts last year, Freddie's mounts won 91 races, finished second in 37 and third in 58.

Of the derby, Freddie said: "I'd almost be willing to ride for nothing just for the sake of winning."

Weather Outlook For Derby Is Bad

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(P) The weather for Kentucky Derby day Saturday doesn't "look so very good," United States Meteorologist J. L. Kendall said today.

"We may get our best weather tomorrow, followed by showers some time Saturday," he said, "but it's too early to make any definite prediction."

Kentucky temperatures were in the 30s and 40s.

Dixie Steel, Buford To Play Tonight

BUFORD, Ga., May 2.—Dixie Steel will play the Buford nine Friday night at 8 o'clock on the Buford diamond. Lefty Crisler or Leonard Mayo will be on the mound for the Atlanta boys, while Abe White or Jake Levy will hurl for the Bona Allen nine.

Cold weather caused a postponement of the game between Buford and the Grove Park club Thursday night, scheduled for the Buford park.

Suspension Lifted On Packy Rogers

Major Trammell Scott, president of the Southern Association, announced yesterday the lifting of an "indefinite suspension" placed on Stanley (Packy) Rogers, New Orleans infielder.

Rogers was ordered to pay a $25 fine.

The Pelican third baseman was ordered suspended indefinitely pending an investigation into his throwing of a baseball at an umpire during the second game of a doubleheader at Little Rock last Sunday.

Atlanta Teams To Seek Prizes In Bowling Meet

Twelve Squads To Compete at Columbus This Week End.

Twelve or more Atlanta teams will go to Columbus this week end to participate in the fourth annual southeastern bowling tournament.

Inspired by the great showing of Atlanta bowlers and teams in local and out-of-town competition this year, the Atlanta delegation hopes to annex a major part of the titles and cash awards in this big sectional pin classic which has been staged in North Carolina the three previous years.

Separate divisions are maintained for men and women, with singles, doubles and five-player team events scheduled in addition to a mixed doubles event. Three games are to be rolled in each event.

Teams from Montgomery, Rome, Asheville, Macon, Columbus, Newnan, Atlanta, Columbus and other points have already rolled in the separate divisions and events of the tournament.

Druid Hills Ladies Card Meet Today

The Druid Hills Golf Club ladies will hold a one-day meet today beginning at 9 o'clock this morning. Prizes will be given for low gross, low net and best putter.

Sunday beginning at 1 o'clock they will hold a two-ball Scotch foursome. All the Druid Hills ladies are invited to turn out for the meet.

Rich Is Released To Louisville Club

Angott and Day Battle for Title

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(P) A Kentucky Derby Eve crowd of 12,000 is expected to see Sammy Angott, Louisville, and Davey Day, Chicago, tomorrow night in their 15-round fight for the National Boxing Association lightweight title.

Heavy sales among the Derby visitors pouring into town for Saturday's racing classic indicate a gate of $34,000—an all-time record for Kentucky boxing.

The bout is scheduled to start at 11 p. m. (Atlanta time). Weigh-in ceremonies will be at noon.

Both boys concluded their workouts today with limbering-up exercises. Angott, the first Louisville boy ever to fight here for a ring title, is expected to enter the ring at 134 pounds, while Day's co-managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, say Davey will come in at 134 1/2.

Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, will act as referee and sole judge of the title bout, Kentucky Boxing Commissioner Johnson Mattingly having shelved the usual two-judge and referee system for the scrap.

Alabama Beats Florida Nine, 8-6

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., May 2.—(P)—Alabama's conference-leading baseball team knocked off Florida, 8 to 6, here today for the Tide's ninth Southeastern Conference triumph. Alabama won yesterday from Florida, 6-2.

John Wyhowanec, guard with the Tide football team, hurled for 'Bama and was nipped for 10 hits. He kept them scattered and, despite an erosive Gator attack that scored intermittently, was never in real trouble.

Crackers Frozen Out; To Meet Pebbles in Twin-Bill Tonight

Burgess Seeks His 3d Victory In First Game

Thomason Gets Initial Chance in 2nd; Starting Time Is 7:30.

The Frigid Air Follies of 1940 has played a long run at Ponce de Leon, but the weatherman yesterday gave hopes for an abrupt closing of the ice show.

The forecast said it would be warmer, so unless the prediction goes awry the Crackers and Herb Brett's Little Rock Travelers, making their first appearance here this season, will play a double-header tonight starting at 7:30. The twin bill slated last night was postponed because of the cold. It will be ladies' night.

Winners of the last three-out-of-four contests, the Crackers will try to give Charlie Burgess, Decatur left-hander, his third victory of the season against no defeats in the first game. Harold Thomason, former University of Alabama star, will hurl the second game for the Crackers. At least, they were Manager Richards' hurling choices for last night. It's possible that Luman Harris will get the call over Thomason tonight.

Fans will see an old Cracker in the person of Wee Willie Duke. Duke has been hitting well this season and making the r. b. i. column frequently.

Lester Buge, big first baseman out with an injured hand, will probably be back in the Cracker line-up in a few days. The injury is healing faster than expected. Willard Marshall, rookie outfielder who has been out, is available.

Manager Brett was undecided as to his pitchers. He said Cotton Brazie or Marvin Ulrich would hurl the first and Charlie Harris or Jim Prendergast the second.

The Spotlight

verse Mr. Brann has typed out for the Bimelech-Pictor duel at Churchill Downs and Pimlico. It will probably be something like this:

"Watch Pictor take him in his stride, Bimelech, poor Bimelech. We'll show you how to run and ride, Bimelech, poor Bimelech."

Pictor is a big, strong, fast horse, somewhat after the manner of Challeon, and in Lou Schaefer he has one of the best of the conditions.

Mr. Brann concedes nothing. Neither does Lou Schaefer. The main answer seems to be Pictor. He had nothing to say that I could understand. But if he was upset or worried about any coming event, he failed to show it in his barn. Just what a race horse thinks about the day before a race is something a race horse doesn't even know.

All I can say is that a heavy rain or a heavy track wouldn't bother Messrs. Brann and Schaefer in the slightest. They figure they have the champion mudder in this lot, and everyone knows the baffling uncertainties of racing also carry along the condition of the track. A weeping sky would bring no tears from the men from Maryland.

Hanger and Hirsch.

Maxie Hirsch is neither hot nor of all the trainers, wanted to save Arnold Hanger's Dit for the Preakness, figuring three hard races in two weeks' time was a trifle too much.

But Arnold Hanger is a Kentuckian from the bottom of his feet to the top of his snappy fedora. He wanted Dit out there, either beating Bimelech, or making it one-two for the Bluegrass. So far as owners go, it had to be Bradley and Hanger against the field.

Maxie Hirsch is neither hot nor cold on Dit. He will tell you that he is a lazy horse, which only wants to run when he has to run—when there is a race at hand. This isn't a knock. I've known many star athletes just like that.

Even Maxie Hirsch, who knows most of the answers, can't tell you just exactly what Dit will go if he is called upon to face a blazing pace and still stick around. Maxie thinks he can, but he would rather have given his horse a rest to save him for the Preakness a week later.

Both Hanger and Hirsch are right—Hanger as a Kentucky owner, Hirsch as a trainer who wanted that week's intermission.

As you may know by now, there is a slight element of chance in this racing game. Just a slight element. They haven't set it yet so it is entirely foolproof. But at this writing I should say the four top horses will be Bimelech—Mioland—Pictor—Dit. They may run in that order, with the same turn of racing luck.

But after Bimelech is mentioned, the other three may churn things up just a bit. One of these might beat Bimelech, but that may be a little too much on the dreaming

ALL IN THE GAME

sistent. Race-goers concede the election. Bimelech is the top horse beyond a doubt.

It's worth $8,000 to the owner of the horse that places second. And who will it be—Gallahadion, Dit, Mioland, Pictor, Royal Man, Roman or Sirocco?

Maybe they won't all face the barrier. It costs an owner $500 to enter the Derby, and that's a fancy price just for the honor of having one's colors in the field. It ain't oats, as someone has said.

Gallahadion, finishing second in the Derby trial, cheered hopes of the Milky Way Farms. Gallahadion looked like a threat—not to Bimelech, but to the other horses with designs on second place.

Mioland, from the west, and Dit, Wood Memorial winner, from the east, have numerous followers. And some say that a sleeper in the field might be Royal Man, the Tennessee-bred horse.

Fact of the matter is that all the second-place candidates are rated fairly close together at this time.

The field is expected to narrow down to possibly six horses, providing plenty of racing room when horses like Gallahadion and Sirocco make their moves. Conditions seem favorable for a stretch runner, and so that's why some are saying at this time that Gallahadion may be the horse to beat for the $8,000.

Well Behaved

The behavior of Bimelech has been so outstanding in all races, both as a two and three-year-old, that turf experts expect a performance as close to perfection as racing performances can come.

True, it has not been easy at times for Jockey Freddie Smith to keep "Bounding Bim" under restraint, but Colonel Bradley's colt is no bad actor. He simply wants to get along in front.

Bimelech is the sort of horse that can get out of trouble early—and such horses, as a rule, win the Derby. Bimelech has shown in numerous races that he can come from behind.

Hence, if any horse tries to run him into the ground, Jockey Smith has only to take back off the pace. There might be a horse entered that's a whiz at three-quarters—a horse like Fighting Fox of last year.

Bimelech might be sorely tempted to race it out with a fast flyer, but here his steady behavior in past performances augurs well for Jockey Smith's ability to keep him in hand.

Ordinarily, one doesn't prefer to string along with a favorite, but who could with Colonel Bradley, seeking his fifth—and probably last—Kentucky Derby victory in his lifetime, anything but the best of luck?

Last Line

Baseball goes on regardless of a Derby, and the latest line of Joe Engel is too good to overlook. When the Lookouts were having all their trouble a couple of days ago, one of the papers came out with double "ribbons" on the sports page.

One ribbon read—"McDANIEL BREAKS HAND ON ARKETA'S JAW." The second ribbon read—"VAN FLEET ARRESTED FOR PASSING WORTHLESS CHECK."

In another paper, it was suggested that it would have been far better if Kiki Cuyler had held his two-hour lecture on the field and kept the Lookouts behind locked doors.

Always one to get in the last word, Engel called one of the papers and said, "Here's another ribbon you can use tomorrow—'ENGEL LEAVES TOWN!'"

Sharp SHOOTIN' by AL SHARP

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 2.—Gene Dahlbender Jr., of Atlanta, and Stockton Rogers, of Ponte Vedra, Fla., were playing the 15th hole. It's a par 4 and calls for two shots—two good ones—to get home.

Dahlbender, who tied the Chattanooga Golf and Country Club's course record of 66 yesterday in practice, was down the middle. Stocky, who learned his golf at Ponte Vedra, where the wind and the canals make life a tough proposition, pushed his drive into the 14th fairway.

That left Stocky a long second shot over the trees which divide the fairways. Rogers hit a spoon and the ball carried well over the trees, rolling upon the green. Dahlbender used an iron and was on.

Rogers sank a 50-foot putt for a birdie 3. Dahlbender three-putted for a 5.

It was typical of the southern prep and high school golf tournament which opened here today.

And that's one of the main reasons we love to watch this annual competition.

In no other tournament—at least in no other adult golf meet—will you find the same spirit.

The swing may collapse. The putter may go haywire. Everything can go wrong, and still nothing will curb that spirit.

These youngsters bring the "fight, fight, fight" of the football field to the golf course.

They fight for every yard and may the best scorer win.

Into the woods, the river, the sandtraps and even off the course, they knock their balls, but back they come, disturbed but not discouraged.

It is refreshing to watch them and their reactions.

They may be up to their ears in trouble, but they always can smile, and hope the next shot will bring a par.

Perhaps that is why they make shots a pro couldn't pull. That is true, all right. They do make shots a pro never has to.

No pro could get in as much trouble as the prep brigade which pours the wood and the iron to the little white ball with an abandon befitting their spirit.

That intangible something called the spirit of youth accounts for that.

Take Charlie Dudley, of Greenville, S. C. Charlie was playing for Baylor when he won the tourney. He later went to Georgia Tech for a while before going to Furman.

Charlie was playing the third hole, a par 5. This drive caught the woods. Hope someone hit was not so good and his third left him 220 yards from the green.

If Charlie was worried, you would have had to be a mind reader to discover it.

He walked up to the ball with no sign of concern.

He socked the ball within eight feet of the cup, sank it and wandered off to the fourth tee.

He could have taken four shots for a 7. He could have played safe for a 6, because there is an out-of-bounds hedge on the right.

But no, Charlie wanted the par. He wasn't worried about getting it, but he did want it.

And when he got it, Charlie thought no more of how close he came to shooting his way out of the tourney.

A 7 would have cost him dearly, for the tourney is a 54-hole medal play event and one bad hole will ruin a player's chances.

You wouldn't know that, either, if you took the expressions of the players as a yardstick.

Well, you can't beat the spirit of youth.

They have what it takes. And they come up laughing, win or lose.

It's the spirit which brings a 69 in the afternoon after an 82 in the morning.

G. M. A. Track Team Defeats North Fulton

Major M. C. Badgett's G. M. A. track squad invaded the North Fulton track Tuesday to defeat the Bulldogs, 45 1-2 to 40 1-2. It was the first time this year the North Fulton team has been beaten in a dual meet, and marks the fifteenth straight high school dual meet racked up by the Cadets since they were last defeated. Rabun, of North Fulton, was high point man with 11 1-3 points.

Today the G. M. A. B team will compete with the Druid Hills High squad at Emory University. Saturday, Lanier, G. M. A. and Tech High, who finished one, two, three, in the order named in the G. I. A. A. meet last year, will engage in a three-way meet at Grant Field.

Results follow:

Shot Put—(1) Peace, G. M. A.; (2) Houston, G. M. A.; (3) Nichols, N. F. Distance, 43 feet.

100-Yard Dash—(1) Rabun, N. F.; (2) Nichols, N. F.; (3) Edwards, G. M. A.; (4) Feaser, N. F.; (5) Foster, G. M. A. 14.8 seconds.

Bob Smith Faces Pluto Oliver As Tech-Georgia Series Starts

Coach Sikes Probably Will Use Pitcher Clifton at First Base; Defeat Will Ruin Bulldogs' Chances for Title.

ATHENS, Ga., May 2.—Georgia's Bob Smith and Tech's Pluto Oliver, just about the best college pitchers in the south, will tie up in the first four games between the state's traditional athletic rivals here tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Coach J. V. Sikes will send his Bulldogs against the Jackets of Roy Mundorff in a "crucial" four games for the Athenians. For a loss anywhere along the line will definitely put Georgia out of the running for the Southeastern Conference championship. As things stand now the Bulldogs are in second place, behind unbeaten Alabama, having won five games and lost one.

BROKE EVEN. Smith and Oliver broke even in two games last year, the Jacket curve ball specialist winning the first game easily and Smith taking the third. Only three contests were held last year because of rain.

Coach Sikes will jumble his lineup for the Tech series, with Lefty Jack Clifton, ordinarily a pitcher but also the leading hitter on the squad, probably starting at first base and Captain Billy Mims certain to succeed Roy Chatham in center field for at least the first game.

Georgia, boasting its best nine in a decade, has lost only four games this year against the strongest college and independent

Mothers, Dads To Be Honored At 'Y' Tonight

Tonight is "mother and dad night" at the Y. M. C. A. Approximately 125 boys of the boys' division will stage a gym and swim exhibition for the parents. This program is sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. in its celebration of the National Youth Week Program.

W. A. Sanders, boys' physical director, will be in charge of the exhibition.

The exhibition will present a cross-section of the activities in physical education at the Y. M. C. A., including calisthenics, boxing, basketball, relays, comic acts, wrestling, swimming, diving, life-saving and other sports.

Some 300 parents are expected to witness the exhibition as it opens at 7:30 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Dahlbender's 150 Leads

Frank Garrett Next; Weldon Branc Third

Final 18 Holes Today; Gordon Leads Team Scoring With 652.

By AL SHARP.
Continuation of Golf Writer.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 2.—Gene Dahlbender Jr., of Marist High, Atlanta, shot a 71-79—150 to take a two-stroke lead in the southern prep and high school golf tournament here today. The tournament will end with an 18-hole round tomorrow.
Frank Garrett, of McCallie, was in second place with 77-75—152. Only one shot back of the Chattanooga school's entrant was Weldon Branc, of Atlanta Boys' High, with 79-74—153.
Still another Georgian was tied for fourth with 154, Montgomery Harrison, of Richmond Academy in Augusta, tied Billy Napier and Herschel Spears, of Nashville, Harrison shot 77-77 as did the other two entrants from middle Tennessee.

GIVEN CHANCE.
Allen Matthews, of Gordon Institute at Barnesville, also was given a chance at the title tomorrow. Matthews had 76-79 for 155 to tie with H. T. Mills, of Ramsey High, Birmingham, who had the same score.

Harold Cross of Baldwin (Ga.) High was in the next slot with 77-79—156, tied with Harry Morehead, of Anchorage (Ky.) High, and Vasco Landrum, from Fletcher High, Jacksonville, Fla.

Seven strokes behind the leader was Stockton Rogers, of Jacksonville's Bolles school. Rogers scored 75 and 80—155.
TWO CHAMPIONS.
Atlanta's Tech High has produced two of the champions—Luke Barnes and Jack Cook, and with Atlantics well represented among the leaders at the two-third mark, the lion's share of the beautiful trophies again may go to the Ga. City.

Tech High, which has won the team competition in all four of the tournaments, was not represented by an entrant this year, but Gordon Institute, of Barnesville, took over the lead with a score of 652.

Boys' High was only three strokes away at 653, and the championship probably will stay in Georgia. Other team leaders were East Nashville, with 657, and McCallie, with 662.

McCallie's 662 is leading the MidSouth Association team contest, Darlington, of Rome, being next with 699 and little chance to catch up.
Dahlbender, who shot a 66, five under par, in practice yesterday, played consistent golf in the morning for a par 71. He had four birdies and four bogeys.

9-INCH PUTT.
He sank a 9-inch putt on the first hole, a 12-foot putt on the third, a 12-foot putt on the eighth and a 20-foot putt on No. 18.

But his woods went to pieces in the afternoon and he had a tough time. Two shots were out of bounds.
Entrants from Georgia schools and their scores included:

W. A. Beavers, Gordon Institute, Barnesville, 87-79—166; M. M. Beavers, Gordon, 87-79—168; Stan Stacia, Gordon, 87-84—171; Johnny Hall, Druid Hills High, Atlanta, 84-96—180; Alan Yates, Rome, High, Atlanta, 87-89—176; Allyn Brown, Georgia Military, 80-84—164; Wilson Turpin, Georgia Institute, 87-82—169; Ashby Taylor, Richmond Academy, Augusta, 82-82—164; Bill Twitty, Georgia Military, 83-84—167; John Moore, Georgia Military, 83-85—170; Jimmy Rhea, Darlington, 86-82—168; Steve Mulhern, Richmond, 86-86—172; Jack Williams, Kennesaw, 104-65—207; Jack Sargent, Boys' High, 83-83—172; H. M. McKenzie, Gordon, 93-89—184; Tom Bean, Lafayette, 106-105—203; Don Fuller, Darlington, 86-86—188; Woods Station, Boys' High, 81-82—163.

TIGER BALL CLUB IS HOME GROWN

Waner got his 2,800th major league hit the other day as a pinch-hitter. The Cardinal catcher, Mickey Owen, once played a game in the American Association at shortstop, without making a put-out, assist or error. Will Harbridge excused Bucky Harris for the usual three-day suspension. . . . Hugh Mulcahy has a book of notes on the various hitters in the National League. . . . at the top of every page are the words "Don't Walk Him!"

'BISCUIT TRAINER' LIKES MIOLAND

Derby route, and all Mioland did was click it off in 2.08, fastest "top" time of the year here.
Then Tom trotted him out again today, broke him from the gate, and on a track somewhat heavy from rain, Mioland went a quarter in 23 seconds, the half in 47 and galloped out five-eighths in 1:02.2-3 for his last pre-derby workout, except for a Saturday morning "blowout."
So any idea that Mioland hasn't been able to get acquainted with the track is just so much of that stuff you slice very thin and put between two pieces of bread, with mustard.

Griffin Takes Georgia Prep Links Crown

Ike Scott Medalist With 78; Newman Team Is Second.

ATHENS, Ga., May 2.—Griffin won the state high school golf championship here today, furnished medalist and the outstanding favorite for individual honors.
Led by Ike Scott, accurate young shotmaker who took medal honors with a neat 78 over the wind-swept Athens Country Club course, Griffin had a 12-stroke lead over Newman, which was second in team scoring. Griffin's winning score was 335.

There were 34 entries in the tournament, including two girls, Louise Suggs, of Austell, and Mary Winkender, of Waycross. Miss Suggs qualified for the championship flight with a 91, but was defeated in the first round by Kake Cheatham, of Griffin, 4 and 3. Miss Winkender was in the second flight, but also lost, to Jimmy Hollis, of Newman, 9 to 7. First-round matches in the championship flight: Ike Scott, Griffin, beat Man Smith, Thompson, 4 and 3; Hank Hollis, Newman, beat Bob Mann, Newman, 2 and 1; Bobby Wheaton, Griffin, beat Jack Cheatham, Griffin, beat Jack Suggs, Austell, 3 and 2; Jack Suggs, Austell, beat Ben Lewis, Louisville, 4 and 3; Paul Mitchell, Thompson, beat Jack Suggs, Austell, 3 and 2; Williams, Griffin, beat Jim Weddington, Newman, 4 and 3; Tony Sully, Newman, beat Harold Moore, Canton, 2 and 1. Second flight: Bill Winkender, Waycross, beat Wallace LaGrange, 1 up on 21st hole; Jimmy Hollis, Newman, beat Mary Winkender, 9 and 8; Gordon Moore, Canton, beat Laydon Cahill, LaGrange, 2 and 1; Jim Winkender, Waycross, drew bye; Ernest Lee, Cordele, beat Tony McClain, 2 and 1; John Pruitt, Thompson, beat Harris Sully, Thompson, 4 and 3; LaGrange, beat Mack Moore, Canton, 4 and 3; Jimmy Duke, Fort Valley, drew bye.

FIGHTS TONIGHT—Charles Easley (above), crack Dalton welterweight, faces Johnny Miller in one of the feature amateur fights at Lakewood Park tonight. The winner will claim the southern title. In all, there will be 10 or 12 fights, several of them in the light-heavyweight and heavy-heavyweight classes. The show starts at 8:30.

West End Net Matches Are Rescheduled Today

won a 7-to-2 victory in a seven-inning tilt.
J. B. Dickinson hit a home run for the Cadets, and Ruppert Davol doubled with the bases loaded to drive in three runs in the fifth. Frank Moody garnered two of Gas Company's bingles. 100 010 0—2 8 1. Dooley, Hasty and Mauldin; Pierce and Stanford.

Richardson Scores Seven in First

Richardson High jumped on Dodson, Campbell High hurler, for 7 hits in the first inning yesterday on the Peter Pan diamond in College Park, and before Campbell knew what it was all about had won a ball game. The final score was 8 to 5. Seven of the winners' runs were tallied in the wild first frame.

Leroy Tarpley relieved Dodson in the fourth and gave up only one hit thereafter. The big gun for Richardson was J. C. Beator, who blasted out three safeties for five trips with two of them coming in the big first inning. James Groover had a double and single for five also. Harper and Hufmaster for the losers secured two bingles each.

Campbell, 010 004 000—5 8 3. Richardson, 701 000 000—8 9 3. Dodson, Tarpley and W. Greene; Rooks and Bearden.

Wallace Urges States To Help Farm Tenants

Secretary Says U. S. Can Aid in Checking Flow to West.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace proposed today that the states assist the federal government in solving "inescapable social and economic problems" raised by increased farm tenancy and an "army of uprooted, homeless families."

The secretary testified before the senate civil liberties committee as the first witness in a study of farm labor problems.

He proposed that the federal government do its part to check the flow of migrants westward by increasing its rural rehabilitation program and by providing a long-range program of rural public works to give employment where there is insufficient land to support the existing population.

The states, he said, must consider laws requiring landlords to give adequate notice to tenants before forcing them to move, establishing standard lease forms and requiring that all leases be made a matter of public record.

All Students Not Fitted For College—Caldwell

WEST POINT, Ga., May 2.—(AP)—Dr. Harmon Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia, told a group of high school seniors today "only those who have the ability to be trained in the professions and as leaders in business and industry should go to college."

"Not many of you 17-18 seniors should go to college," he said. "Each of you should do the type of work you are best fitted for."

"But," he added, "we will not have a real democracy until every boy and girl who has the ability and who wants to go to college can go, regardless of his financial status."

Columbus Slum Project To Get 122 More Units

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
COLUMBUS, Ga., May 2.—The Columbus slum-clearance program has been allotted an additional $442,000, to be used to construct 122 additional family dwelling units for the George Foster Peabody Apartments project, making a total of 482 units.

Gov. Johnson Of Mississippi, Editor Battle

Critic of Administration Says Executive Hit Him With Cane.

JACKSON, Miss., May 2.—(AP)—Mississippi's stormy legislative session reached a fighting climax tonight in the lobby of a Jackson hotel as Governor Paul Johnson and one of the most bitter foes of his administration, Editor Frederick Sullens of the Jackson Daily News, battled in bloody combat.

Sullens, whose militant editorial policy has endeared him to the page of his newspaper for the past several weeks, charged the Governor had attacked him in the hotel with a cane and called it "a cowardly attempt to assassinate me from the rear."

Governor Johnson, from a bed at the executive mansion, said he had no immediate comment regarding the altercation. His advisers were with him.

Colonel Tom Brady, chief of the State Highway Patrol, said the chief executive did not appear to be injured.

The editor's version of the altercation was: "I entered the hotel from the rear and was about to enter the elevator when Governor Johnson, who was standing behind a large marble pillar, struck me on the back of the head with a heavy cane."

"He had raised his cane to strike again when I grasped with my hand and threw him across a chair. I saw his eyes flash from his face and he tried to pummel me when spectators stopped the fight."

Hope Given Up To 'Save' Wage Bill in House

Mrs. Norton Spurns Debate; Many Exemptions Voted.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP)—After a hectic struggle, in which the house tentatively approved exemption from the wage-hour act, Representative Mary Norton (Democrat, New Jersey), a leader of administration forces, abandoned hope tonight of stopping sweeping amendments in that chamber.

Mrs. Norton, chairman of the house labor committee, announced that administration forces would count on the senate labor committee to block the changes approved today—changes which she bitterly estimated would exempt from the minimum wages and maximum hours standards 2,000,000 workers engaged in the processing of farm products or in farm co-operatives.

Hours Changed.

These exemptions were tacked on the Norton committee's bill, which provides that 16 processes immediately connected with the preparation of certain farm products for market shall be wholly exempt from the 42-hour week for the rest of the year the maximum work week shall be 60 hours.

If any self-respecting member of the house can vote for the bill now, it's all right with me," Mrs. Norton said angrily. "I wish to take no further part in the debate."

Previously the chamber had overwhelmingly reaffirmed a decision to grant a total exemption to some 200,000 persons in farm co-operatives, and had adopted many other less controversial changes.

Turning aside from from processing amendments for a time, the members adopted an amendment to permit a flexible work week for certain employees provided the total hours at the end of the year averaged 40.

Backed by Ramspeck.

This proposal, sponsored by Representative Ramspeck (Democrat, Georgia), would apply to regularly employed, salaried workers who voluntarily reached such an agreement with their employers. The compact would have to be approved by the wage-hour administrator.

Other amendments which were approved, subject to final confirmation, would:

Exempt apple storage; exempt certain religious societies; exempt any employee with a guaranteed yearly salary in excess of $1,500; eliminate entirely a controversial "area of production" clause in the present law; exempt forest fire-fighters; and exempt small wholesale grocers from hours provisions.

Methodists Ask F.D.R. To Recall Vatican Envoy

Resolution Passes With Less Than 50 Dissenting Votes.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 2.—(AP)—The new Methodist church, through resolution of its general conference, asked President Roosevelt today to recall Myron C. Taylor, his personal peace envoy to the Vatican.

By a show of hands, the 776 conference delegates adopted a resolution declaring Taylor's appointment "has created a spirit of uneasiness and resentment in the minds of a great number of people, and has engendered discord and strife."

There were 234 delegates who voted to strike out that part of the resolution asking for recall of Taylor, but when that motion was defeated, less than 50 delegates raised their hands against the resolution as a whole.

Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, editor of the Christian Advocate's New York edition, led the unsuccessful fight to limit the resolution to a protest against the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Vatican and the United States.

The delegates rejected overwhelmingly a plea by Dr. A. Wesley Pugh, of Muncie, Ind., that women pastors be accorded membership in annual conference of the Methodist church. Dr. Pugh, Mrs. Fred C. Lamb, of Kansas City, and Miss Sally Lou McKinney, of Nashville, Tenn., argued that since women served capably in every other capacity of church work, they should be allowed to fill pastorates.

Thieves Cart Off Building Material

Construction of a new house for Mrs. Agnes Perkins, at 1034 Simpson street, suffered a temporary setback yesterday.

Workmen arrived to find that during the night somebody had stolen two window frames, a gallon of white paint, a pair of overalls, a set of carpenter's tools, a bag of bricklayer's instruments, and all the painter's brushes.

Mrs. Perkins, who lives at 1030 Simpson street, told the police about it.

Norwegian Sailor Kills Self Over War Worry

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—(AP)—A 40-year-old Norwegian seaman shot and killed himself here today because of worry over the war in his native country. Police man George Hoffman said the victim, Ardie Adisson, gave his reason shortly before he died.

at the CITY HALL

Joe Orr, member of the field staff of the Public Service Administration, today will join other colleagues in completing the job and salary classification for 3,100 non-school city employees.

Mrs. John Ryan and Mrs. C. R. McIntire yesterday set up a temporary booth at the city hall in connection with the drive against cancer. They represent the P. T. A. of St. Anthony's school.

Whiteway poles in Atlanta yesterday were getting a spring cleaning. Under the direction of Deputy L. Johnson, city superintendent of electrical affairs, the poles in the downtown section were being painted.

Routine matters are scheduled for consideration at the regular council meeting of the city council's police committee at 8 o'clock tonight at police station. Councilman C. M. Bolen, chairman, said no trials are scheduled.

There were 234 delegates who voted to strike out that part of the resolution asking for recall of Taylor, but when that motion was defeated, less than 50 delegates raised their hands against the resolution as a whole.

Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, editor of the Christian Advocate's New York edition, led the unsuccessful fight to limit the resolution to a protest against the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Vatican and the United States.

The delegates rejected overwhelmingly a plea by Dr. A. Wesley Pugh, of Muncie, Ind., that women pastors be accorded membership in annual conference of the Methodist church. Dr. Pugh, Mrs. Fred C. Lamb, of Kansas City, and Miss Sally Lou McKinney, of Nashville, Tenn., argued that since women served capably in every other capacity of church work, they should be allowed to fill pastorates.

Thieves Cart Off Building Material

Construction of a new house for Mrs. Agnes Perkins, at 1034 Simpson street, suffered a temporary setback yesterday.

Workmen arrived to find that during the night somebody had stolen two window frames, a gallon of white paint, a pair of overalls, a set of carpenter's tools, a bag of bricklayer's instruments, and all the painter's brushes.

Mrs. Perkins, who lives at 1030 Simpson street, told the police about it.

Norwegian Sailor Kills Self Over War Worry

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—(AP)—A 40-year-old Norwegian seaman shot and killed himself here today because of worry over the war in his native country. Police man George Hoffman said the victim, Ardie Adisson, gave his reason shortly before he died.

'Sky Icebergs' Indicate Rain To Forecaster

Mountains of Cold Air Reveal New Secrets of Meteorology.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Gigantic, invisible "icebergs in the sky" drift out of the northern Pacific across North America.

They are providing new landmarks for weather forecasters in predicting cold and storms, according to reports presented before the American Meteorological Society.

The new method of predicting is by means of an entirely new tool in meteorology—the isentropic chart. Such a chart is made daily by the United States Weather Bureau for the continental United States by means of data obtained from upper air measurements of temperature, pressure and density. They are proving valuable as an auxiliary forecasting tool.

The general nature of these charts and the air mountains whose existence they reveal was explained by Dr. H. Wexler, of the Weather Bureau staff.

The higher one goes the hotter it gets—potentially.

Actually, of course, it gets colder. That is because the density is less. The air molecules are further apart. Each has a larger space to heat. If the air a mile high were suddenly squeezed to the same density as air at sea level it would be very much hotter.

The chart makers select a certain altitude and determine what would be the sea level temperature of its air. Then they calculate, from airplane and radiometeorograph observations, the altitude of the air at other stations which, if brought down would have this same temperature.

The result is a roller-coaster picture—the isentropic chart. At times it dips down almost to the earth's surface. At others it soars miles high. These heights are like enormous icebergs. They move across the country like 'bergs in the sea.

For the most part, Dr. Wexler said, these "cold mountains" seem to originate in the northern Pacific and come eastward across the United States. Tongues of warm air come into the continent from the Pacific over Mexico and the Southern Rockies and from the Gulf of Mexico over Florida. They strike the slopes of the "mountains."

If the circulation is right they tend to rise along these slopes. The moisture is squeezed out of them and falls as rain.

A year ago, it was explained at the Weather Bureau, the isentropic chart was a curiosity. Now one is made up every day and is proving invaluable, especially for the predictions of local rains. This has always been one of the most difficult jobs for the forecaster, and if he failed in this, he was most bitterly criticized. Yet often the best he could do was to make a glorified guess.

The recognition of the cold mountains and means of keeping them charted constantly, it was explained, removes a great deal of this element of guesswork. It is expected to prove especially valuable for prediction of thunder showers—the bugbear of all forecasters in the past.

Dr. Wexler analyzed the very severe storm which swept over New England and New York on St. Valentine's Day in terms of the location of the moving icebergs.

Put "Tag" on Air.
At the same time Dr. N. Neuburger, of the Weather Bureau staff, told of a new method of "tagging air" by which it will be possible to locate tomorrow the air which the populace of New York or Philadelphia is breathing tonight.

Any mass of air, he explained, has three marks of individuality—its potential temperature as recorded on the isentropic chart, its moisture content, and its spin. The latter has not been recognized in the past. All air, Dr. Neuburger explained, is "spinning" at various speeds and in various directions.

Any one of these characteristics may change as the air moves. By a combination of the three, he believes, it will usually be possible to follow a mass of air from one place to another.

In winter the air which people in the eastern United States breathe during a cold snap may be air which Eskimos near the north pole were breathing a week before. It will now, Dr. Neuburger believes, be possible to trace its progress step by step as it comes southward.

So. Africa Women. Ask Law Change
Because many women in South Africa have no genuine nationality, the League of Women Voters is demanding revision of the present law which compels a woman to accept the nationality of her husband when she marries. Mrs. W. H. Kirby, secretary of the league, pointed out in Johannesburg that women married to Germans are Germans in the eyes of the law, whether their husbands are interned or not, unless they make special application for permission to adopt their original nationality. Even before the war the league opposed the law, contending that a woman should have the right to retain or change her nationality on marriage to an alien.

If a transportation tieup isolated New York City, it would have only a day's supply of milk, and within a week fresh fruit and vegetables would vanish.

Japan Curbing Foreign Schools

Under a new law Japan will strictly supervise schools conducted by foreigners. As soon as the proposed system of national schools is established the "evils" attending the operation of foreign schools will be eliminated, it was announced by Education Minister Matsuura in Tokyo. Prince Tomihide Iwakura, member of the upper house, an outspoken critic of the alien schools, declares that their operation leaves much to be desired from the point of view of promoting a correct idea of Japan's national policy. The purpose of the supervision will be to inculcate in pupils the "patriotic" view of Japanese policy.

Not dreaming of a scientific era of discovery to come, Geneva's citizens in the 16th century decreed: "For once and forever, in no branch of learning shall any one stray from the philosophy of Aristotle."

Ethiop Gambler's Now Races Ants

Betting on ant races proved more popular than ever during the unusually heavy rains in Abyssinia, it is stated in Addis Ababa. The Italians have taken up the sport of the Ethiopians, who are born gamblers.

One of the most striking effects of the rains is the birth of the flying ants, which emerge from blobs of mud by the millions. The gamblers gather around one of the blobs moves and from it comes a small insect. It may be red or blue, because the insects, after being colored, have been put into the mud. The gamblers call their bets—red or blue—and if a red ant gets out and crosses the circle first his backers scoop up the pool, and vice versa.

First American institution to send archaeologists to dig in Mesopotamia was the University Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, which excavated at Nippur from 1883 to 1900.

For Spring Luncheon Make a Souffle

Souffles are at once simple and sophisticated food. They are perfectly at home in the smartest surroundings, yet they appear in perfect taste on the most unpretentious table. Souffles are party-like or home-like, as you prefer. Their excellence depends upon proper mixing and baking. Here is one for you to serve at spring luncheons:

Luncheon Souffle
4 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup top milk
3-4 cup uncooked tomato
1-2 cup cooked asparagus

3 eggs, separated
Melt butter over low heat, add flour, salt and pepper, stirring well. Add milk gradually, stirring to make as smooth sauce. Cook sauce until thick, about 8 minutes. Cool until lukewarm. Cut tomato and asparagus into small pieces and fold into mixture. Beat egg whites stiff and yolks until thick and lemon colored. Fold yolks, then whites, into the sauce. Pour into a well-greased baking dish and bake in a slow oven, 300 to 325 degrees, about 1-1/4 hours. Serve in same dish.

Build a spring luncheon around a delicious souffle.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Spring is the season for fresh rhubarb. If it is too acid for your taste, cover the cut stalks with boiling water and let stand two or three minutes, then drain and cook as usual. The acidity of cooked rhubarb may also be lessened by mixing one teaspoon of cornstarch with each cup of sugar used for sweetening. Be sure the rhubarb boils for a few minutes after adding the sugar.

Mix equal parts of diced fresh pineapple and sliced bananas, sweeten slightly with powdered sugar and serve for dessert or as a breakfast fruit.

Remember that fresh pineapple, so good just now, is the only fruit that cannot be used in gelatine preparations. There is a substance in the fresh pineapple that dissolves gelatine; cooking the pineapple destroys this substance and cooked or canned pineapple may be used with good results.

Consomme served with a poached egg makes a fine luncheon for an early spring day. Supplement it with a vegetable salad and toasted cheese sticks and you will find it a favorite menu in no time.

A good cook works with a number of condiments and by practice learns how to tone-up a bland or uninteresting flavor or to develop a delicate flavor to its highest state. Condiments have no food value in themselves, but are valuable because they stimulate the flow of the digestive juices and thus aid in digestion.

Spices get their flavor from the aromatic oils they contain; if ground spices are not kept closely covered they lose their flavor and fragrance. Be sure your spice cans are tightly closed after you use them.

Maple Dreams.
Cut stale bread in slices one-fourth inch thick. Remove the crusts, butter half of the slices lightly, and add a thin layer of chopped dates spread evenly over each side. Butter the remaining slices and place them on top of the slices spread with dates, pressing them lightly together to form a sandwich. Cut in any shape desired. Dip each sandwich in a mixture of one egg slightly beaten with one cup of milk. Sauté to a delicate brown in a little butter. Serve with maple sauce.

Maple Sauce.
This is excellent over any pudding and fritters, too, although it is designed to fit the maple dreams. One cup maple syrup, one-fourth cup cold water, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon cornstarch. Heat the syrup and add the cornstarch moistened in the cold water. Cook until clear and then add the butter. Pour the sauce around the "dreams" and serve at once.

Ripe Olive Meatless Loaf.
1 cup cooked peas.
1-2 cup cooked string beans.
1 cup diced cooked carrots.
1 cup soft bread crumbs.
2-3 cup sliced or chopped ripe olives.
1 egg.
2 tablespoons melted butter.
1 cup milk.
Salt.
Pepper.
Paprika.

Pres one-half cup peas through a sieve. Cut string beans in half crosswise. Combine all ingredients, adding salt, pepper, and paprika to taste, and blend thoroughly. Turn into a greased loaf pan. Bake about 40 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Remove from pan and serve with hot cream sauce.
Serves six.

Swedish Cabbage.
1 medium-sized head cabbage (red or green).
2 or 3 apples.
Water.
1-2 cup vinegar.
2-3 cup sugar.
3 tablespoons butter.
Salt.
Pepper.

Cut up the cabbage with the apples and cook 15 to 20 minutes, or until tender, in a small quantity of lightly salted boiling water. Melt butter; add vinegar, sugar and seasonings, and heat for a few minutes. Pour this sauce over the cabbage and let stand until the sweet-sour flavor goes all through.

Toasted Carrots.
1-4 cup salad oil, melted margarine or melted butter.
1-2 cup corn flake crumbs.
1 teaspoon salt.
1-3 teaspoon pepper.
Dip carrots in oil, then in corn flake crumbs to which the salt and pepper have been added. Arrange in pan under moderately hot broiler heat and broil until corn flakes are toasted, about five minutes. Baste twice with remaining oil while broiling.

Yield: Six servings.

Raisin Brown Sugar Pie.
2 3-4 cups raisins.
2 cups water.
1-4 cup melted butter.
1 cup brown sugar (packed).
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
5 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca.

Pastry for double crust (nine-inch, deep type).
Rinse and drain raisins. Combine with water, butter, sugar, lemon juice, salt and tapioca in a saucepan and stir until well blended. Bring to a boil and cook and stir about four to five minutes. Remove from heat, add flavoring and stir to blend. Pour into pastry-lined pie pan and cover with top crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm but not hot.
Serves six to eight.

Cheese Tomato Souffle.

Meat will not be missed at the luncheon or supper where this is served as the main dish. Unfold carefully on a heated dish and serve with steamed rice, or with creamed mushrooms. This may be baked also in individual buttered molds.
Melt four tablespoons of butter and add one-third cup of flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and one-fourth teaspoon each of chopped parsley, onions and paprika. Pour in one and one-third cups tomato juice. Simmer until the mixture thickens, then add one-third cup grated cheese and three egg yolks. Beat two minutes. Fold in three beaten egg whites and quickly pour into buttered mold. Bake one hour in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven until the top is springy to the touch. Unfold carefully on a heated dish and serve with steamed rice, or with creamed mushrooms. This may be baked also in individual buttered molds.

Cheese Tips.
Sprinkle home-grated cheese over onion, vegetable or tomato soup at the moment of serving. With clear consomme or bouillon, pass crackers covered with grated cheese that have been slipped under the broiler just long enough to melt and puff the cheese.

Pretty college girls pause for a "pick-up." Misses Louise Rogers, Martha Kirven, Jean Millard and Nancy Hamilton, who attend Georgia Evening College, take time between classes for healthful refreshments, milk and soup.

Menus for a Week

The following menus are planned to provide well-balanced meals with appetizing variations at moderate cost for a week. For greatest economy go over the menus and make out your marketing list for the week in advance. Keep in mind that quantity buying is most economical. Of course, perishables may have to be bought several times a week.
Some readers were enthusiastic about these "Menus for a Week" and feel this feature is helpful enough to warrant my giving it a place on this page at frequent and regular intervals. Do you think so? Will you let me know if you like a week's menus planned for you?

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

Edited by SALLY SAVER

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1940.

IT'S A FACT

To Bake: Means to cook with dry heat; usually done in an oven; when meats are cooked this way it is called roasting.
To Baste: Means to moisten foods as they cook. Basting can be done with fat, water, drippings, fruit juices or sauces.

To Broil: Means to cook directly over or under a heating unit.
To Braise: Means browning meat or vegetables in a small amount of liquid, covering tightly and cooking slowly on top of stove.
To Garnish: Means to decorate.
To Marinate: This means to allow foods to stand in an oil-acid mixture to become seasoned.

Shrimp, pineapple, olives and watercress make a salad or appetizer.

You're Asking Me

Question: Please print a recipe for a good bread pudding.

Answer: There are many bread puddings; here is one called:

Old-Fashioned Bread Pudding.

1 1-2 cups diced stale bread.
3 cups milk, scalded.
2 eggs, beaten.
1-2 cup sugar.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.
1-2 cup raisins, nuts or coconut.

Soak bread in milk. Combine eggs, sugar, salt and cinnamon; stir into bread mixture; add raisins and pour into a buttered baking dish. Set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, approximately 45 minutes. Serve with any dessert sauce.

Question: What makes roasts dry?

Answer: This question is asked so many times and in so many different ways, I feel sure something should be done about it. Here's what should be done: All of the tenderer cuts of meat such as lamb leg and shoulder, beef rib roasts, standing and rolled; pork loin and other tender cuts of veal, pork, lamb and mutton should be roasted in an open roasting pan, with no water added, in a moderately SLOW oven. Pot roasts should be browned in a little fat, a little water added, the pan closely covered, and the roast cooked slowly until tender. These methods, if closely followed, will produce roasts which will be tender and juicy. Generally speaking, too fast cooking is responsible for dryness and too much shrinkage in meat cooking.

Question: Should candied sweet potatoes be cooked on top of the stove or in the oven?

Answer: They may be cooked on top of stove if you have a heavy sauce pan or skillet with tight-fitting lid in which to cook them, and if you will keep the heat low enough to cook them slowly. But why not plan them to fit into a meal which has other oven-cooked food and put them all in the oven to be cooked at the same time? Sweet potatoes fit so well into many oven meals it seems a pity not to take advantage of their adaptability in this direction.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Sweet Potatoes and Oranges

Submitted by Miss Sara Bennett, Georgia State College for Women, Milledgeville, Ga.

2 sliced oranges.
3 tablespoons butter.
1/2 cup brown sugar.
Grated rind of 1 orange.

Cook potatoes until done, but still firm. Cool slightly. Peel and slice lengthwise in 1/4-inch slices. Arrange layer of sliced potatoes in buttered baking dish. Season with salt and pepper, dot with butter and sprinkle with brown sugar and grated rind. Add layer of sliced oranges and repeat until materials are used, having a few orange slices on top. Bake in 400-degree oven 30 minutes. Serves 4.

Stuffed Beets

Submitted by Miss Teddie Otwell, 1382 Fairbanks St., S. W., Atlanta.

1 tablespoon chopped green olives.
Mayonnaise.

Hollow out centers of beets and save for tossed salad. Add olives to cheese and mix with mayonnaise. Fill beets and chill at least 30 minutes in refrigerator. Serve on lettuce leaves, garnished with mayonnaise.

Honey Crispies

Submitted by Miss Fannie Dempsey, Route 2, Cedartown, Ga.

1/2 cup sugar.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon vinegar.
1 package crisp puffed cereal.

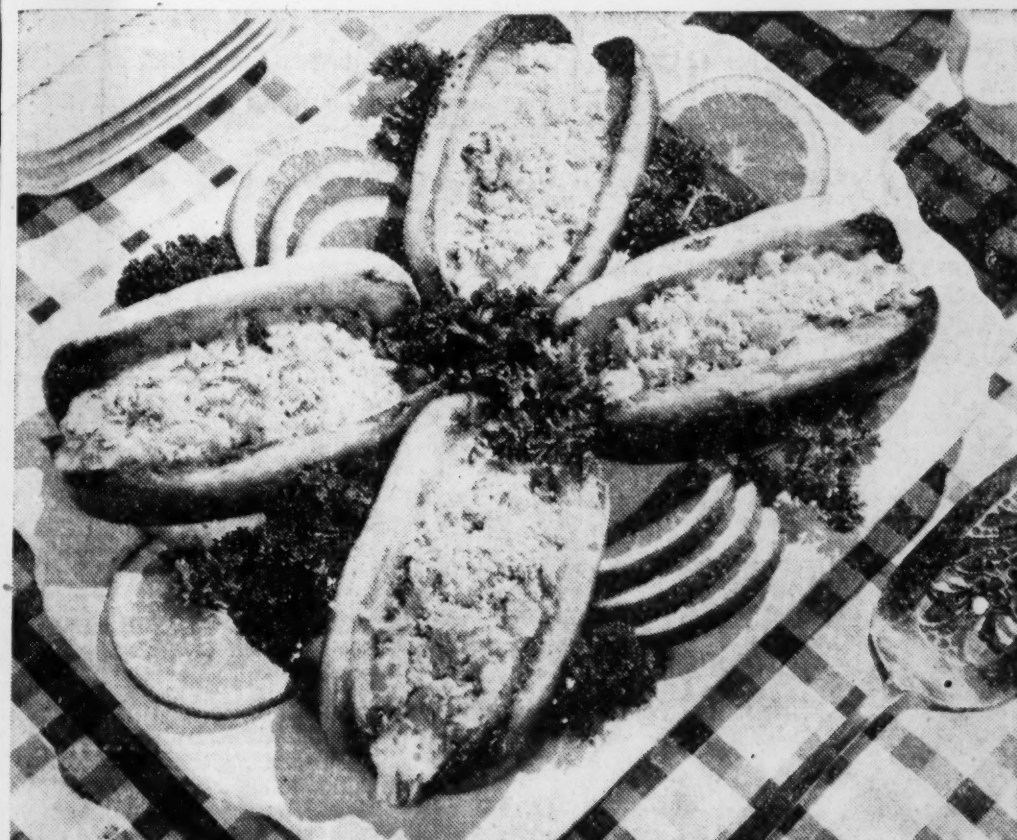

Cook sugar and honey to crack stage, 290 F. Add butter and vinegar and pour over crisp cereal. Press into buttered pan, and cut into bars.

Casserole of Rice and Meat

Submitted by Mrs. F. C. Sutton, 494 Peoples St., S. W., Atlanta.

City May Buy Flock of Pigeons

Buenos Aires will sacrifice one of its most picturesque sights when the pigeons, long a part of the Avenida Costanera, are sold. The owners are no longer able to buy food for the birds, which were raised by an enthusiast named Costoya, who died a few months ago. With his flowing beard and whistle he became a well known character. When Aivar was president of Argentina he granted Costoya $170 a month for the pigeons. With the national colors painted on their wings, the birds were often released by thousands at patriotic celebrations. Costoya's family sold 1,000 to the city of Mendoza. Now only 3,000 remain of the original 7,000 and they will find new owners unless the city itself buys them.

A strange chapter of Greenland's remote past is shown by the remains of camphor trees, figs, magnolias, and tree ferns found on the west coast.

U. S. Litigation In Rivers' Case Believed Ended

Attorney General's Office Holds Circuit Court—Dismissed Charges.

Federal litigation over the controversy between Governor Rivers and W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Board, is at an end as far as officials of the State Legal Department are concerned.

The attorney general's office yesterday interpreted the written opinion of the United States fifth circuit court of appeals as dismissing the federal contempt case against the Governor.

This, it was pointed out, was a reversal of the oral opinion rendered April 22, which, according to the law department officials, had the effect of sending the contempt case back to Judge Bascom Deaver, of Macon.

The written opinion, it was explained, reversed Judge Deaver on the contempt case as well as the injunction case.

Under the oral opinion, the attorneys said, Judge Deaver still would have had the right to fine Governor Rivers or send him to jail on the contempt charge.

Augusta Rally Of State's Elks Opens Sunday

Ritual Contest at Auditorium Will Launch Three-Day Session.

Georgia Elks' Association will meet Sunday in Augusta for a three-day session, with 22 lodges throughout the state sending representatives.

The ritualistic contest for the J. Bush loving cup will be held in the Augusta city auditorium Sunday afternoon. Teams from the Atlanta, Augusta, Decatur, East Point and Savannah lodges will compete, and the winning team will represent Georgia in the national ritualistic contest at the grand lodge convention in Houston, Texas, in July.

At the convention business session Monday, Past Grand Exalted Rulers David Sholtz, former Governor of Florida, and John F. Malley, of Springfield, Mass., chairman of the Elks' National Foundation, will be guest speakers and will be introduced by Judge John S. McClelland, of Atlanta, past president of the Georgia association.

Belgian Sailors Given Sentences for Mutiny

ANTWERP, May 2.—(P)—Thirty-seven Belgian sailors were sentenced to jail terms today on charges of mutiny last November in New Orleans when they refused to sail aboard the 4241-ton Elisabeth Van Belgie unless given a 100 per cent increase in their pay.

Two men who were named the leaders were given six-month terms; the rest drew terms of from 15 days to three months. Fines of varying amounts also were assessed on all.

Sales of Fertilizer Tags Set Three-Year Record

An increase in fertilizer tag sales through April of this year, as compared with the same period in 1939 and 1938, was reported yesterday by Columbus Roberts, Georgia commissioner of agriculture.

Tag sales through April were for 657,524 tons, as compared with 615,153 tons for the same period last year, or a gain of 42,371 tons. Records of the department also showed tag sales were running ahead of 1938 by approximately 20,000 tons.

City Challenged By Youth To Better Affairs

Schools, Health Facilities, Parks and Fire Equipment Are Hit.

By BETTY MATHIS.

Youth of Atlanta yesterday issued a stirring challenge to Atlanta's city fathers to provide better schools, better sanitary and health facilities, better equipment for the fire and parks departments, and better housing, as Mayor Stewart, 18-year-old "mayor for a day," and a junior city council, composed of elected representatives of local high schools, took over the reins of city government as a feature of the observance of Youth Week.

In his inaugural address yesterday morning, Mayor Stewart said, "Youth does not want war, debt, poor education, bad social conditions, or a low economic status. Youth does not want these burdens passed upon its shoulders by those who now pull the political strings."

Following the inauguration address, the new mayor went to city hall, where he addressed the session of the junior council. Mayor Stewart, definitely, is no politician. He plunged into an analysis of the problems of the city, letting the chips fall where they might.

His recommendations to the junior council were made after he impressed on them their "duty to make and pass resolutions during this day which will assure the continuation of the advancement and prosperity of Atlanta."

He began by telling of the "disgraceful" conditions of the city schools. "Buildings in which many of our boys and girls attend school are firetraps," he declared. "From personal experience I know that there is no inspiration to a student when forced to attend schools like many in our system. Inadequate toilet facilities, poor blackboards, improper lighting, heating with stoves in the manner of 50 years ago, flooring with holes and cracks that freezing air penetrates, improper ventilation—these conditions are endangering the health of the boys and girls forced to attend school in outmoded portable buildings."

He touched on the lack of proper equipment for the teaching of many scientific and technical subjects, and urged that the council take steps toward the advancement of better educational conditions in the city.

The high rate of accident insurance in Atlanta was brought out with a suggestion that the traffic committee of council take appropriate steps to aid in solving the problem.

Mayor Stewart advocated provision of swimming and indoor recreation spots for the patients of Battle Hill sanitarium, and suggested improvement and additions to the equipment of the city parks department.

A description of "places which are breeders of germs and disease and sore spots in the eyes of citizens and tourists" was given with the suggestion that fines be imposed on owners of such property. Said Mayor Stewart, "Human nature is such that a person about to be forced to pay will adhere to the law more quickly."

Money received from such fines could be used to beautify parks and other city property, he said.

Would Abolish Billboards. Beautification of the city was advocated through the elimination on main thoroughfares of "billboard advertising—limitless poster advertising, and unsightly placarding of buildings, fences and walls."

The subject of fire traps and improper fire fighting equipment brought a sarcastic condemnation of present conditions by the junior mayor. "Some of the equipment now in use by the fire department was bought as far back as 1914, and should have been discarded long ago," he pointed out.

"This is the kind of 'fine' implements used by our fire department to protect the people in our many fire traps. With such equipment our excellent firemen could not save the lives of people in the Terminal hotel fire and the Cable Piano Company fire, though the men risked their own lives."

To finance the program which he advocated, Mayor Stewart recommended the passage of a bond issue. Strongly condemning citizens who stayed away from the polls at the time of the last bond

YOUTH IS SERVED—Members of Atlanta's Junior Council yesterday took over the reins of city government as part of the annual observance of Youth Week. Highlight of the session was the address of the Junior Mayor, Fluker Stewart. Listening attentively to His Honor are members of the council. Reading clockwise from the left they are Larry Dean, O'Keefe Junior High;

George Haley, Joe Brown Junior High; Lottie Hollingsworth, Murphy Junior High; Leon Bridges, Bass Junior High; Tommie McClure, Commercial High, clerk of council; Mayor Stewart, of Boys' High; Charles Parks, Tech High, mayor pro. tem.; Doris Williams, Maddox Junior High; John McKee, Atlanta Boys' Club; Calvin Bradshaw, Hoke Smith Junior High; Roselyn Lasseter, Girls' High.

Emory To Hold Conference for Malaria Study

Noted Specialists of Nation To Discuss Control of Disease.

Plans for a conference to study ways and means of solving the nation's malaria problem were announced here yesterday by Dr. G. V. Giddings, of Emory University Medical School.

The meeting was suggested and will be attended by Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., surgeon general of the United States, Dr. Giddings said. To assemble the country's outstanding specialists, the conference will be held in co-operation with Emory's medical school and will meet on the Emory campus. A permanent board will be set up to seek the co-operation of various health foundations in working out a research program to combat the energy-sapping disease, which, it has been estimated, costs the state of Georgia alone about $10,000,000 a year. May 29 and 30 have been set as conference dates.

Many Invitations. Invitations to attend will be extended to representatives of universities, scientific and philanthropic agencies interested in prevention of control of the disease. Ultimately, the board expects to invite foreign representatives to its meetings and function as an international agency.

Nationally known experts will lead discussions on such problems as epidemiology of malaria, human infections, chemotherapy, fundamental research and methods of control.

"Malaria," he added, "is one of the most complex and costly diseases known to man."

70,000 Georgia Cases. Dr. Justine Andrews, malaria expert of the State Health Department, has estimated that there are between 70,000 and 80,000 cases of the disease in Georgia each year, and that the cost to the state annually approximates $10,000,000.

The disease, he explained, is not a peculiarly southern problem, but can be found in nearly all parts of the United States. Its heaviest concentration, however, is in south Atlantic and Mississippi valley states.

Members of the organization committee appointed by Surgeon General Parran to set up the new

John Temple Graves II Talks at G. M. A. Tonight

John Temple Graves II, editor of the Birmingham News and Age-Herald, will speak at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Georgia Military Academy auditorium. His subject is "Not Born to Die."

Mr. Graves is a graduate of G. M. A. He will be accompanied to College Park by his mother, Mrs. John Temple Graves Sr., and the two will be entertained at a dinner given by Major William R. Brewster, president of G. M. A.

RED PARADE IS EGGED.

OXFORD, England, May 2.—(P) Several hundred Oxford undergraduates started free-for-all fights last night by pelting a Communist May Day procession with rotten eggs and old tomatoes. Police made several arrests.

A BOMB GUESS.

EL PASO, Texas, May 2.—(UP) Suspicious buzzing sounds came from a package handed to N. A. Alexander, railway express agency cashier. "An infernal machine," he decided and dunked it quickly in a tub of water. From the tub bubbled "this is radio station KTSM, El Paso."

THERE ARE NO FLAWS in Merle Oberon's lovely complexion, and you can further enhance the beauty of your own by using the correct type of foundation cream. Miss Oberon is starred in United Artists' "Over the Moon."

Preserve Skin Moisture With Foundation Mist

By Lillian Mae.

I've raved about it before, but with a little tinge of conscience because the jar of very lovely foundation cream was priced above the amount we feel free to pay for creams. True, it is worth every cent of the cost—and in addition, the jar was larger than the average.

But now, without being one particle conscience-stricken, I'm telling you that you can afford this moisture-restoring cream and you'll see a great deal of difference in your complexion after using it a few times. And then your make-up will look so much better with even the first application.

I first had it called to my attention by a woman who was well past her 50th birthday. She felt her dewy, beautiful complexion retained that look because of the foundation. After all, the entire makeup does depend upon the base for its lovely or unlovely appearance.

When I inquired of my cosmetic friends just what benefits were to be derived from this particular base—and why—I was informed that its secret is the manner in which it supplies a dewiness—a moisture—instead of drying out the natural oils, as so many cosmetic bases do.

You've seen, and so have I, a face with perfect features, which is anything but beautiful because it is scaly or make-up is caked and rough-looking. Well, that's because either weather or artificial heat has given that complexion a rough deal, and the cosmetics used have not been such as to supply the necessary dewiness. This can happen to a young face as well as to an older one. But judging from the skin of the person who first told me about the cream, it is a great help to an aging one.

Phone me and I'll tell you the name of this cooling, grand-feeling foundation which will protect and aid your skin's natural moisture to keep you looking and feeling young and attractive—and where you may obtain it now at a much reduced price. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Typical Lunch is Deficient In Vitamins and Minerals

By Dr. William Brady.

The typical American quick lunch, gobbled and washed down with liquid by millions of malnourished people engaged in business, is like the million of malnourished people, checkfull of calories but seriously short in essential minerals and vitamins—essential for the highest attainable degree of functional efficiency, preservation of the characteristics of youth, vite. Have to continue talking about lunch today. Vite is fully defined on p. 7 of the two-bits manual "The 7 Keys to Vite" by Dr. Brady, who by the way, is pretty crochety about replying to queries or requests when correspondents fail to enclose a properly stamped addressed envelope for his convenience.

Not that the popular hurry-up lunch entirely accounts for the subnutrition so prevalent in America, but assay of the lunch gives a good indication of what ails most "well" people.

Instead of mentioning items which are extremely deficient in the essential minerals and vitamins, though not at all wanting in caloric value, taste and digestibility, perhaps we had better outline the right lunch for vite and leave the reader to make up his own mind how much his present diet has to do with his nutritional deficiency and how far he may be willing to go with reform in dietary habit in order to gain or regain vite.

First, then, here is the basic or model health lunch as given in the corrective protective or rejuvenation diet in the "7 Days."

One-third head of lettuce (16)
Tablespoonful oil dressing (93)
Two fresh vegetables (80)
Pat of butter (95)
Two glasses of milk (320)
Fresh fruit (80)

The lunch yields not quite 600 calories. Note that every item (with possible exception of salad dressing) has high mineral and vitamin content; even the salad dressing may provide vitamin E (if made with cottonseed oil, peanut oil, olive oil or sesame oil). If more food is desired for lunch, it had better be in the form of another glass of milk. In any case not less than a pint of milk is absolutely indispensable in the right lunch for vite. To a limited degree, when there is a genuine idiosyncrasy against milk, such as allergy, cheese, whatever variety one likes, cream, butter, evaporated milk, malted milk, dried powdered milk, buttermilk, chocolate flavored milk, or some fancy milk shake drink may serve as a substitute.

If the vegetables are cooked it is important that the water in which they are cooked be added to the food, for it contains considerable mineral matter and vitamins (especially vitamin B). Preferably include at least one raw vegetable besides lettuce or other salad green—say turnip, potato, cabbage, carrot, radish, tomato, cucumber, celery.

Some meat? Certainly, any fresh meat you like—AFTER you have disposed of your pint of milk. There is no objection to fresh meat in a health diet, but milk is more essential.

What, bread, toast, rolls, cake, pudding, ice cream or cereal after all that lunch? We'll discuss that later.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Medicine Cupboard.

On a number of occasions recently we have found "The Medicine Cupboard" contains precisely the information needed for household emergencies. I called our doctor's attention to a suggestion you give in the booklet and he agreed, adding that we could generally rely on the soundness of Dr. Brady's teachings. Well, we have found it so. (Mrs. F. S.)

Answer—Thank you. "The Medicine Cupboard" is an 80-page booklet about common ailments and home treatment, emergencies, first aid remedies—for copy send 25 cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Coronary Thrombosis.

Doctor says my husband has coronary thrombosis. Can you suggest any remedy or anything he can do? (Mrs. G. A. W.)

Answer—I can suggest one thing which is advisable, I believe, in any kind or stage of heart trouble. That is the regular practice of natural breathing. For instructions send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on "Belly Breathing."

Talking in My Sleep.

We listened to your radio program. Please send us further particulars regarding your treatment of rupture? (F. G.)

Answer—I know of no such radio program. For monograph on Hernia (rupture) send stamped envelope bearing your address.

Girls Dislike Fearful Men

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have been in love with a girl for three years. She's the only girl I have ever wanted to marry, and I am afraid of what may come. Sometimes she is affectionate and makes me think she loves me to death. At other times she stages scenes, says it is a big mistake for us to go on and she is not at all sure she loves me. I can't describe the feeling I have when I think of the possibility of losing her. I get cold all over and my tongue sticks to the roof of my mouth. Please tell me how to handle her.

Z. J.

ANSWER: Pardon the analogy, brother, but Albert Payson Terhune says a dog smells fear on a human being, dislikes the scent and bites the person that emits it. A gal dislikes a fearful boyfriend. When he gives evidence of abject fear, when he shows her he's scared to death of losing her, she frequently experiences disgust for him and lashes out at him. You see a gal really wants to respect the man she loves. She wants to look up to him and when he cringes before her she can't.

You must get a grip on yourself; behave in such a way that your girl respects you—otherwise you will lose her. Here's the time to tell her that if you should marry her on any other basis she would not be a good wife for you. She'd trample you to death.

When you have shown some independence, told her to make up her weak mind and move off while she makes it up, she'll come to time. Either she loves you or doesn't, and the threat of losing you will clear her mind instantly. Of course you understand that if you are not in position to discuss wedding plans and wedding date, you are at a disadvantage, because a gal that has waited three years for the word which hasn't been spoken isn't likely to be in the most amiable frame of mind.

There isn't much logic in a maid's way with a man: she works a Trojan to get him down and if she succeeds, loses her taste for him. She's all smiles, sweetness and light while she's pressing for his proposal. If it doesn't come, she becomes irritable, fretful, and can hardly be pleasant with him—even though she loves him to distraction.

So it behooves the man stricken with heart trouble to explore all the possibilities in the feminine realm to keep his nerve and show no sign of fear, also it behooves him to get the dotted line in readiness to sign.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I'm sincerely trying to understand your attitude. Won't you make the same effort to understand mine? We may then be able to make a decision that is fair to us both."

Understanding between two generations cannot be the result of a one-sided effort.

Myrna Loy Prefers Talking About Her Garden, Orchard

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 2.—William Powell scratches his wife's back on the "I Love You Again" set; then plunges into a love scene with screen wife Myrna Loy. But just to make sure his real wife will understand, every time that Bill embraces Myrna he winks reassuringly at Diane. "Happy!" I ask him when I can tear him away from both wives. "Life," says Bill, still looking at Mrs. Powell, "is fine—in fact, it's wonderful!" and like a boy let out of school, Bill rushes back to Diane.

Watching the Powells and sighing sympathetically is Jimmy Stewart clad in a Nazi storm trooper uniform. He has wandered over from his own picture, "The Mortal Storm."

"Aren't you getting married soon?" I ask him, thinking this is a good time for the question. "Oh, yes," says James, spoiling it all by adding, "I read that too!" Jimmy suddenly remembers he ought to be back on his own set. That leaves me with Myrna Loy. Now there is only one topic of conversation that brings a glow of excitement to Myrna's beautiful eyes—her garden and orchard. She is carrying the former on her head—in the shape of a hat made entirely of roses. About the orchard, Myrna enthuses. "My limes are doing so well. I'm marketing them." (Writer's comment: Sorry not to be more exciting, but what with Powell being so much in love, Stewart's cautiousness and Myrna's limes, it's difficult here for the nosy reporter.) Let's go to "Boom Town."

Things look better here. Hedy Lamarr, clad in a flannel dressing gown, reclines on a settee in her dressing room. She seems bored and is glad of a visit. Right away she put me in a good mood by telling me, "You have lost hundreds of pounds!" In actual fact it is only six pounds, but that's all right!

I inquire after Hedy's rule in the picture and discover that she is playing her first "heavy" part. "I am what you call the menace," says Hedy. "I am in and out all the time. Mostly out. I love Gable, but he is married to Claudette Colbert. No one marries me. It is all very queer!"

Meanwhile one of the funniest scenes in "Boom Town" is being shot. A French tailor, aided and abetted by Gable, is measuring Spencer Tracy for a suit of clothes. The tailor pinches Tracy's cheek, tickles him and pats him cutely on the shoulder. This scene may not be in the finished film because every time the tailor gets to tickling Tracy everyone on the set, including Tracy, breaks down.

A drive of 40 minutes brings me to the Warner studio—and the "Episode" set for a chat with Olivia de Havilland. "I look a little mummy" comes from within Miss de Havilland's dressing room. "Can you take out the vein over my eye?" continues Olivia's voice. "This one is so busy. What are you trying to do—have me run Ann Sheridan off the lot?" At this point I enter and find Olivia criticizing some portraits of herself. "I hear," says Olivia, "that 'Saturday's Children' is a great success."

"Sorry now you didn't make it?" asks this reporter. (Olivia was suspended for her refusal to star in this picture with John Garfield.)

MY DAY: Good Will Promoted Through Schools

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Yesterday afternoon I received a number of diplomats and their wives. I cannot help feeling that this whole group has a serious and almost sad approach to any subject these days. There is an uncertainty abroad in the world which makes those who are close to their governments and represent them in foreign lands feel the seriousness and precariousness of life from day to day.

In the evening I went to a dinner to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Instructive Visiting Nurses' Association in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone has been the president since 1936 and a very hard-working one. The people who gathered to do honor to her and the association are interested in the well-being of Washington's large lower-income bracket population.

I remember this work years ago, when my aunt, Mrs. William Sheffield Cowles, was interested in this organization. I think the founders and all those who worked in it in those early days would be gratified at the increase of service which has come about in 40 years.

After the dinner was over, I went to see Mrs. Morgenthau, who has not been very well and so was not able to attend, though she had done a great deal in making the arrangements for the dinner. For some reason, the broadcast of the dinner was not heard in Washington, but a transcription was run off at 10 p. m. and Mrs. Morgenthau and I listened. It is a curious sensation, sitting critically listening to yourself and realizing how unutterably slow and dull you sound. Somehow or other, I must learn to think more quickly on my feet, or I shall always spoil whatever impromptu program I am on. It is good for the soul to have an experience like this, but somewhat discouraging.

The President and I have just been presented with a painting called "Rebirth of the Holy Land," by Arye Leo Peysack, of Palestine. It is a very kind and charming gesture and both of us appreciate his thought. All these kind gestures from people of different races are, I think, the result of a feeling that so many of us have been drifting away from a kindness of spirit in these days that those who desire better understanding and peace try to emphasize anything which will draw us together.

I am glad to see that the Council Against Intolerance in America is calling a regional conference on tolerance through education on Saturday, May 11, in New York city. Some very distinguished educators are the sponsors. Since the feeling of good will must be promoted through the schools, I think that this is an effort which should command our support.

High Vitality Influences Figure Lines

By Ida Jean Kain.

With the line of fashion the line of the figure, the girl with the scanty bust contour is especially interested in any measure which tends to increase and improve this portion of the figure.

But while brassiers can do a lot, one has never yet been designed that could solve the problem of underdevelopment of the chest, and, according to Mme. Adrienne, one of America's leading designers, that is often the trouble!

If the girls with the scanty chests develop this measurement, she says, their bust problems usually disappear in the process. When the bust contour is spoiled by the hollow between shoulder and bust, exercise is definitely indicated. She recommends the following exercise to strengthen the muscle tissues and fill out the hollows:

Lie face upward on a bed with the upper part of the body off the bed, head and arms dangling toward the floor. Slowly raise the arms upward, lifting the upper part of the body until it is in the same plane as the feet. At the same time, throw the chin far back and chew vigorously to increase the muscular pull on the chest and bust muscles, particularly the strands from throat to breast. We don't need to tell you that the exercise is strenuous—you'll find it out! Increase the number of times it is performed very gradually.

The Figure With the Small Bust, Bony Diaphragm.

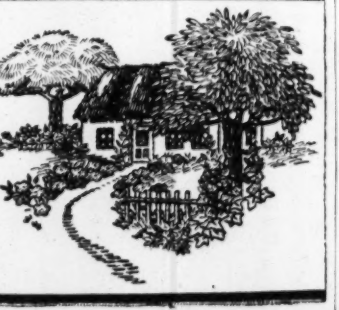

For this type, the bra must gently raise the bust up and out from the body as far as possible, thus making the diaphragm appear smaller. The long line, princess type of bra must be used to create the illusion of a long line from the tip of the breast to the waist.

Broad Shoulders, Small Bust. For this type, the shoulders appear larger than they actually are because of the smallness of the breasts. Padding can be used to increase the size, but it is more advisable to select a bra cut so that the surrounding tissue is gathered into the cup and thus increases the size of the measurement.

High vitality, as much as anything else, influences the size of the bust, particularly in the teen-ager girl. The "Protective Diet Chart" will build up vitality through correct eating. Send stamped return envelope for this chart to Miss Kain in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

For Growing Girls

By Barbara Bell.

Make this sweet frock with collar to match and trim it with ricrac. You'll like it so well that you'll immediately want to repeat it the other way, too, with contrasting collar and no braid. Design No. 1903-B has exactly the lines in which growing girls look best, with its flared skirt, snug bodice and wide-shouldered sleeves. The button-front makes it easy for her to get into, and easy for you to make and to iron.

This little dress looks well in practically every material that growing girls wear—chambray, gingham, linen and pique, for instance. It will be especially pretty in yellow printed percale, with brown accents, a very smart combination right now.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1903-B is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 requires 2 1/4 yards of 36-inch material without nap, and with matching collar; 3 1/2 yards of ricrac; 1-4 yard for contrasting collar and cuffs.

It's ready! Barbara Bell's new fashion book, with almost 100 sparkling new designs for afternoon, daytime and sports! Lovely things for you and the children, all smarter than smart, exclusively designed for you! Send for it today! Spend less, and still have all the clothes you want.

Price of pattern 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Shockley's gown is of new American acetate crepe fabric. This voluminous skirt is fan-pleated. Folds of red velvet trim bodice and form shoulder straps.

Junior Mayor Orders Special Day for Bands

Fluker Stewart Issues Proclamation Honoring Music Festival.

Tomorrow will be "School Band Day" in Atlanta by virtue of a special proclamation issued yesterday in honor of The Constitution's Greater Atlanta Music Festival by Fluker Stewart, the city's junior mayor.

With Mayor Hartsfield by his side, Mayor Stewart noted in his official paper that the festival will bring together "the greatest aggregation of school bands ever held in Atlanta," and urged all the junior citizens, especially "the members of the Atlanta public school system, to give their support and lend their presence to this great occasion."

The festival begins at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at Grant field and is free.

Sections of the stands are being reserved for performers—so none will have to stand during the spectacle.

Third and Fowler streets will be blocked off by order of Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, and a squadron of officers will be present to protect cars and maintain order. Fire Chief C. C. Styron is sending scores of firemen who will be on the alert every minute of the time.

In the stands Captain Jack Malcom and Patrolman M. L. Thomas will have more than 500 school boy patrolmen to usher and hand out programs.

Lightning Burns Hole In Wing of Airplane

Flight Captain A. F. Olsen, flying many years, says the bolt of lightning that played with his plane near Helena, Mont., recently was something new in his experience.

It was snowing, Captain Olsen reported, and there was no warning of an electrical disturbance. "Suddenly a bolt of lightning that seemed to come from nowhere lighted for the barest fraction of a second on the aileron of the right wing," Captain Olsen said.

Except for a slight lurch the bolt caused the plane no distress. But when it landed at Billings, a four-inch hole had been burned in the fabric covering the aileron.

Among the 21 passengers and crew of three on the ship, the incident caused no serious alarm.

War Short-Circuits Art Collection Display

Two noted Swiss art collectors, Dr. Oscar Reinhart and Dr. A. Hahnloser, have combined to give the city of Luzern an exhibition of paintings which they would have preferred to have before war came.

Reinhart's collection of Rembrandts, Watteaus, Goyas, Monets, Renoirs and Degas is one of the finest in Europe while Hahnloser's collection of contemporary paintings is ranked as one of the best. In a nonwar year, Luzern might expect a flood of foreign tourists to see the two collections, but as it is the city plans a "Swiss-wide" appeal to Swiss art lovers to come to enjoy the collections—and spend money—in Luzern.

Labor Termed Major Enemy Of Dictatorship

Movement Can Restore Freedom of Nations, Says Wilson.

MACON, Ga., May 2.—(P)—The labor movement was described here today as the power that can restore freedom in the dictator nations.

Addressing the Georgia Federation of Labor, James C. Wilson, of Washington, said Adolf Hitler had destroyed the labor movement in Germany for the time being.

In fact, said Wilson, who is labor advisor of the International Labor Office, the German dictator has "destroyed great labor movements not only in Germany, but in six other nations with which he associated either as a conqueror or as an ally."

Wilson told how leaders in the labor movement in Germany had been put in concentration camps and said no one knew how many had been killed. He described the International Labor Association as a worldwide organization working for the improvement of workers everywhere.

Other speakers today included Mrs. Sally D. Clinebell, of Atlanta, representing the United Garment Workers. She told of settlement of a strike among luggage workers at Petersburg, Va., and urged support of the union label.

Final sessions of the three-day convention will be held tomorrow with election of officers scheduled for the morning. The annual ball of the federation added a social note to tonight's proceedings.

Youth Emigration Scored by Arnall

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MONROE, Ga., May 2.—Georgia must encourage her young men and women to stay in the state, Attorney General Ellis Arnall declared here tonight in speaking at a banquet given for high school seniors by the Monroe Kiwanis Club.

"Our natural and physical resources must be utilized by our human resources," he said. "We need the help of this new generation in solving our economic and social problems."

He said there had never been a more unsettled or interesting period in the world's history, but added that youth quickly adapted itself to new conditions.

In an address at noon yesterday before the Sylvester Kiwanis Club, Arnall said education was the answer to Georgia's social and economic problems and expressed the hope "the time is not far distant when we will cease making beggars out of our school teachers."

BEAUTY AND THE BANDIT. BRIDGE, Pa., May 2.—(UP)—Holdup Man Frank Tavernese took $25.30 from a store. The clerk was rather pretty. Tavernese returned an hour later to "see if she'd remember me," she said. He's in jail.

DeKalb Group To Hold Annual Civic Program

Two New Buildings To Be Dedicated at Celebration Tomorrow.

Residents of southwest DeKalb county tomorrow will join in their annual Community Day celebration, highlighted this year by dedication ceremonies for two new vocational buildings and the traditional livestock show sponsored by the Future Farmers of America.

The program will begin at 9:45 o'clock in the morning, on the playground of the Southwest DeKalb High school, where May Day kings and queens from the three district schools will be crowned.

All grades of the elementary schools will join in folk dances, under the direction of Miss Ella Cannon. A calisthenics team, directed by Mrs. Ruth Cheek, will represent the Southwest Grammar school.

Two choral groups will be heard during the festival. The West Side chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Carol L. Stewart, is composed of 50 voices. The East Side group is led by Mrs. Ruby White, Mrs. Catherine Felker and Mrs. Elizabeth Burrell.

Dedication exercises, featuring speakers from the DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce, the vocational department and the WPA, will begin at 11 o'clock. The two new buildings include a library and an arena and stock pens.

Following the livestock show at 11:30 o'clock and the awarding of prizes, will be a pet show and a poultry show. A barbecue will conclude the day's program at 12:30 o'clock.

Historic Spots In Milledgeville Attract Visitors

Georgians Make Fifth Annual Pilgrimage to Gardens, Homes.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 2. Time turned backward in its flight today, and for a brief period the glory of the old south prevailed again in this historic town on the banks of the lazy Oconee river.

Beautiful ante-bellum mansions, their loveliness enhanced by nature's spring color schemes, took on the brilliance of that bygone era again as gracious southern ladies, attired in hoopskirts, lace shawls and other apparel of the pre-war period, played hostesses to approximately 150 visitors from all sections of Georgia.

Milledgeville, seat of the state government before and during the War Between the States, was the mecca of beauty lovers for the fifth consecutive year as the Robert E. Lee chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held its annual pilgrimage to historic buildings here.

To Replace Cupola. Proceeds from the pilgrimages are used to give something beautiful to Milledgeville. On the first project, the Robert E. Lee chapter of the U. D. C. furnished the "blue parlor" at the old Governor's mansion. The present pilgrimage will result in replacing the cupola on the old state capitol building at Georgia Military College. It was burned in 1894.

The pilgrimage, which began this morning at 10 o'clock, found Georgia enthusiasts still sauntering through the homes at 7 o'clock tonight when the tours ended.

Old State House. First stop on the itinerary was the state house, now G. M. C., built in 1807 by Architect General Jett Thomas, of Virginia. Here the secession convention was held. In the treasurer's office is the old vault in which the state's valuables were kept. The Oscar M. Cone memorial library also is located here.

The Morris house, owned by Daniel Stetson and William McAdoo, is noted for its beautiful stairway in miniature and rosewood harpsichord.

The Governor's mansion contains an entrance hall beautified by a chandelier inspired by Miss Nelle Womack Hines, and was the gift of the faculty and student body of the Georgia State College for Women. This old home, surrounded with choice boxwoods, was one of the highlights of the pilgrimage.

One of the oldest buildings in Milledgeville, the Masonic building, was erected in 1822-27 by lottery under special act of the Georgia general assembly. It has been used continuously by York Rite Masonic bodies. It is the only Royal Arch lodge room in the state having permanent built-in fittings. There is a large chair used during Lafayette's visit to Milledgeville, at which time he was guest of the Masonic lodge and presided over the meeting. The lovely circular stairway is the original and is supported only by steel beams. An old Bible has been in the lodge room since its beginning.

Thalian Hall. Thalian hall, the only building left of old Oglethorpe University, is a part of Allen's Invalid Home and now is used for a nurses' home. Sidney Lanier, a student at Oglethorpe University, was a member of the Thalia society and occupied the southeast corner room on the second floor of Thalian hall. An old newspaper found in the cornerstone carries the program for ceremonies at the cornerstone laying, March 31, 1837.

Visitors to Milledgeville today saw many beautiful homes and private gardens, some restored, some as they originally were. These included:

Other Points Visited.

The Ferguson home, constructed in 1818, with its antiques, including pianos, old costumes, lace and silver.

The Tigner-Carr house built in 1839, with its antiques.

The Cline house, third executive mansion, erected in 1830.

The Cedars, constructed in 1830 with its antiques, style of architecture, beautiful stairway, and Palladian windows.

Lockery Hall, built in 1839, with its woodwork in the marbled-Italian method.

The Jones house, with its perfect hall and staircase, carved mantels and fine old furniture.

Beaumont, dating back to 1830, once the summer home of Governor Herschel Johnson and now owned by Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Ennis.

Whispering Pines, with its exhibit of old furniture, old books, and lovely collection of old china.

Mount Nebo, constructed in 1823, and featuring an interesting plan of house and gardens in the shape of an eagle.

Three Bandits Hold Up Loan Office at Noon

Take $124 and Seven Watches in Bold Robbery.

A lone clerk in the Brooklyn Loan Company office, 763 Marietta street, was held at bay while the establishment was robbed of $124 and seven watches by three Negro bandits at noon yesterday.

The clerk, H. T. Nix, told police the intruders pretended to be buying clothing at first, but one displayed a pistol while the others swiftly took the loot. Nix said he followed them on foot for several blocks, but was unable to stop them.

Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. W. Coppenger were investigating last night.

DeKalb Court Session Clears Civil Calendar

DeKalb county's civil court calendar was cleared yesterday morning, following adjournment of a special superior court session called by Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit.

The term disposed of 26 cases, Judge Davis said, bringing the docket of cases pending down to 40, scheduled for subsequent regular terms. Judge Davis during the week rendered a total of 12 decisions. The special session was called at the close of the regular March term, which disposed of only three civil suits. Judge Davis pointed out that all cases pending were called during the week.

AFTER 10 YEARS, HE'S A SHE.
LOS ANGELES, May 2.—(UP)—In traffic court Kenneth Raymond Lisbonbee was revealed as Katherine Rowena Wing, known as "Ken the Barber," and for 10 years accustomed to dress like a man. "I'm going to keep right on wearing these clothes," she said after a suspended 10-day sentence for using a fictitious name on her driver's license.

Whale Towed To Japan Coast

Tokyo whalers think that Sasaki, veteran fisherman of Western Japan, has established a record. He was rowing out to sea for a night's fishing when he bumped into something. His torch revealed a motionless whale. Thinking it dead, Sasaki hitched a rope around its tail and began to row the mile back to land. Then the whale woke up and started seaward and with it went the terrified Sasaki and his boat. Eventually the whale gave up and the fisherman towed it ashore. It was thought probable that the whale had been attacked by sharks and was exhausted when bumped into by Sasaki. It was 30 feet long and weighed four tons.

Bergdoll's Wife Curtain Rises Runs the Farm, On Lions Club He Serves Time Show Tonight

Clean-Cut Girl, With Six Children, Doing Excellent Job.

By HAROLD HADLEY.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
DOWNTOWN, Pa., May 2. It's a rather large, deep diamond sitting on tall, platinum prongs that sprout from yellow gold, companion band to a wedding ring of another generation. Beneath the diamond is some soil of Chester county.

And there is a one-room schoolhouse, with the sun streaming in its windows as old as Harmony Hill's history. In a corner sit a tow-headed boy and his just-younger sisters, with the sun on them as well as on the stars and stripes and an old lithograph of George Washington.

This seems to nutshell the replanting of the wife and children of Grover Bergdoll.

They all are waiting there on the 260 acres of rolling green or dense forest, not far from Downingtown, for the day when pop will come home after paying off a debt to society in khaki.

It was our first meeting with the German girl who married Bergdoll. Mother of six, she seems more the athletic, slender American girl. There's an accent you can't miss, of course, and sometimes cart-before-the-hetland grammar, but that makes her only the more charming.

She came out of the farmhouse that goes back to the 1700's, onto a porch where a timid dog, a sleepy dog and a bristly puppy tail-wagged or barked a welcome. She wore canvas shoes and sports socks and white slacks; a gray sweater, and her hair was done up in braided circles over her ears.

Her soft, green eyes are friendly with reason. In that farming community of Harmony Hill, she's been made welcome. Wives of neighbor-farmers have called on her, and we have the word of the teacher, Mildred Conner, that Mrs. Bergdoll is popular as a "very real, lovely woman" with other members of the community's Parent-Teacher Association.

You come to the house through a white grape arbor, and down the hill of wiry grass, you see rows of wide holes. Mrs. Bergdoll, wise in the ways of the soil, knows only rugged stuff will grow on that wide bank. So she's planting an apple orchard.

So, come fall, she'll put up apple butter and jam, and grape jelly, and preserve all sorts of vegetables, too. There are ample places for storage, in the spring house down in a gully at whose end is a crystal clear wading pool for the children.

Bergdoll's son was frowning over a composition paper, his pencil moving slowly. A commentator's voice, deep and authoritative, spoke. "The war may go on for two years or

First Performance of 'Rollin' Rhythm' To Be Presented.

Atlanta's roaring Lions, aided and abetted by 100 comely young women versed in new dance steps, sprightly songs and amusing dialogue, will offer "Rollin' Rhythm" tonight at the Woman's Club auditorium for their milk fund.

The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock before a capacity audience, judging from advance sales. The show will be repeated tomorrow night by an enthusiastic cast.

The offering is a combination rarely to be seen these days—a minstrel show, in the streamlined modern manner, a revue and a series of blackouts. The plot arises from a bus trip across the continent, ending in Old Mexico, with its colorful costume possibilities.

Gloria Matthews, widely known Atlanta entertainer, will be one of the attractions, offering a classical tap and a hillbilly number. Another featured performer will be Jane Holbrook, offering "The Saint Louis Blues." Keith Gingles is directing and staging the show.

Deity Offered Brand-New Job

Because of rain scarcity and decreased electric power output, Japan's god of thunder, relatively unimportant in the Shinto pantheon, may be named the god of electricity and worshiped under that designation. Authorities of the electric board of the communications ministry in Tokyo, are considering a proposal to rename Wakeikazuchino-kami, build a new shrine for him in their offices and invoke his benevolence by daily prayer to step up power output. The proposal was made by the Rev. Toku Komuro, of the Mito City shrine, where the god of thunder at present shares quarters with the god of safe transportation.

more. . . One knows about Germany. . . On and on, words of war.

Bergdoll's boy quit writing. His frown got deeper and blacker. . . and he turned off the radio.
